AS PAWNS OF BOTH SIDES . . .

POW Relatives Say They're Being Used

Washington (AP) — Families of American servicemen missing or captured in the Indochina war charged Friday they are being used by both sides as pawns in the conflict and called for an immediate end to the war.

Mrs. Harold Kushner, wife of an Army doctor held captive in Vietnam, said the Nixon administration is "using the prisoner issue to buy time for the South Vietnamese government."

"There has been no solution to the prisoner problem within the framework of Vietnamization," said a statement issued by the group at a news conference.

Political Hostages

"The pledge of President Nixon to maintain a residual force of troops within South Vietnam gives no real hope for the release of our men," the statement said. "In fact, it creates a situation in which the prisoners have become political hostages."

But the group also accused the Communist governments involved in the war of trading on the prisoner issue.

"We've been fair game for everyone," Mrs. Kushner, of Danville, Va., said, "not just the President, not just the right not just the left. All kinds of people have been trying to justify their causes in the name of the POW families."

"They cannot use my husband to spread the blood of 45 young men a week on Vietnam," said Mrs. Louis F. Jones of Fairfax County, Va., wife of an Air Force pilot missing in Laos.

Residual Force Opposed

Mrs. Jones said the group was particularly opposed to Nixon's plan of keeping a residual force in Vietnam and pegging it to the prisoner issue.

"To us this meant an interminable war," Mrs. Jones said. "It meant the prisoners would be held as long as we have forces in Vietnam. It meant the men may never be seen again."

The group is asking that the United States reach agreement with the Communists that the prisoners will be released when a withdrawal date is set and that after such an agreement is reached, U.S. forces be withdrawn completely within 150 days.

"If this war goes on another two or three years," Mrs. Jones said, "the prisoner problem will solve itself. The prisoners will all be dead."

Governor Says He's Kept Tax Level Commitments

By DON WALTON
Star Staff Writer

His days of confrontation with the 1971 Legislature finally at an end, Gov. J. James Exon Friday said he has kept his campaign pledge to hold 1972 state tax rates to 2½% sales and 13% personal income.

"I think that was the major accomplishment of the legislative session," the relaxed shirt-sleeved governor said in an interview in his office.

"We were able to essentially hold the sales and income tax rates to the limits which I proposed in the 1970 campaign."

Enactment of a county aid bill over his veto in the dying hours of the session may eventually push the income tax rate to 14%, Exon said.

But tax rates need not be set until November, "and if revenue projections pick up in the meantime, we might be able to hold to the proposed limits."

'No Time To Visit'

Exon is sorry the flurry of legislative activity during the Unicameral's final two days in session gave him no time to "visit with senators" about LB707, the measure which hiked aid to counties (with a slight increase for cities) by nearly $2 9 million.

"If I had had time, we may have been able to sustain the veto," he said, thereby holding spending strictly within his budgetary limits.

"I remember back during the campaign and at the beginning of my term there were those who said it can't be done.

"I believe that we have proved it can be done if we have a governor who will stand and take the heat and if he can get enough senators to go along on key issues.

"I couldn't do it alone."

As for legislative disappointments, Exon said "the keenest one was the failure to eliminate the sales tax on food."

But, the governor promised, he will once again submit that proposal to the 1972 session.

EXON . . . 'major accomplishment.'

Exon also plans to sponsor a limited personal property tax exemption plan, as promised, and proposals to "improve" the pollution control bill enacted this year and sharpen penalties for persons who kill or attack law enforcement officers or guards.

The latter proposal was presented to the 1971 Legislature in the form of two bills, both killed by the Judiciary Committee.

"We'll be back with that one," Exon promised.

The governor believes he has kept all his 1970 campaign commitments to the voters.

"But frankly, I was a little bit amazed to find some people who thought I didn't mean what I said in the campaign.

"I have never felt that a man could be all things to all people.

"All I do is call the shots as I see them, after careful consideration and consultation with as many individuals and groups as possible.

'Not Always Right'

"I don't claim I'm always right.

"And I am not afraid to admit I have been wrong in an earlier conclusion if I become convinced that I was."

Nebraskans are "going to continue to know where I stand, and I really believe that's all people want or can expect from a public official," Exon said.

With the Legislature gone for seven months, Exon plans to concentrate his immediate efforts on "getting in closer contact with department heads to improve the efficiency of state government," he said.

"The more I see of this position, the more I believe that a governor basically can best serve the people as a business manager bringing economy and efficiency to the affairs of state government."

Fall Deadline Indicated For Busing In South

Washington (AP) —The Nixon administration indicated Friday a fall deadline for Southern cities to comply with the recent Supreme Court decision that sanctioned crosstown busing and other measures for further school desegregation.

"Fall is in many respects the practical requirement for many school districts," Elliot L. Richardson, secretary of health, education and welfare, said in an interview.

Although qualified and carefully worded, Richardson's statement is the first public one from the administration confirming the government will require Southern cities to redraw attendance zones, bus pupils and use other methods to eliminate remaining all-black school by the opening of the next school year.

Richardson outlined a series of compliance steps, emphasizing local initiative, reliance on advisory councils in seven states and the lowest possible profile for government civil rights officials.

Southern cities will be told, for example, "you now have new tools" to finish the desegregation job and the government will help in any way it can, Richardson said. Heavy emphasis will be placed on maintaining cordial relations with Southern officials.

As part of this public relations effort, Richardson recently appointed Richard Scott Brannan to his immediate staff. Brannan is a South Carolina minister, writer and radio personality with close ties to White House aide Harry Dent.

It will be Brannan's job to convince unhappy Southerners that the administration is doing only what the courts compel it to do in requiring more desegregation, HEW officials said.

Youth Plans To Spend Summer Making Film

By MILAN WALL
Star Staff Writer

A youthful Lincolnite with a hefty interst in film-making says his penchant for creative expression has led him to make two films and set his sights on a major project this summer.

Seventeen-yer-old Mike Brown, who graduates from Lincoln Northeast High next week, already has to his credit a prize-winning animated film adapted from Charles Schulz's "Snoopy and the Red Baron."

Now Mike and about 20 friends are getting set to film what they hope will be a 30-minute full-color and sound movie, a project which they expect will take most of their spare time during the coming three months.

Won Third Place

Mike's "Snoopy" film, the product of 150 hours of Mike's work and about 75 hours by friend David Leavitt, won third place this spring at Creighton University's annual youth film festival. festival.

And that award came despite the fact that two of the judges "refused to give me any points," Mike explained, "because they though I had traced it."

Instead, however, the hundreds of drawings necessary for the brief animated feature were the result of the youth's tedious work on his own "animation board," a glass-topped, lighted box.

Leavitt, who will do the camera work for this summer's project, did the coloration and helped edit the Snoopy film.

History Of Man

Mike's first film, which he said he is now unsatisfied with, was a "sort of a film montage used to depict man's progression through history," he said, and was "correlated with his modern escalation of armaments."

The next one, he said, "will be a sort of mysterious-type film that deals with a young man's unknowing encounter with the devil." The filming will take place in and around Lincoln.

The only major obstacle at the moment is the $1,000 Mike estimates he needs to finance that project, so he and his colleagues are invstigating the possibilities of getting a grant.

Growing Interest

Mike's interst in filming grew this year, he said, as he photographed school scenes for both the yearbook and the student newspaper at Northeast.

"There's a lot of expression you can put into photographs," he said. "With films there is even more."

Mike, who lives at 7300 Aylesworth, said he has enrolled at the University of Nebraska for next fall.

"I plan to be an electrical engineer," he said, "but if I become much more interested in filming I will have to change that."

"My creative bug is what's urging me on to film making; my fascination for physics is urging me on to electrical engineering," he continued. "I don't know which one will triumph."

Colorado Boy Found Dead; Lincolnites Rescue 4 Others

Ogallala (AP) — A 12-year-old boy was found dead and four other members of his family unconscious in a cabin at Lake McConaughy resort Friday.

The victim was identified as Roy Kreifels of Lakewood, Colo. His parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Kreifels and their two other children, Kelly, 3, and Corey, 18 months, were reported in satisfactory condition Friday night.

Deputy Sheriff Ray Lloyd said it was believed carbon monoxide poisoning caused the boy's death but no final determination had been made.

Three Lincoln dentists at the resort, Drs. Gerald Tussing, W. C. Berry and Lanny McLey, carried the victims from the cabin and they were taken by the Ogallala rescue unit to Ogallala Community Hospital.

Officials said Mr. Kreifels is 42 years old and his wife, Leatrice Ann, 41.

No Highway Bonds Claimed Necessary

By VIRGIL FALLOON
Star Staff Writer

Nebraska's 20-year highway construction program can be funded within projected revenues through the 1973 fiscal year, the State Highway Commission was advised Friday.

Harris Owens, controller for the Department of Roads, said the revenue projections do not contemplate any additional revenue bond issues.

The Exon administration has maintained no additional highway bonds are needed in the foreseeable future since the $20 million issued under the Tiemann administration in 1970.

$127 Million Total

Owens said total revenue sources for the fiscal year ending June 30 are estimated at $127 million, including a carryover balance of $35 million from the previous year.

Fiscal year 1972 revenue is projected at $123 million with an estimated $23.8 million carryover balance. The projected carry-over balance at the end of fiscal 1973 is $20 million.

Owens said 80% of the department's expenditures go for highway construction as compared with 14% for highway maintenance and 6% for administration and building maintenance.

The cash outflow for highway construction is estimated at $80.7 million for the next fiscal year (1972) as compared with $75.5 million for the current fiscal year ending June 30 he said.

Payments Not Included

Owens said the cash flow projections do not include approximately $3 million in "makeup payments" to the counties over the next six years as authorized by LB844 of the 1971 Legislature, but this would not adversely affect over-all projections.

The projections, he said, do not include the possibility of a cash flow improvement of $4.5 million should the U.S. Transportation Department authorize additional construction committments for Nebraska.

However, State Engineer Thomas Doyle said the latest word, received through federal channels, is that additional highway construction authorization is not likely by June 30.

$2.8 Million Pricetag

In a requested report to the commission, Bruce Gillan, deputy engineer for planning, estimated the cost of a 50-mile highway from Oshkosh north to Neb. 2 through the Crescent Lake wildlife refuge at $2.8 million.

Possible distribution of funding, he said, might be $1 million of county federal-aid secondary funds, $1 million in state recreation road funds, $470,000 from Garden County funds and $250,000 from public lands highway funds.

However, Gillan pointed out this would be an "ambitious and optimistic program" for the county to undertake even for a 20-year period.

If the proposed 50-mile highway were made part of the state system, then its cost would be 20% more because of higher construction standards.

The commission approved location and design for 10 miles of U.S. 30 between Silver Creek and Duncan, Potter spur to I-80; Dix spur to I-80; U.S. 73-75 and Neb. 1 intersection at Murray and the Elkhorn bridge on U.S. 30 between Fremont and Arlington.

21st Body Dug Up; Police Say Machete, Club Found

Yuba City, Calif. (AP) — Sheriff's officers said Friday they found an 18-inch bolo machete, a 2½-foot wooden club and a crowbar in the home of Juan V. Corona, accused of 10 slayings in connection with the discovery of a series of bodies buried in orchards near here. At the same time, police announced a 21st body had been found.

The sheriff's officers said the club and the crowbar both had apparent bloodstains.

The list of weapons was given to newsmen along with a copy of an affidavit filed with the Sutter County Superior Court which said two meat market receipts bearing Juan Corona's name were found near a still-unidentified body in a grave.

Different receipts from the same market in Corona's name were found in Corona's bedroom dresser drawer, officers said.

Rain forced officers to suspend temporarily the search of orchard lands along the Feather River Friday. The death toll at that time stood at 20 and the sheriff said he expected more bodies would be found.

Officers said the 21st body was found in the afternoon when the rain let up and searchers resumed digging.

The search will resume Saturday morning if the weather permits. The forecast was for rain to end and skies to clear Saturday.

Police in Marysville reported they had picked up Roy DeLong, 52, a transient laborer from Nebraska, as a "material witness" and turned him over to Sutter County deputies in Yuba City, across the Feather River. Sutter County authorities refused comment.

U.S. NATO Allies Told They Must Pay More For Defense

Brussels (AP) — Two U.S. Cabinet members told America's European allies Friday that they must pay a greater share of the burden for defense.

Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird, asking for a stronger force in the Mediterranean, said a Soviet naval buildup has changed the balance of power in that vital area. He spoke at a ministerial conference of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization in Brussels.

Treasury Secretary John B. Connally, addressing a bankers conference in Munich, said America spends nearly 9% of its gross national product on defense and this contributes to the country's often criticized balance of payments deficit.

The United States will share the responsibility for providing a protective shield for Europe, Connally said, but legitimate questions arise over how the cost for such a shield should be allocated among the free world allies who benefit from it.

Laird centered his attention on the changing balance of power in the Mediterranean and pleaded for reinforcements to bolster the U.S. 6th Fleet there.

Disarmament negotiations with the Kremlin will have a chance to succeed only if NATO members maintain their strength, Laird said.

U.S. officials, reporting on Laird's speech behind closed doors, said he told the NATO ministers that the 6th Fleet — America's major deterrent force in the Mideast — must be backed more effectively. They said Laird made these points:

—Soviet naval activity in the Mediterranean has expanded from 650 ship-days — the operational presence of one ship for one day — in 1964 to 20,000 in 1970.

—America, in a countermove, will now have a helicopter carrier almost continually in the area. The Guam is there now, transporting a Marine battalion.

—The 6th Fleet also is increasing the number of days that the ships are operating and the number of hours its planes are in the air.

Suspect Sought In Omaha Killing

Omaha (UPI) — A shooting in a gas station here Friday night resulted in death to one man and a manhunt in effect for his alleged assailant.

Killed after incurring several bullet wounds to the chest was Allen Coleman, 25. Sought as a suspect was Joseph L. McDermit, 33, also of Omaha.

Homicide Lt. Foster W. Burchard, who was heading the investigation, said the shooting occurred in a Dividend Bond gas station at 48th and Leavenworth Streets at about 8 p.m.

Police said robbery was apparently not the motive. The victim and the suspect had reportedly argued in the past.

Dazed Girl, 18, Found On Street

An 18-year-old Lincoln girl, Debbie Vaughn, was found in front of her home at 4510 So. 36th around midnight Friday, police said.

The young woman was found semi-conscious in the street by a passer-by and police said her only injury appeared to be a bump on the head.

Governor Says He's Kept Tax Level Commitments

By DON WALTON
Star Staff Writer

His days of confrontation with the 1971 Legislature finally at an end, Gov. J. James Exon Friday said he has kept his campaign pledge to hold 1972 state tax rates to 2½% sales and 13% personal income.

"I think that was the major accomplishment of the legislative session," the relaxed shirt-sleeved governor said in an interview in his office.

"We were able to essentially hold the sales and income tax rates to the limits which I proposed in the 1970 campaign."

Enactment of a county aid bill over his veto in the dying hours of the session may eventually push the income tax rate to 14%, Exon said.

U.S. NATO Allies Told They Must Pay More For Defense

Brussels (AP) — Two U.S. Cabinet members told America's European allies Friday that they must pay a greater share of the burden for defense.

Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird, asking for a stronger force in the Mediterranean, said a Soviet naval buildup has changed the balance of power in that vital area. He spoke at a ministerial conference of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization in Brussels.

Treasury Secretary John B. Connally, addressing a bankers conference in Munich, said America spends nearly 9% of its gross national product on defense and this contributes to the country's often criticized balance of payments deficit.

The United States will share the responsibility for providing a protective shield for Europe, Connally said, but legitimate questions arise over how the cost for such a shield should be allocated among the free world allies who benefit from it.

Laird centered his attention on the changing balance of power in the Mediterranean and pleaded for reinforcements to bolster the U.S. 6th Fleet there.

Disarmament negotiations with the Kremlin will have a chance to succeed only if NATO members maintain their strength, Laird said.

U.S. officials, reporting on Laird's speech behind closed doors, said he told the NATO ministers that the 6th Fleet — America's major deterrent force in the Mideast — must be backed more effectively. They said Laird made these points:

—Soviet naval activity in the Mediterranean has expanded from 650 ship-days — the operational presence of one ship for one day — in 1964 to 20,000 in 1970.

—America, in a countermove, will now have a helicopter carrier almost continually in the area. The Guam is there now, transporting a Marine battalion.

—The 6th Fleet also is increasing the number of days that the ships are operating and the number of hours its planes are in the air.

Suspect Sought In Omaha Killing

Omaha (UPI) — A shooting in a gas station here Friday night resulted in death to one man and a manhunt in effect for his alleged assailant.

Killed after incurring several bullet wounds to the chest was Allen Coleman, 25. Sought as a suspect was Joseph L. McDermit, 33, also of Omaha.

Homicide Lt. Foster W. Burchard, who was heading the investigation, said the shooting occurred in a Dividend Bond gas station at 48th and Leavenworth Streets at about 8 p.m.

Police said robbery was apparently not the motive. The victim and the suspect had reportedly argued in the past.

Dazed Girl, 18, Found On Street

An 18-year-old Lincoln girl, Debbie Vaughn, was found in front of her home at 4510 So. 36th around midnight Friday, police said.

The young woman was found semi-conscious in the street by a passer-by and police said her only injury appeared to be a bump on the head.

Colorado Boy Found Dead; Lincolnites Rescue 4 Others

The victim was identified as Roy Kreifels of Lakewood, Colo. His parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Kreifels and their two other children, Kelly, 3, and Corey, 18 months, were reported in satisfactory condition Friday night.

Deputy Sheriff Ray Lloyd said it was believed carbon monoxide poisoning caused the boy's death but no final determination had been made.

Three Lincoln dentists at the resort, Drs. Gerald Tussing, W. C. Berry and Lanny McLey, carried the victims from the cabin and they were taken by the Ogallala rescue unit to Ogallala Community Hospital.

Officials said Mr. Kreifels is 42 years old and his wife, Leatrice Ann, 41.

Canada Backs Russian Call For Troop Cuts In Europe

World News

Ottawa (AP) — Canada announced support Friday for the Soviet Union's call for a reduction of armed forces in central Europe and backed a Soviet proposal for a European security conference.

The announcement, issued as Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau flew home after an 11-day visit in the U.S.S.R., said Canada and the Soviet Union hold similar views on several international issues.

Both sides, it added, "support the reduction of armed forces and armaments in areas where the military confrontation is particularly dangerous, and especially in Central Europe."

NATO Ponders Mission

In London, it was reported the North Atlantic Treaty Organization allies are considering sending a mission to Moscow to follow up the recent Soviet offer of talks on cutting East-West forces in Europe. Canada is a NATO member.

Soviet Communist Party leader Leonid I. Brezhnev spoke of Soviet readiness to negotiate reductions of national and foreign forces stationed on each side in Central Europe.

This was a belated response to a NATO proposal, made three years ago, for East-West negotiations on a program of mutual, balanced force reductions.

The matter of troop cuts is closely tied up with current Big Four talks on making life easier for the people of divided Berlin. And the West Germans, backed by their allies, have until now demanded a Berlin settlement as the price for joining in a European security conference.

The wording of Canada's announcement Friday is identical to a passage in a speech made by Brezhnev at the Soviet party's 24th congress March 24, although it omits a preceding reference to the dismantling of foreign military bases.

The announcement said Canada and the U.S.S.R. believe detente and stability in Europe should be promoted by a "properly prepared" conference on European security and cooperation, at which Canada and the United States would be represented.

Seale Free On Bond

New Haven, Conn. (AP) — Black Panther Chairman Bobby G. Seale is free on bond after 21 months in prison and two sensational mistrials.

Seale, 34-year-old cofounder of the Black Panther Party, was mobbed by about 100 jubilant Panther sympathizers as he walked out of the Federal Court Building late Friday afternoon.

The crowd included three members of the jury that deadlocked earlier this week in the mistrial of Seale and a local Panther leader on charges stemming from the 1969 killing of another Panther.

Seale kissed two of the jurors and warmly embraced the third, jury foreman Robert Gauthier.

A federal appeals judge in Chicago approved, over government objections, the release of Seale on $25,000 bond pending his appeal of a four-year contempt of court sentence stemming from the Chicago 8 conspiracy trial.

The decision to release Seale came after a New Haven Superior Court dismissed all charges against Seale and a codefendant because of the mistrial.

Human Error Said Involved In W. German Train Tragedy

Wuppertal, Germany (AP) — Authorities blamed human error Friday for West Germany's worst railroad accident, which killed 40 high school seniors on a class outing and five other persons.

Less than 24 hours after that Thursday night collision between a passenger train and a freight train, two other pasenger trains slammed into each other on a track between Essen and Bottrop.

Police said 26 persons were injured in the second head-on crash. The injured were taken to nearby hospitals and all but one were released after treatment.

Federal railroad officials do not exclude human failure as a cause for the Friday night accident, police said.

The Thursday wreck occurred shortly after 9 p.m. on a blind curve of a single-track line between the Wuppertal suburb of Oberbarmen and Radevormwald, home town of the students whose class outing ended in tragedy.

Two teachers, a chaperon and two members of the passenger train crew also were killed.

Another 26 persons, most of them students, were seriously injured.

Sixty-two boys and girls, aged 15 and 16, five teachers and the chaperon were returning on a special train from a study outing to the north German port city of Bremen.

Some Viets Speculate U.S. Goal Only To Cut Casualties Until POWs Freed

By J. T. WOLKERSTORFER

Saigon (AP) — South Vietnamese leaders have speculated this week, both privately and in print, that the United States goal in Vietnam is now only to minimize American casualties until the release of U.S. prisoners of war.

The speculation came as South Vietnamese officials prepared for the release next week of 570 North Vietnamese prisoners, amid expressions of doubt that North Vietnam has any intention of reciprocating.

The implication of this South Vietnam thinking is that if American prisoners were released, the United States would terminate its involvement here as quickly as possible — perhaps simply declaring Vietnamization a success and getting out.

The speculation has been at least partly sparked by recent statements of American officials.

An editorial in the Vietnamese-language newspaper Dan Tien said negotiations at the Paris peace talks have been stalled only because of the POW problem, and that American negotiators were concerned with little else:

"What actions will the United states take at the Paris conference table after it has reached agreement with the other side concerning the fate of its prisoners?

"The future of the Vietnam War will not be influenced by the fighting and endurance capabilities of North and South Vietnam, but will actually be decided by the requirement for the protection of the lives of U.S. soldiers."

U.S. Embassy officials, however, point out that President Nixon has pledged to keep American forces in South Vietnam until the Vietnamese people have the opportunity to freely choose their own form of government and their own fate.

Nixon Put Self On Spot

Despite his interest in minimizing U.S. casualties and getting American troops out of Vietnam, Nixon has publicly tied the withdrawal of all American forces to the release of U.S. prisoners by the North — seemingly putting himself on the spot if Hanoi should respond.

An American troop withdrawal would appear definitely in North Vietnam's interest: U.S. troops would no longer impede any aggression by the North, and the American shield would no longer give South Vietnam time to build up its own strength.

North Vietnam has expressed on more than one occasion a willingness to release American prisoners as soon as the United States fixes a date for withdrawal of all its forces.

But sources here doubt that North Vietnam is actually willing to release American prisoners in return for an immediate withdrawal or a fixed date. Apparently, they say, American POWs will be used to bargain for a favorable political settlement, possibly the ceding of one or two northern provinces to North Vietnam, possibly a coalition government, possibly even a condition as yet unknown to Western negotiators.

Saigon Claims Control Of Snuol

Saigon (AP) — North and South Vietnamese forces clashed bloodily for the third straight day in eastern Cambodia Friday and the Saigon command claimed control of the bomb-blasted town of Snuol.

At the same time, new battles flared in the central highlands of South Vietnam and near the A Shau Valley in the country's explosive northern sector.

The South Vietnamese claimed 403 enemy troops killed in the three-front fighting, a claim open to some doubt. Only a relatively few enemy weapons — 21 by official count — were recovered from the battlefields. In addition, many of the claimed North Vietnamese dead were killed by allied air strikes and artillery. The count was based on reports from aerial observers, and thus was an estimate at best.

Against these claims, South Vietnamese losses were reported officially as 12 killed and 52 wounded. Field reports told of a higher toll, notably in the fighting in eastern Cambodia.

This fighting centered at Snuol, a small rubber plantation town 10 miles west of the South Vietnamese border and 90 miles north of Saigon on Highway 7.

Lincoln Wife-Slayer's Life Term Commuted

. . . Eyen Receives Full Pardon

By United Press International

The State Pardon Board decided Friday to commute the life sentence of convicted wife-slayer Wesley O. Johnson to a term of years which would make him eligible for immediate parole.

The decision of the board was unanimous to grant the 60-year-old Lincoln man a commutation from life to 20-35 years. He was convicted of second degree murder in connection with the 1959 hammer-slaying of his wife, Eldora.

The action would permit the State Parole Board to consider a request for immediate parole at its next meeting. Parole Board Chairman John Greenholtz told the pardon unit Johnson is the "mose remorseful inmate."

Full Pardon

The board also granted a full pardon for former Lincoln dentist Michael Eyen, 59, from an assault conviction handed down by the Lancaster District Court in 1962. The action would clear the way for the man to get back his license to practice dentistry.

Several persons appeared in Eyen's behalf, including Greenholtz and Lincoln Police Chief Joe Carroll. Greenholtz told the board that Eyen, while at the state prison, taught biology to other inmates and also cut tapes for the blind.

Eyen is now a salesman for a Lincoln-based drug firm. He appeared before the board and told it: "If you help me I will not let you down."

The charge stemmed from an incident in which a man was doused with acid. At the time the trial took place, Lancaster County Atty. Paul Douglas said Eyen did not actually do it, but hired someone else.

Granted Commutation

The board also granted a commutation of sentence to Harry Dean Tatreau for immediate parole consideration purposes. His 20-35 year prison sentence was dropped to a 14-35 year term by the unit.

Tatreau, 29, of Omaha, appeared before the board once before and was granted a lesser sentence to replace the original life term handed down by the Douglas County District Court on a kidnaping charge.

Jose Torres, 39, serving a 20-year prison sentence for incest from a Keith County District Court conviction, was granted a commutation to an 8-20 year term for immediate parole consideration purposes.

When convicted, Torres was living in Ogallala. But Greenholtz said if a parole is granted Torres would be going to Texas to live with his father and brothers.

While in prison, he was allowed to attend barber school and has received his license, Greenholtz said.

Human Error Said Involved In W. German Train Tragedy

Wuppertal, Germany (AP) — Authorities blamed human error Friday for West Germany's worst railroad accident, which killed 40 high school seniors on a class outing and five other persons.

Less than 24 hours after that Thursday night collision between a passenger train and a freight train, two other pasenger trains slammed into each other on a track between Essen and Bottrop.

Police said 26 persons were injured in the second head-on crash. The injured were taken to nearby hospitals and all but one were released after treatment.

Federal railroad officials do not exclude human failure as a cause for the Friday night accident, police said.

The Thursday wreck occurred shortly after 9 p.m. on a blind curve of a single-track line between the Wuppertal suburb of Oberbarmen and Radevormwald, home town of the students whose class outing ended in tragedy.

Two teachers, a chaperon and two members of the passenger train crew also were killed.

Sixty-two boys and girls, aged 15 and 16, five teachers and the chaperon were returning on a special train from a study outing to the north German port city of Bremen.

Saigon Claims Control Of Snuol

Saigon (AP) — North and South Vietnamese forces clashed bloodily for the third straight day in eastern Cambodia Friday and the Saigon command claimed control of the bomb-blasted town of Snuol.

At the same time, new battles flared in the central highlands of South Vietnam and near the A Shau Valley in the country's explosive northern sector.

The South Vietnamese claimed 403 enemy troops killed in the three-front fighting, a claim open to some doubt. Only a relatively few enemy weapons — 21 by official count — were recovered from the battlefields. In addition, many of the claimed North Vietnamese dead were killed by allied air strikes and artillery. The count was based on reports from aerial observers, and thus was an estimate at best.

Against these claims, South Vietnamese losses were reported officially as 12 killed and 52 wounded. Field reports told of a higher toll, notably in the fighting in eastern Cambodia.

This fighting centered at Snuol, a small rubber plantation town 10 miles west of the South Vietnamese border and 90 miles north of Saigon on Highway 7.

City Children's Zoo Opens Saturday With New Bear, 3 Penguins, Swans

By LINDA SULLIVAN
Star Staff Writer

If you think the Lincoln Children's Zoo is just for kids, you haven't been there.

Saturday, the opening day of the summer, as many as 3,000 people may walk past the water-flowing dinosaur that greets the zoo's visitors. By the end of the summer, the tourists mark will probably go higher than 100,000.

Friday night, it was all adults, as members of the Arnott R. Folsom Zoological Society walked the winding sidewalks amidst fountains, flowers and free-wheeling peacocks who never yeild the right-of-way.

Frequent Patrons

The zoological society, which manages the six-year-old zoo, took a preview of what the zoo holds in store for summer visitors. What they saw was enough to insure that they will be among the most frequent of Children's Zoo patrons.

"Buster," a 20-lb., eight-month old black bear, met the crowd for the first time Friday night. After coming from Canada, Buster's stay will be for the summer only, according to zoo director Bob Spencer. You see, Buster's gonna get big.

"We don't have the facilities to handle and care for animals of the size that he'll be when he's grown. And if we don't have the facilities, we don't keep them. Quality's a lot more important to us than quantity," Spencer said.

Penguins Debut

Three Humboldt penguins also made their debut Friday, after coming all the way from South American island off the coast of Chile.

Trumpeter swans — a species declared a few years ago to be nearing extinction before it rallied to about 6,000 strong — are also at the zoo for the first time this year.

And you know what's really neat about them? You can watch their feet move under the crystal-clear water. See if you don't spend a few more minutes there than you planned watching the big webbed feet gracefully send them across the water.

Morning Theater

"Hobb's Choice" Theater is another surprise for this season's zoo-going Lincolnites. Performances will be held on Wednesday and Saturday mornings this summer.

There's only one thing that prevents the zoo from making the grade. Smell. Not that it doesn't smell, because it does. It smells great, thanks to the many varieties of flowers growing throughout the "animal garden."

The zoo opens this year two days earlier than usual. It will be open Tuesdays through Saturdays from 10 a.m. until 5 p.m. and on Sundays and holidays from 10-6 p.m. The children's train which runs around the zoo calls it quits 30 minutes after the zoo closes each day.

FBI Boss Claims Free Enterprise Being Threatened

New York (AP) —FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover says youthful extremists have issued a "death warrant" against the American free enterprise system.

He described them as a "rapidly growing extremist movement, mostly young people, coming largely from the so-called new left, but also including clements of the old left, the far right, and an indeterminate number of disaffected moderates, who view American business as a hypocritical and evil institution with no moral right to live."

Writing in the May issue of the magazine Finance, Hoover said weapons of the extremists include vandalism and arson against business.

"To these individuals," the FBI director continued, "business is an 'enemy,' exploiting the people, polluting the environment, enslaving its employes. In their eyes, businessmen seek an unconscionable profit at the expense of the consumer. . "

Additional Platte Storage Dam Urged

By DON BEMAN
United Press International

Gov. J. James Exon said Friday he plans to seek immediate congressional help to ease the Platte River flood situation, and also a long-range solution of building an additional storage dam in Nebraska somewhere below Lake McConaughy.

In an interview, Exon said the plans resulted from Thursday's trip to the western end of the state, now experiencing flood conditions, plus talks with state, federal and local officials.

Letters to Nebraska's congressional delegation, plus those from the other states involved, would be sent out soon seeking their support of the plans, the governor said.

The first priority, he said, would be to seek congressional approval of a $1.5 million appropriation to enlarge the storage capacity of a dam in Wyoming.

"This is a relatively small amount of money when you compare it with the ravages being contemplated if nothing at all is done," Exon said.

"And not just in Nebraska either I've been told Casper (Wyoming) is in danger of losing their sewage treatment facilities," he added.

The possibility of enlarging the capacity of the dam named the Semino and located on the upper reaches of the North Platte in Wyoming, was included in a study Exon said he learned of recently.

The study showed that the $1.5 million expenditure could increase the capacity of the dam by one-third, the governor said, which would provide the "quick relief" needed to stave off the predicted flooding of "disaster" proportions along the Platte.

The dam is the first in a string of five operated by the U.S. Reclamation Bureau used primarily for providing irrigation water, but also used as water control measures.

It is located in the Rocky Mountain region and takes care of the initial runoff from the snow and ice melt. But Civil Defense officials have reported it is now at top capacity.

"When these dams reach capacity," Exon said "They have no choice but to release the water, regardless of the conditions below, or lose the dam."

Without the capacity increase, he said, the probability of flooding along the Platte is expected to continue until August.

And at the same time, the governor sad "it isn't too soon to start looking into the future," and suggested the need of another storage dam.

"The only long-range solution seems to be an additional storage facility" Exon said.

It should be located below Lake McConaughy so its waters could be slowly released over the winter months, allowing it to handle the major portion of the spring melt and the rainfall, he said.

Opinion Asked On Constitutionality Of Statewide Technical College Bill

Sidney (AP)— The attorney general has been asked for an opinion on constitutionality of the bill creating a statewide system of community technical colleges.

LB759 would set up eight districts, each of which would offer junior college education and vocational-technical schooling by 1975.

The opinion was asked by State Sen. Robert L. Clark of Sidney. He said that under the measure the Western Nebraska Technical College at Sidney and Nebraska Western College at Scottsbluff would be thrown into the same district, and would be administered by a district board chosen from the counties involved.

Clark said he doubted whether the legislature has the authority to take a state-owned college and arbitrarily hand it over to a district board. The same situation would apply to the school at Milford, the only other state-supported vocational technical college in Nebraska.

Hijacked Jet Lands At Nassau

Nassau, Bahamas (AP) — An Eastern Airlines 727 jetliner commandeered by a man "carrying a large quantity of explosives" and a shotgun made a safe landing in Nassau Saturday morning.

"We still don't know what he's going to do," said an Eastern spokesman.

The plane carried three hostage crewmen as well as the hijacker. The New York to Nassau flight was made after the bomb carrier held police at bay for 90 minutes at New York's LaGuardia Airport.

Police said the man's wife and child were brought to the scene — at his request — but he refused to talk to them. After the plane took off, the wife tried to dissuade him over the ground-to-air communications system from the LaGuardia control tower.

The man, whom police identified as James Bennett, 39 of Commack, N.Y., boarded the plane with 131 other passengers at Miami, Fla., at 7:30 p.m. Authorities said he produced a gun and ordered the pilot to fly to New York, which was the plane's scheduled destination.

Police said Bennett is a former New York City motorcycle policeman who was released for "medical reasons."

Deputy Police Chief Joseph Collins, commander of the motorcycle unit, was at the airport in a vain attempt to dissuade Bennett, who had been with the force more than 10 years, from his scheme.

Recently Opened Pershing School At Beatrice Closes

Beatrice (AP)— The Pershing School of Arts and Sciences of Royalton College, which opened in an old drugstore building on the Beatrice main street in March, has closed its doors.

Operations ended this week and faculty members said they were unaware of any plans to reopen the school that admissions officer Alberta Poland had said it was hoped could give students "more social freedom as well as more academic freedom."

No reasons were given for the closure here. But A. Anthony Doria, president and founder of Royalton at its home base in South Royalton, Vt., currently is facing four counts of stock fraud, according to Windsor County, Vt., State's Atty. Frank G. Mahady.

Mahady said Doria hasn't yet been arraigned and that negotiations are under way with Doria's attorney.

When Royalton's branch here opened, it had an enrollment of 14 students and a handful of faculty members, most of them hired after their jobs at John J. Pershing College here suddenly vanished when the 4½ year-old school shut down because of financial difficulties.

Pershing College had 385 students when it closed and its five modern buildings were left vacant just west of the city.

With that shutdown admissions officers from a variety of schools descended on Beatrice in an effort to sign up the students.

But Royalton went further and rented a long-vacant building once occupied by Axtell Drug Co. and opened a new school.

Restraining Order Obtained Against K-N Gas Rate Raise

Hastings — Officers of the Nebraska Natural Gas Irrigators Association have obtained a temporary restraining order in the Adams County District Court against a proposed 32.4% increase in Kansas-Nebraska Natural Gas Company rates which was scheduled to go into effect June 1. The lawsuit was filed on behalf of more than 1,000 farm families that are using natural gas for their irrigation pumps.

Ted Regier of Aurora and Roger Kreutz of Giltner, the president and secretary-treasurer of the Natural Gas Irrigators, alleged in their petition that the rate increase from 34c to 45c was "grossly excessive, unreasonable, arbitrary and confiscatory." The suit asked for the temporary restraining order, a declaratory judgment that the rate increase is unreasonable, and a permanent injunction.

Judge Norris Chadderdon, who entered the restraining order, set a hearing on a temporary injunction for June 21 at 10 a m. He also set bond on the restraining order at $10,000.

Additional Platte Storage Dam Urged

By DON BEMAN
United Press International

Gov. J. James Exon said Friday he plans to seek immediate congressional help to ease the Platte River flood situation, and also a long-range solution of building an additional storage dam in Nebraska somewhere below Lake McConaughy.

In an interview, Exon said the plans resulted from Thursday's trip to the western end of the state, now experiencing flood conditions, plus talks with state, federal and local officials.

Letters to Nebraska's congressional delegation, plus those from the other states involved, would be sent out soon seeking their support of the plans, the governor said.

The first priority, he said, would be to seek congressional approval of a $1.5 million appropriation to enlarge the storage capacity of a dam in Wyoming.

"This is a relatively small amount of money when you compare it with the ravages being contemplated if nothing at all is done," Exon said.

"And not just in Nebraska either. I've been told Casper (Wyoming) is in danger of losing their sewage treatment facilities," he added.

The possibility of enlarging the capacity of the dam named the Semino and located on the upper reaches of the North Platte in Wyoming, was included in a study Exon said he learned of recently.

The study showed that the $1.5 million expenditure could increase the capacity of the dam by one-third, the governor said, which would provide the "quick relief" needed to stave off the predicted flooding of "disaster" proportions along the Platte.

The dam is the first in a string of five operated by the U.S. Reclamation Bureau used primarily for providing irrigation water, but also used as water control measures.

It is located in the Rocky Mountain region and takes care of the initial runoff from the snow and ice melt. But Civil Defense officials have reported it is now at top capacity.

"When these dams reach capacity," Exon said. "They have no choice but to release the water, regardless of the conditions below, or lose the dam."

Without the capacity increase, he said, the probability of flooding along the Platte is expected to continue until August.

And at the same time, the governor sad "it isn't too soon to start looking into the future," and suggested the need of another storage dam.

"The only long-range solution seems to be an additional storage facility " Exon said.

It should be located below Lake McConaughy so its waters could be slowly released over the winter months, allowing it to handle the major portion of the spring melt and the rainfall, he said.

Opinion Asked On Constitutionality Of Statewide Technical College Bill

Sidney (AP)— The attorney general has been asked for an opinion on constitutionality of the bill creating a statewide system of community technical colleges.

LB759 would set up eight districts, each of which would offer junior college education and vocational-technical schooling by 1975.

The opinion was asked by State Sen. Robert L. Clark of Sidney. He said that under the measure the Western Nebraska Technical College at Sidney and Nebraska Western College at Scottsbluff would be thrown into the same district, and would be administered by a district board chosen from the counties involved.

Clark said he doubted whether the legislature has the authority to take a state-owned college and arbitrarily hand it over to a district board. The same situation would apply to the school at Milford, the only other state-supported vocational technical college in Nebraska.

Hijacked Jet Lands At Nassau

Nassau, Bahamas (AP) — An Eastern Airlines 727 jetliner commandeered by a man "carrying a large quantity of explosives" and a shotgun made a safe landing in Nassau Saturday morning.

"We still don't know what he's going to do," said an Eastern spokesman.

The plane carried three hostage crewmen as well as the hijacker. The New York to Nassau flight was made after the bomb carrier held police at bay for 90 minutes at New York's LaGuardia Airport.

Police said the man's wife and child were brought to the scene — at his request — but he refused to talk to them. After the plane took off, the wife tried to dissuade him over the ground-to-air communications system from the LaGuardia control tower.

The man, whom police identified as James Bennett, 39 of Commack, N.Y., boarded the plane with 131 other passengers at Miami, Fla., at 7:30 p.m. Authorities said he produced a gun and ordered the pilot to fly to New York, which was the plane's scheduled destination.

Police said Bennett is a former New York City motorcycle policeman who was released for "medical reasons."

Deputy Police Chief Joseph Collins, commander of the motorcycle unit, was at the airport in a vain attempt to dissuade Bennett, who had been with the force more than 10 years, from his scheme.

Recently Opened Pershing School At Beatrice Closes

Beatrice (AP)— The Pershing School of Arts and Sciences of Royalton College, which opened in an old drugstore building on the Beatrice main street in March, has closed its doors.

Operations ended this week and faculty members said they were unaware of any plans to reopen the school that admissions officer Alberta Poland had said it was hoped could give students "more social freedom as well as more academic freedom."

No reasons were given for the closure here. But A. Anthony Doria, president and founder of Royalton at its home base in South Royalton, Vt., currently is facing four counts of stock fraud, according to Windsor County, Vt., State's Atty. Frank G. Mahady.

Mahady said Doria hasn't yet been arraigned and that negotiations are under way with Doria's attorney.

When Royalton's branch here opened, it had an enrollment of 14 students and a handful of faculty members, most of them hired after their jobs at John J. Pershing College here suddenly vanished when the 4½ year-old school shut down because of financial difficulties.

Pershing College had 385 students when it closed and its five modern buildings were left vacant just west of the city.

With that shutdown admissions officers from a variety of schools descended on Beatrice in an effort to sign up the students.

But Royalton went further and rented a long-vacant building once occupied by Axtell Drug Co. and opened a new school.

Restraining Order Obtained Against K-N Gas Rate Raise

Hastings — Officers of the Nebraska Natural Gas Irrigators Association have obtained a temporary restraining order in the Adams County District Court against a proposed 32.4% increase in Kansas-Nebraska Natural Gas Company rates which was scheduled to go into effect June 1. The lawsuit was filed on behalf of more than 1,000 farm families that are using natural gas for their irrigation pumps.

Ted Regier of Aurora and Roger Kreutz of Giltner, the president and secretary-treasurer of the Natural Gas Irrigators, alleged in their petition that the rate increase from 34c to 45c was "grossly excessive, unreasonable, arbitrary and confiscatory." The suit asked for the temporary restraining order, a declaratory judgment that the rate increase is unreasonable, and a permanent injunction.

Judge Norris Chadderdon, who entered the restraining order, set a hearing on a temporary injunction for June 21 at 10 a.m. He also set bond on the restraining order at $10,000.

EVENTS IN PERSPECTIVE

By WILLIAM O. DOBLER

Whether you like or approve of State Senator Ernie Chambers or not makes no difference; it is the validity of his position that counts. Speaking of minority groups and the poor in the light of his service in the past session of the Legislature, Chambers was quoted in The Star as saying:

"I admit that I have always felt a lot of bitterness about the way we have been treated. That bitterness has increased. I can see now that a lot of things which would be beneficial to thousands of people are not being done because of legislative pettiness or indifference."

The 1971 Legislature, he said, showed little or no concern for problems of hunger, race, poverty, public health, unemployment or the quality of education.

To further spotlight his attitudes, Chambers might become the first black man ever to seek a U S. Senate seat from Nebraska. If so, he said he would not expect to win but would intend only to demonstrate that "there are people who will rally around and support a man of the people, even if he's been called destructive and radical by certain special interest groups."

What is important to understand is that Chambers does indeed speak for thousands of Nebraskans. There are not enough of such Nebraskans, probably, to get the Omahan elected to the Senate but there could well be enough for him to make a meaningful showing at the polls.

We do not agree with all the specifics of the case Chambers builds against the legislative process but this represents a distinction of means, not a conflict of ends. The ends of which we speak may all be boiled down into one word — equality

This means a state of being in which all people have at least a minimum share in the wealth of the nation. In a sense, this is a kind of utopia that will never be reached but there is no question that the situation can, should be and will have to become better than it is today.

What Chambers sees is the exercise of democracy without anyone's getting his hands dirty. It is a nice, clean thing where a lot of people involved go about scratching each other's backs.

He sees a legislative process that really does not get down and rub elbows with the poor and the underprivileged and indeed, has no concept at all of what it is like to be poor or to be discriminated against. On the other hand, this same process works hand in glove with big business and big monied interests.

It is getting to be a kind of meaningless thing to refer to big monied interests but the term still has meaning. It has meaning in terms of those who have the financial resources to pursue their concerns in the legislative halls of the state and the nation.

It includes those individuals, firms and institutions that can hire the legal minds, the public relations men, the general lobbyists and others to effectively represent them in the inner circles of government. It includes those whose financial resources and their use thereof put them on intimate terms with the men who make the laws of the land.

In this process, the interests of these influential people are protected and the advantages they have held secure for them. But nobody represents the poor. nobody represents minority groups. the uneducated, the unemployed, etc.

Such interests as those are assisted only as a matter of expediency and then only because of an ultimate benefit to others in society. Too often, our assistance is given to those who need it, not for any humanitarian reason, but because we want to get them out of our hair or off our backs.

Chambers may want to bring about greater equality in a way in which not all of us would agree but he is absolutely right in saying that equality is not a prime consideration of government in general. He is right, too, in the inference he leaves that this is going to have to change if the nation is ever to find any internal peace.

Despite all the fanfare and homage to equality, the ranks of the poor continue to increase and the status of minority groups remains largely static. Privilege, on the other hand, continues to be a dominant factor in public affairs.

New Group Joining The Fuddle Factory

WASHINGTON — The complete dimensions of the federal government are known to no man. The federal apparatus is composed of a myriad of entities. Each is a moving part—a wheel or a gear—which often moves in a different direction, thereby countering one another.

For all of its movement. therefore, the Federal Fuddle Factory usually goes nowhere.

Esoteric organizations such as the Jackson's Hole Cooperative Elks Studies Committee are hidden in the bureaucratic woodwork. The more obscure its function, the more pompous its bureaucrats usually are

A relatively new entity, known as the American Revolution Bicentennial Commission, has set up shop across the street from the White House. It is populated with high-paid, hifaluting bureaucrats who work in magnificent surroundings with chauffeur-driven cars, furnished by the Pentagon, to whisk them around Washington on their mysterious missions.

Although the commission's only purpose is to plan an appropriate celebration of the 200th anniversary of the Revolution, the meetings are planned in the same fastidious detail that a Big Four summit conference might receive.

The commission was meeting recently, for instance, in a Dallas hotel. The preparations were so elaborate that they were printed in a green-bound booklet.

The seating arrangements for the various sessions were set forth in detailed, annotated, hand-drawn sketches which included even the locations for the American and Texas flags.

To make sure the chairs, tables, lectern and ash trays were in their proper places, the handwritten notes in the margin explained that "Capt Allendorfer of the ARBC staff will be present when room is set up."

This important assignment was entrusted to Capt. Harry Allendorfer, a $25,000-a-year Navy man who, along with his secretary, were loaned to the commission by the Defense Department.

As befitted his important chair-arranging duties, he was given the imposing title of "Chief of the Executive Secretariat."

The green booklet also devoted considerable space to coffee breaks, which seemed to be more frequent than any other activity.

The booklet contained such additional specifications as: "All tables to be covered with gold tablecloths and, where appropriate, to have gold skirts."

Truly, the commission deserves its place in the Fuddle Factory.

FOOTNOTE: So that no flags or gold tablecloths would be out of place at the meeting, Captain Allendorfer flew back and forth to Dallas at Pentagon expense.

System Breaks Down

The wheels of justice have seemingly ground to a halt in California, where no fewer than six judges have sat in on the murder, kidnapping and conspiracy case involving Angela Davis and Ruchell Magee. Pre-trial motions are still being heard in the months-long case and Miss Davis hasn't even been able to enter a plea because of her co-defendant's challenges of judges.

Magee, taking his cue from the Chicago Seven, has filled the courtroom with obscenities and directed tirades at the judge and other officers of the court After his latest outburst—kicking and spitting on his own attorney—Magee was taken from the courtroom in chains. He is using the claim of political and racial repression to the utmost.

And Miss Davis has become an international celebrity since the indictment was brought against her. The ensuing outcry has put what really happened entirely out of perspective.

The judge's dismissal of murder-kidnap charges against Black Panthers Bobby Seale and Ericka Huggins in Connecticut is also an indication that the system is breaking down in certain instances. The judge threw out the case against the defendants after a mistrial instead of ordering a new trial and change of venue, deciding that jurors unprejudiced by adverse publicity could not be found. Publicity, it should be observed, that is created by the defendants themselves and that has little or nothing to do with the crimes they were charged with.

So Alex Rackley was killed in Conecticut and Judge Haley and three others were killed in California. The killings seem almost secondary now. It is hard to fault the judges or the laws, but more perseverance is in order in the determination of what person or persons are guilty of the crimes and what price will be paid for them. Somebody is getting away with murder.

A Hare-Brained Scheme

Mayor John V. Lindsay is reported to have come up with the only really fresh idea at the Indianapolis International Conference on Cities, sponsored by President Nixon for all North Atlantic Treaty Organization members. His idea was that some 20 select metropolitan areas of the nation be chartered as "national cities."

In this way, it was explained, the nation's largest cities would be freed of hostile state governments, and federal responsibility for large-scale urban development would be formalized. It may have been a fresh idea but it still smells.

What it smells like is a giant boondoggle to drain the federal treasury, to have the people of all the little towns and cities of America pouring money into New York City, Chicago, San Francisco, Cleveland, Pittsburgh, and other giant urban centers of the nation. That is a fine thing for them but it is a rotten thing for the people who would pick up the tab.

They say that popular election of the president would destroy our federal system of government. Popular election wouldn't put a dent in the federal system compared to what the Lindsay proposal would do.

Lindsay would have the big cities of America pulling out of the states of which they are now a member. Put in a light you can understand, it would be like Omaha and Lincoln having no responsibility for the rest of the state of Nebraska. The thing that is really needed is greater responsibility on their part.

The trouble with big urban America is that it is not getting to the wealth that is on its doorstep. New York City has more personal and institutional wealth than any city in the United States but it is going broke. Why? It may not be the most efficient government in the world, but the real problem is that it is not tapping all that wealth.

The real problem is that it is relying, as all other forms of government are doing, on a tax system that has its real strength in those people who can least afford to pay. The really big money is being written off through depreciation allowances, capital gains write-offs, so-called business losses, deferred income schemes, stock options, fictional business expenses, fringe benefits, etc. Close the tax loopholes and New York City and every other governmental entity would have all their problems solved.

JAMES RESTON

McCarthy Talks Of Third-Party Movements; But For Him, Starting Of One Too Strenuous

NEW YORK — "The most momentous fact about the pattern of American politics," the late Clinton Rossiter wrote at the beginning of the 1960's, "is that we live under a persistent, obdurate, one might almost say tyrannical two-party system. We have the Republicans, and we have the Democrats, and we have almost no one else . . ."

No one else, that is, except George Wallace of Alabama, and Eugene McCarthy of Minnesota, who told a cheering audience of 25,000 in Bloomington, Minn., the other day that if the two major parties don't nominate presidential candidates in 1972 committed to ending the war, reforming American politics and reordering American political priorities, "then let us have a new party, a new policy, and a true America."

The young anti-war audience in Minnesota, according to Johnny Appleseed, thought this was not only a great idea but maybe an offer by the poet-maverick of the Democratic party to lead the disenchanted plague-on-both-your-houses voters against the two-party "tyranny."

The organization Democrats thought this was a capricious and irresponsible bid by McCarthy to regain the political prominence and youthful following he had in the presidential election of 1968. And of course, the organization Republicans were delighted, feeling that a third party movement by Wallace and a fourth party movement by McCarthy would almost certainly assure the re-election of President Nixon.

Well, there is probably less here than meets the eye. McCarthy, surfacing a couple of days later in Philadelphia, treated all the fuss with gentle mockery. He hadn't said anything new, he said. He wasn't offering to start a third or fourth party. He was just going around saying what he thought, as usual, and the press as usual, he added, was turning a comment into a campaign. People were odd, he said, and he should know.

McCarthy is an interesting symbol of the dilemma of American politics. He sees what's wrong with American parties, and policies, but won't work within the parties to set things right, and can't bring himself to work hard enough outside the parties to define the "new policy for the true America" which might create a new majority of independents and knock the old parties over.

The danger is that he will confuse poetry and politics, trifle with the people who are disillusioned with the old parties but put nothing in their place. He is affronted by the idea, and rightly so, that this great country should have to choose among Nixon, Reagan, Rockefeller, or Agnew on the Republican side, and Muskie, whom he doesn't like, Humphrey, McGovern, Kennedy or Bayh on the Democratic side, and pass up outsiders like John Gardner, John Lindsay, Kingman Brewster and a lot of other talented but unconsidered independents, including, as he no doubt thinks, Eugene McCarthy.

It is a fair enough point. It supports Rossiter's thesis about the domination and even "tyranny" of the two-party system. But Gardner, Lindsay, Brewster and the other disenchanted independents at least know they can't beat the party system, or start third parties without weakening the Democrats and re-electing President Nixon. And McCarthy is not so sure about this.

At least he seems to be thinking that maybe by talking about a third party, he could create one or scare the Democrats into reforming their politics and reordering their programs for the nation, or any way, as the philosopher sage, have part of the action, which for a lonely man is important, and easier than writing good poetry or leading a new movement for a new and triumphant age.

Third parties in America have often been the intellectual pathfinders for the two old parties and while losing politically, have influenced and even imposed their ideas on the winners. Gene McCarthy probably cannot do this now.

Still, he is an attractive, thoughtful, detached and eloquent man, with a contempt for the old parties and a vision of the world which could be powerful factors in a third-party movement. But leading third party movements requires the animal energy, and personal ambition of a George Wallace, and this does not comport with McCarthy's lonely and melancholy life.

He will talk about third party movements, and yearn for new philosophies, but defining the philosophies and leading the new political movements is too strenuous and ambiguous for him. He is too private a man for all that.

Freedom, Draft

Lincoln, Neb.

All of the debate in the U.S. Senate on troops for NATO and a definite date for withdrawal from Vietnam makes it easy to forget that the bill under consideration is to extend the President's authority to induct men under the Selective Service Law. This is a very important issue in its own right.

Now is the time to end not only conscription of men for the military but also the whole Selective Service system. The idea that a few draftee privates somehow keep us from having an army of "mercenaries" and provide civilian control of the military is obvious nonsense. Never in our history has the military had the influence that it has had since 1948 when we started the peace-time draft. If we want civilian control of the military, it must come from effective leadership at the top. If the President and the Congress will not do their jobs, we face disaster of one kind or another.

But the principal reason to abolish the draft is still one of freedom, as Daniel Webster recognized 150 years ago, when he challenged the constitutionality of conscription: "A free government with an uncontrolled power of military conscription is the most ridiculous and abominable contradiction and nonsense that ever entered into the head of man"

DAN W. SCHLITT

The Inheritance

Bennet, Neb.

A few years ago only the communists in America insisted on our withdrawal from Vietnam. Today they are joined by a large number of ordinary Americans who have been cleverly confused about the Vietnam situation.

According to the Geneva agreement of July, 1954, Vietnam was divided at the 17th Parallel. Specific provisions were made for outlawing any further hostilities in either area. In 1959 Hanoi decided to open a large-scale military campaign against South Vietnam. While they could, nearly one million North Vietnamese fled south, and informed sources estimate that one-half million were killed trying to escape. Are we going to abandon these unfortunate people to this cruel fate? We didn't start this war. Why don't these brain-washed banner-carrying confused marchers go to North Vietnam and do some demonstrating there? Pull the North Vietnamese boys out and there will be peace. We are paying today for the immoral folly of having surrendered eastern Europe to Stalin, China to Mao, and North Vietnam to Ho. Our final installment on those debts still lies far beyond the horizon.

Peace is the work of justice. Those who are willing to try to purchase it at the price of other people's oppression do not deserve peace, nor is there any reasonable reason to think they are ever going to achieve it. What is more likely is that the oppression they now so lightly dismiss will one day be their inheritance.

Time To Speak

Lincoln, Neb.

If any young adults of Nebraska are now or plan ever to become parents, they should be making themselves heard to the governor and members of the Legislature regarding the decision to close the Orthopedic Hospital.

The tragedy of a child born with a cleft palate, malformed or missing limbs, or a child who grows up with a twisted back or becomes paralyzed—such tragedy can be exceeded only by refusal to help these children. Yet if the phase-out of the Orthopedic is carried out as scheduled, many of these children will go unaided because the costs of care will have become prohibitive.

Unless you have a crippled child, it probably has never really occurred to you that you might one day. But if you think it can't happen to you, then you are just like all the parents of all the children who have been cared for at the Orthopedic Hospital.

Would anyone want a child of his to be unnecessarily crippled all his life, simply because he failed to speak out now—and then couldn't afford the medical costs later?

LEWIS TEMPLE

They Had A Dream

Hundreds of American whaling ships manned by brawny seafaring men plied the chilly waters of the North Atlantic during the 19th Century

It was dangerous business, but it was profitable. And it was made even more profitable by an illiterate blacksmith who never learned to write his own name.

Though he never went to sea, Lewis Temple was known by whaling men far and wide and his name lived on long after he was buried.

At his forge in New Bedford, Mass., Temple fashioned an almost escape proof harpoon which came to be known universally as the "Temple toggle."

The Temple toggle was viewed by experts as the "most important single invention in the whole history of whaling."

It became the standard whaling iron and remained so until the industry died out at the turn of the century. The Temple toggle was never improved in any basic way.

Whaling then was one of the leading industries of Massachusetts, providing thousands of jobs for seamen many of whom were black.

Temple, who was born in Richmond, Va , in 1800, had made his way north to New Bedford where he married Mary Clark of Maryland in 1829. The records identified Temple as a "free Negro."

By 1863, Temple was operating his own whalecraft shop on Coffin's Wharf. He worked hard at his trade and in 1845 built his own blacksmith shop on the Walnut St. Wharf

Temple was a sober and industrious citizen. He paid his poll tax every year, supported the temperance movement, and not only served the whaling trade but also did general smithy work and forged tools for city maintenance jobs.

He and his family lived in a rented house near Temple's shop. It was in this shop, in 1848, that Temple developed his toggle.

Temple's toggle had hinged points held in place by a wooden peg. When the whale attempted to escape, the pressure snapped the peg and the points spread open and became firmly anchored in the blubber. Few got away.

Temple prospered and in 1854 arranged for construction of a new brick blacksmith shop near Steamboat Wharf.

It was underway when Temple tripped over a plank on the sidewalk one night and was critically injured. He died on May 18, 1854, at the age of 54.

EVENTS IN PERSPECTIVE

By WILLIAM O. DOBLER

Whether you like or approve of State Senator Ernie Chambers or not makes no difference; it is the validity of his position that counts. Speaking of minority groups and the poor in the light of his service in the past session of the Legislature, Chambers was quoted in The Star as saying:

"I admit that I have always felt a lot of bitterness about the way we have been treated. That bitterness has increased. I can see now that a lot of things which would be beneficial to thousands of people are not being done because of legislative pettiness or indifference."

The 1971 Legislature, he said, showed little or no concern for problems of hunger, race, poverty, public health, unemployment or the quality of education.

To further spotlight his attitudes, Chambers might become the first black man ever to seek a U.S. Senate seat from Nebraska. If so, he said he would not expect to win but would intend only to demonstrate that "there are people who will rally around and support a man of the people, even if he's been called destructive and radical by certain special interest groups."

What is important to understand is that Chambers does indeed speak for thousands of Nebraskans. There are not enough of such Nebraskans, probably, to get the Omahan elected to the Senate but there could well be enough for him to make a meaningful showing at the polls.

We do not agree with all the specifics of the case Chambers builds against the legislative process but this represents a distinction of means, not a conflict of ends. The ends of which we speak may all be boiled down into one word — equality.

This means a state of being in which all people have at least a minimum share in the wealth of the nation. In a sense, this is a kind of utopia that will never be reached but there is no question that the situation can, should be and will have to become better than it is today.

What Chambers sees is the exercise of democracy without anyone's getting his hands dirty. It is a nice, clean thing where a lot of people involved go about scratching each other's backs.

He sees a legislative process that really does not get down and rub elbows with the poor and the underprivileged and indeed, has no concept at all of what it is like to be poor or to be discriminated against. On the other hand, this same process works hand in glove with big business and big monied interests.

It is getting to be a kind of meaningless thing to refer to big monied interests but the term still has meaning. It has meaning in terms of those who have the financial resources to pursue their concerns in the legislative halls of the state and the nation.

It includes those individuals, firms and institutions that can hire the legal minds, the public relations men, the general lobbyists and others to effectively represent them in the inner circles of government. It includes those whose financial resources and their use thereof put them on intimate terms with the men who make the laws of the land.

In this process, the interests of these influential people are protected and the advantages they have held secure for them. But nobody represents the poor, nobody represents minority groups, the uneducated, the unemployed, etc.

Such interests as those are assisted only as a matter of expediency and then only because of an ultimate benefit to others in society. Too often, our assistance is given to those who need it, not for any humanitarian reason, but because we want to get them out of our hair or off our backs.

Chambers may want to bring about greater equality in a way in which not all of us would agree but he is absolutely right in saying that equality is not a prime consideration of government in general. He is right, too, in the inference he leaves that this is going to have to change if the nation is ever to find any internal peace.

Despite all the fanfare and homage to equality, the ranks of the poor continue to increase and the status of minority groups remains largely static. Privilege, on the other hand, continues to be a dominant factor in public affairs.

System Breaks Down

The wheels of justice have seemingly ground to a halt in California, where no fewer than six judges have sat in on the murder, kidnapping and conspiracy case involving Angela Davis and Ruchell Magee. Pre-trial motions are still being heard in the months-long case and Miss Davis hasn't even been able to enter a plea because of her co-defendant's challenges of judges.

Magee, taking his cue from the Chicago Seven, has filled the courtroom with obscenities and directed tirades at the judge and other officers of the court. After his latest outburst—kicking and spitting on his own attorney—Magee was taken from the courtroom in chains. He is using the claim of political and racial repression to the utmost.

And Miss Davis has become an international celebrity since the indictment was brought against her. The ensuing outcry has put what really happened entirely out of perspective.

The judge's dismissal of murder-kidnap charges against Black Panthers Bobby Seale and Ericka Huggins in Connecticut is also an indication that the system is breaking down in certain instances. The judge threw out the case against the defendants after a mistrial instead of ordering a new trial and change of venue, deciding that jurors unprejudiced by adverse publicity could not be found. Publicity, it should be observed, that is created by the defendants themselves and that has little or nothing to do with the crimes they were charged with.

So Alex Rackley was killed in Conecticut and Judge Haley and three others were killed in California. The killings seem almost secondary now. It is hard to fault the judges or the laws, but more perseverance is in order in the determination of what person or persons are guilty of the crimes and what price will be paid for them. Somebody is getting away with murder.

A Hare-Brained Scheme

Mayor John V. Lindsay is reported to have come up with the only really fresh idea at the Indianapolis International Conference on Cities, sponsored by President Nixon for all North Atlantic Treaty Organization members. His idea was that some 20 select metropolitan areas of the nation be chartered as "national cities."

In this way, it was explained, the nation's largest cities would be freed of hostile state governments, and federal responsibility for large-scale urban development would be formalized. It may have been a fresh idea but it still smells.

What it smells like is a giant boondoggle to drain the federal treasury, to have the people of all the little towns and cities of America pouring money into New York City, Chicago, San Francisco, Cleveland, Pittsburgh, and other giant urban centers of the nation. That is a fine thing for them but it is a rotten thing for the people who would pick up the tab.

They say that popular election of the president would destroy our federal system of government. Popular election wouldn't put a dent in the federal system compared to what the Lindsay proposal would do.

Lindsay would have the big cities of America pulling out of the states of which they are now a member. Put in a light you can understand, it would be like Omaha and Lincoln having no responsibility for the rest of the state of Nebraska. The thing that is really needed is greater responsibility on their part.

The trouble with big urban America is that it is not getting to the wealth that is on its doorstep. New York City has more personal and institutional wealth than any city in the United States but it is going broke. Why? It may not be the most efficient government in the world, but the real problem is that it is not tapping all that wealth.

The real problem is that it is relying, as all other forms of government are doing, on a tax system that has its real strength in those people who can least afford to pay. The really big money is being written off through depreciation allowances, capital gains write-offs, so-called business losses, deferred income schemes, stock options, fictional business expenses, fringe benefits, etc. Close the tax loopholes and New York City and every other governmental entity would have all their problems solved.

Letters To The Editor

Brevity in letters is requested but length in itself will have no bearing on publication. Writers are advised that needless details and repetitious matter will be edited out of letters. Too frequent contributions from one person on the same subject may be rejected. All letters must be accompanied by writer's true name but may be submitted for publication under a pen name or initials. However, letters will be printed under a pen name or initials at the editor's discretion.

Freedom, Draft

Lincoln, Neb.

All of the debate in the U.S. Senate on troops for NATO and a definite date for withdrawal from Vietnam makes it easy to forget that the bill under consideration is to extend the President's authority to induct men under the Selective Service Law. This is a very important issue in its own right.

Now is the time to end not only conscription of men for the military but also the whole Selective Service system. The idea that a few draftee privates somehow keep us from having an army of "mercenaries" and provide civilian control of the military is obvious nonsense. Never in our history has the military had the influence that it has had since 1948 when we started the peace-time draft. If we want civilian control of the military, it must come from effective leadership at the top. If the President and the Congress will not do their jobs, we face disaster of one kind or another.

But the principal reason to abolish the draft is still one of freedom, as Daniel Webster recognized 150 years ago, when he challenged the constitutionality of conscription: "A free government with an uncontrolled power of military conscription is the most ridiculous and abominable contradiction and nonsense that ever entered into the head of man."

The Inheritance

Bennet, Neb.

A few years ago only the communists in America insisted on our withdrawal from Vietnam. Today they are joined by a large number of ordinary Americans who have been cleverly confused about the Vietnam situation.

According to the Geneva agreement of July, 1954, Vietnam was divided at the 17th Parallel. Specific provisions were made for outlawing any further hostilities in either area. In 1959 Hanoi decided to open a large-scale military campaign against South Vietnam. While they could, nearly one million North Vietnamese fled south, and informed sources estimate that one-half million were killed trying to escape. Are we going to abandon these unfortunate people to this cruel fate? We didn't start this war. Why don't these brain-washed banner-carrying confused marchers go to North Vietnam and do some demonstrating there? Pull the North Vietnamese boys out and there will be peace. We are paying today for the immoral folly of having surrendered eastern Europe to Stalin, China to Mao, and North Vietnam to Ho. Our final installment on those debts still lies far beyond the horizon.

Peace is the work of justice. Those who are willing to try to purchase it at the price of other people's oppression do not deserve peace, nor is there any reasonable reason to think they are ever going to achieve it. What is more likely is that the oppression they now so lightly dismiss will one day be their inheritance.

Time To Speak

Lincoln, Neb.

If any young adults of Nebraska are now or plan ever to become parents, they should be making themselves heard to the governor and members of the Legislature regarding the decision to close the Orthopedic Hospital.

The tragedy of a child born with a cleft palate, malformed or missing limbs, or a child who grows up with a twisted back or becomes paralyzed—such tragedy can be exceeded only by refusal to help these children. Yet if the phase-out of the Orthopedic is carried out as scheduled, many of these children will go unaided because the costs of care will have become prohibitive.

Unless you have a crippled child, it probably has never really occurred to you that you might one day. But if you think it can't happen to you, then you are just like all the parents of all the children who have been cared for at the Orthopedic Hospital.

Would anyone want a child of his to be unnecessarily crippled all his life, simply because he failed to speak out now—and then couldn't afford the medical costs later?

Poignant Plea

Lincoln, Neb.

Help! Help! Marches in protest are the vogue today for the young. We young people would like to march in protest at the State Capitol against the manner in which the Nebraska Orthopedic Hospital is being phased out. However, due to our physical disabilities, we are unable to march. Would someone please volunteer to push our wheel chairs, and our stretchers, and steady some of us on our crutches?

LEWIS TEMPLE

They Had A Dream

Hundreds of American whaling ships manned by brawny seafaring men plied the chilly waters of the North Atlantic during the 19th Century.

It was dangerous business, but it was profitable. And it was made even more profitable by an illiterate blacksmith who never learned to write his own name.

Though he never went to sea, Lewis Temple was known by whaling men far and wide and his name lived on long after he was buried.

At his forge in New Bedford, Mass., Temple fashioned an almost escape-proof harpoon which came to be known universally as the "Temple toggle."

The Temple toggle was viewed by experts as the "most important single invention in the whole history of whaling."

It became the standard whaling iron and remained so until the industry died out at the turn of the century. The Temple toggle was never improved in any basic way.

Whaling then was one of the leading industries of Massachusetts, providing thousands of jobs for seamen many of whom were black.

Temple, who was born in Richmond, Va., in 1800, had made his way north to New Bedford where he married Mary Clark of Maryland in 1829. The records identified Temple as a "free Negro."

By 1863, Temple was operating his own whalecraft shop on Coffin's Wharf. He worked hard at his trade and in 1845 built his own blacksmith shop on the Walnut St. Wharf.

Temple was a sober and industrious citizen. He paid his poll tax every year, supported the temperance movement, and not only served the whaling trade but also did general smithy work and forged tools for city maintenance jobs.

He and his family lived in a rented house near Temple's shop. It was in this shop, in 1848, that Temple developed his toggle.

Temple's toggle had hinged points held in place by a wooden peg. When the whale attempted to escape, the pressure snapped the peg and the points spread open and became firmly anchored in the blubber. Few got away.

Temple prospered and in 1854 arranged for construction of a new brick blacksmith shop near Steamboat Wharf.

It was underway when Temple tripped over a plank on the sidewalk one night and was critically injured. He died on May 18, 1854, at the age of 54.

New Group Joining The Fuddle Factory

WASHINGTON — The complete dimensions of the federal government are known to no man. The federal apparatus is composed of a myriad of entities. Each is a moving part—a wheel or a gear—which often moves in a different direction, thereby countering one another.

For all of its movement, therefore, the Federal Fuddle Factory usually goes nowhere.

Esoteric organizations such as the Jackson's Hole Cooperative Elks Studies Committee are hidden in the bureaucratic woodwork. The more obscure its function, the more pompous its bureaucrats usually are.

A relatively new entity, known as the American Revolution Bicentennial Commission, has set up shop across the street from the White House. It is populated with high-paid, hifaluting bureaucrats who work in magnificent surroundings with chauffeur-driven cars, furnished by the Pentagon, to whisk them around Washington on their mysterious missions.

Although the commission's only purpose is to plan an appropriate celebration of the 200th anniversary of the Revolution, the meetings are planned in the same fastidious detail that a Big Four summit conference might receive.

The commission was meeting recently, for instance, in a Dallas hotel. The preparations were so elaborate that they were printed in a green-bound booklet.

The seating arrangements for the various sessions were set forth in detailed, annotated, hand-drawn sketches which included even the locations for the American and Texas flags.

To make sure the chairs, tables, lectern and ash trays were in their proper places, the handwritten notes in the margin explained that "Capt. Allendorfer of the ARBC staff will be present when room is set up."

This important assignment was entrusted to Capt. Harry Allendorfer, a $25,000-a-year Navy man who, along with his secretary, were loaned to the commission by the Defense Department.

As befitted his important chair-arranging duties, he was given the imposing title of "Chief of the Executive Secretariat."

The green booklet also devoted considerable space to coffee breaks, which seemed to be more frequent than any other activity.

The booklet contained such additional specifications as: "All tables to be covered with gold tablecloths and, where appropriate, to have gold skirts."

Truly, the commission deserves its place in the Fuddle Factory.

FOOTNOTE: So that no flags or gold tablecloths would be out of place at the meeting, Captain Allendorfer flew back and forth to Dallas at Pentagon expense.

McCarthy Talks Of Third-Party Movements; But For Him, Starting Of One Too Strenuous

NEW YORK — "The most momentous fact about the pattern of American politics," the late Clinton Rossiter wrote at the beginning of the 1960's, "is that we live under a persistent, obdurate, one might almost say tyrannical two-party system. We have the Republicans, and we have the Democrats, and we have almost no one else . . ."

No one else, that is, except George Wallace of Alabama, and Eugene McCarthy of Minnesota, who told a cheering audience of 25,000 in Bloomington, Minn., the other day that if the two major parties don't nominate presidential candidates in 1972 committed to ending the war, reforming American politics and reordering American political priorities, "then let us have a new party, a new policy, and a true America."

The young anti-war audience in Minnesota, according to Johnny Appleseed, thought this was not only a great idea but maybe an offer by the poet-maverick of the Democratic party to lead the disenchanted plague-on-both-your-houses voters against the two-party "tyranny."

The organization Democrats thought this was a capricious and irresponsible bid by McCarthy to regain the political prominence and youthful following he had in the presidential election of 1968. And of course, the organization Republicans were delighted, feeling that a third party movement by Wallace and a fourth party movement by McCarthy would almost certainly assure the re-election of President Nixon.

Well, there is probably less here than meets the eye. McCarthy, surfacing a couple of days later in Philadelphia, treated all the fuss with gentle mockery. He hadn't said anything new, he said. He wasn't offering to start a third or fourth party. He was just going around saying what he thought, as usual, and the press as usual, he added, was turning a comment into a campaign. People were odd, he said, and he should know.

McCarthy is an interesting symbol of the dilemma of American politics. He sees what's wrong with American parties, and policies, but won't work within the parties to set things right, and can't bring himself to work hard enough outside the parties to define the "new policy for the true America" which might create a new majority of independents and knock the old parties over.

The danger is that he will confuse poetry and politics, trifle with the people who are disillusioned with the old parties but put nothing in their place. He is affronted by the idea, and rightly so, that this great country should have to choose among Nixon, Reagan, Rockefeller, or Agnew on the Republican side, and Muskie, whom he doesn't like, Humphrey, McGovern, Kennedy or Bayh on the Democratic side, and pass up outsiders like John Gardner, John Lindsay, Kingman Brewster and a lot of other talented but unconsidered independents, including, as he no doubt thinks, Eugene McCarthy.

It is a fair enough point. It supports Rossiter's thesis about the domination and even "tyranny" of the two-party system. But Gardner, Lindsay, Brewster and the other disenchanted independents at least know they can't beat the party system, or start third parties without weakening the Democrats and re-electing President Nixon. And McCarthy is not so sure about this.

At least he seems to be thinking that maybe by talking about a third party, he could create one or scare the Democrats into reforming their politics and reordering their programs for the nation, or any way, as the philosopher sage, have part of the action, which for a lonely man is important, and easier than writing good poetry or leading a new movement for a new and triumphant age.

Third parties in America have often been the intellectual pathfinders for the two old parties and while losing politically, have influenced and even imposed their ideas on the winners. Gene McCarthy probably cannot do this now.

Still, he is an attractive, thoughtful, detached and eloquent man, with a contempt for the old parties and a vision of the world which could be powerful factors in a third-party movement. But leading third party movements requires the animal energy, and personal ambition of a George Wallace, and this does not comport with McCarthy's lonely and melancholy life.

He will talk about third party movements, and yearn for new philosophies, but defining the philosophies and leading the new political movements is too strenuous and ambiguous for him. He is too private a man for all that.

The News In Suburbia

It's finally here — that long Memorial Day weekend that heralds summer and all of its particular brand of activities. It marks the official opening of swimming pools and the family outing season.

Hopefully the weather will be bright and sunny for all of the family outings and cook-outs that our suburban residents have planned for this special weekend.

Southwood residents Mr. and Mrs. Harold D. Warner, for instance, have planned a family picnic for tomorrow — and the special treat is to celebrate their children's birthdays. Vincent's special day was Thursday, May 27, and Angela's was on Friday, May 21.

On hand for the family celebration and the weekend will be out-of-staters Mr. and Mrs. Orlando Friesen of Hillsboro, Kan., Mrs. Warner's parents, and her sister, Miss Gaila Friesen of Hiawatha, Kan.

With the lively days of spring and early summer comes the desire to jump in the family auto and motor down the highway to visit with friends and relatives.

The doors of the Park Manor home of Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Hornady were opened wide last Monday to welcome Mr. Hornady's brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Hornady of College Park, Md., formerly of Lincoln, who will be visiting in Lincoln until next Tuesday.

The Robert Hornadys have also been visiting with her mother, Mrs. Mary Ellen Ferries, during their stay in Lincoln — and both Hornady families plan to go to Grand Island to spend Memorial Day with parents and in-laws Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Hornady.

As nice as it is to get away on vacation, it also is always nice to return home Joyous memories of holiday travels linger on for some of our suburbia neighbors, however

For Mrs. Marshall Borden of Lincoln Heights, her 10 days in Pacific, Calif., are still bright and vivid. Mrs. Borden travelled to California to visit with her sister, but she took advantage of her proximity to the famous city of San Francisco to visit the renowned Chinatown and Fisherman's Wharf, The giant redwood trees in Muir Forest made an enjoyable side trip.

While Mrs. Borden was visiting her sister, Mr Borden was visiting both his parents and his wife's parents in Sheffield, Ala.

Both Mr and Mrs. Borden returned to Lincoln last week, and are now preparing to be host and hostess themselves. In June, the Bordens will receive visits from their two sons, Charles and Ronnie, who are living in Washington D.C Charles, who is with the U.S. Navy, has just received a promotion to Chief Petty Officer.

The ringing of those school bells — from grade school through college — is dying down to mark the passing of another school year. To the delight of the many students, it also signals the beginning of lazy summer months which will bring a great vacation for them — But all too often in the case of smaller students it brings a busy time for mom.

Today Miss Kathy Swanson, will be home from her first year at Ennaus Bible College in Chicago, Ill., to spend the much too short summer months with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph M. Swanson, and brother Tom, of the Hollywood Heights suburb.

Of special interest to town and campus circles this morning is the announcement made by Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Conway of the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Denise to Paul Douglas Witherby, son of Mr. and Mrs. Vincent Witherby.

The wedding will take place on Saturday, Aug. 21.

Miss Conway is a senior at the University of Nebraska where she is a member of Kappa Kappa Gamma sorority, and from where she will receive her degree in elementary education next December.

Mr. Witherby, who now is serving six months active duty with the Army Reserves at the Aberdeen Proving Grounds in Maryland, will re-enter the University of Nebraska in the fall. He is a member of Phi Gamma Delta fraternity and his major is social sciences.

Evening Ceremony

The wedding of Miss Janice Sonja Westerberg, daughter of Mrs. Adolph Westerberg and the late Mr. Westerberg, and David Theodore Schroeder, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ted G. Schroeder of Fairfield, took place on Friday evening, May 28, at the First Lutheran Church before a background of candles and flowers. The 7:30 o'clock ceremony was solemnized by the Rev. Richard Englund, and the vocalist and guitarist was Miss Cynthia Johnson, who was accompanied by Miss Janice Long and Miss Claire Long.

Alike frocks of white filigree vertically flocked with organza over aquamarine taffeta, were worn by the attendants, including Mrs. Richard Singerle of Cedar Grove, N.J., matron of honor; and bridesmaids Miss Judy Bettenhausen of Denver, Colo., and Miss Janice Fischer of Bellevue. They carried Williamsburg bouquets of spring flowers.

For her wedding the bride chose a gown of silk organza in the ivory shade. Appliques of Chantilly lace patterned the bodice, fashioned with a high ruffled neckline, and lace-cuffed Bishop sleeves. Beneath the sashed waistline the skirt was in the A-line mode and was bordered at the hem with lace applique. A Camelot cap held to the head her chapel-length, lace-bordered veil and she carried a bouquet of white roses.

The bride attended the University of Nebraska.

Mr. Schroeder was graduated from the University's College of Business Administration, and now is attending the College of Law where he is a member of Phi Delta Phi and Phi Eta Sigma honoraries.

Friday Wedding

The marriage of Miss Kay Ellen Rotherham, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Rotherham of Ewing, to Rodney William Johnson, son of Mr and Mrs Herman T Johnson of Wausa, took place at a 5 o'clock ceremony at St John's Church on Friday afternoon, May 28.

Mrs John Kronschnabel of Omaha was the bride's only attendant, and Terry Johnson of Wausa served as best man

Mr. Johnson and his bride will reside in Washington D.C, before going to Lagos, Nigeria, where Mr Johnson will be with the U.S. Department of State, serving in the Agency for International Development.

The bride is a graduate of Nebraska Wesleyan University and of St. Elizabeth Hospital School of Nursing.

Mr. Johnson was graduated from the University of Nebraska College of Agriculture and the University of Nebraska College of Law. He currently is associated with the U.S District Court in Lincoln, as the judicial law clerk.

Sally Folsom Is Friday Bride

Lighted candles in the crystal vigil cups of spiral candelabra, festooned with pink and red roses and gypsophelia, appointed the chancel of the Westminster Presbyterian Church for the wedding of Miss Sally Reese Folsom, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Burton W. Folsom, and John Pavalis, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Pavalis of Staten Island, N.Y., which took place on Friday afternoon, May 28. Dr. Robert Palmer solemnized the 4 o'clock ceremony and the wedding music was played by Bruce Bengston. Ron Dreiling was the vocal soloist.

The attendants, appeared in identically styled Empire frocks in a silk and cotton blend, pink for maid of honor Miss Mary Freeman, and Beauty red for bridesmaids Miss Tasia Pavalis of Staten Island, N.Y.; Miss Carol Howard of Grand Island, and Miss Chris Olson. Fashioned with crescent necklines and teacup sleeves, the bodices were snugly fitted above the A-line, floor-length skirts. Each carried a nosegay of four red roses, red centered with pink for the maid of honor, and pink centered with red for the bridesmaid.

Nick Kartalis of Staten Island served as best man, and the groomsmen and ushers included Burton W. Folsom, II, Tom Folsom, Douglas Johnson of Hastings; Monty Ogard of Bridgepost, and Monte Ulbert of California, Md.

The bride chose a gown of white silk organza over taffeta, and peau d'ange lace for her wedding. The lace formed an overlay for the Empire bodice, fashioned with a rounded neckline of lace which was contoured with a stand-up ruffle of organza. The lace was repeated to deeply cuff the Bishop sleeves of organza and to panel the front of the gown from the Empire waist to the hem of the dirndl skirt, and giving back interest to the gown was an aisle-wide cotillion-length train patterned with vertical panels of lace. Her watteau veil of silk illusion was held in place with a lace cloche and she carried a trailing cascade bouquet of white Jack Frost roses and pink sweetheart roses.

Both Mr. Pavalis and his bride were graduated from Hastings College last Saturday.

Abby

DEAR ABBY: I am the wife of a young M.D. who is currently taking his residency training. I am so tired of people asking me, "When is your husband going to be a real doctor?"

Abby, don't these ninnies know that when a person receives his M. D. degree, it means Medical Doctor? Most M. D.'s further their training by taking their internship for one year and residency training anywhere from one to four years, or even more. But nevertheless, he is a real doctor when he graduates from medical school.

REAL ANNOYED

DEAR REAL: What your friends probably meant was, "When is hour husband going into practice and make some real money?"

DEAR ABBY: My mother in law is 75 years old and my wife and I are 50. Every year my mother in law wants to go away with us on our vacation. She pestered us so much last year about it that we passed up our summer vacation rather than take her with us. Now she is asking us again where we are going. My father in law has no desire to travel. In fact, he would enjoy staying home with his wife gone.

My mother in law has never been neglected by us. We visit her often and invite her out. She's lived a good life and was always on the go when she was younger, so I don't see why she should expect to accompany us on our vacation, do you? My wife is soft-hearted, but she really would rather not go away if her mother goes with us. How can we get out of taking her? Or should we stay home again this year.

STUCK

DEAR STUCK: What's wrong with simply telling the lady that you have planned a "second honeymoon" trip?

By PHYLLIS WOOLEN

Hmm This is an awfully busy place today. I suppose it's because they're opening up the Children's Zoo today, and it is the beginning of a steady stream of visitors

My name is Capy, short for Capybara. I am one of the world's largest rodents, and although I look something like a guinea pig, I am far larger, weighing in about 90 to 100 pounds.

I come from the northern section of South America, and I've been living at the Children's Zoo for almost three years now I'm only four years old, so that means that I've spent most of my life here.

I'll admit I'm pretty lazy during the day. I get up in the morning and graze on the grass and shrubs I'm really a fairly cheap houseguest for the Zoo, although I do nibble a bit of bird feed every now and then.

I'm actually pretty shy and secretive, but in my own quiet way I find out a lot about what is going on around here. The director of the zoo, Bob Spencer, thinks I don't know, for instance, that they intend to bring in two female Capybaras next month. I suppose he doesn't want me to get too excited, but that's high living for a young fellow like myself—two females to wait on me hand and foot.

Anyway, while I was grazing the other day, I noticed that there are quite a few new residents who have moved in. From where I sat nibbling in the center section of the Zoo, I could see those new Trumpeter Swans everyone is talking about, and that new little Coatimundus raccoon. By the way, they've named her Star. Seems I heard it was because she was the star of the first "conZOOsations" column in the Lincoln Star.

I like to spend a lot of my time in the water, and I take dips quite frequently in the Flamingo Pond. They sure have it looking mighty good.

I thought my eyes were playing tricks on me the other day. Honestly, it looked as if there was a group of three men dressed in formal wear—and I mean tuxedos. But, when I got a bit closer, I realized that what I had seen were the three new penguins who have arrived. They're awfully funny creatures—the way they move about and all. I was talking to penguin Crip, poor guy is a crippled, and he told me that most penguins live in hot weather, and there is only one of the 18 species that inhabit the frigid arctic area. I never knew that before.

The other penguins, Rosie and Kathy, along with Crip are the first penguins we've ever had live at the Zoo. I'd bet you will all enjoy them. Which reminds me, the Zoo does open at 10 o'clock this morning and Mayor Sam Schwartzkopf will be cutting the ribbon, and the Rev. Darrel E. If not today, we are open Tuesdays through Saturdays from 10 to 5, and Sundays from 10 to 6 We will also be open on Monday, May 31 for Memorial Day.

I've got to run for now, but I'll be looking for you.

The News In Suburbia

It's finally here — that long Memorial Day weekend that heralds summer and all of its particular brand of activities. It marks the official opening of swimming pools and the family outing season.

Hopefully the weather will be bright and sunny for all of the family outings and cook-outs that our suburban residents have planned for this special weekend.

Southwood residents Mr. and Mrs. Harold D. Warner, for instance, have planned a family picnic for tomorrow — and the special treat is to celebrate their children's birthdays. Vincent's special day was Thursday, May 27, and Angela's was on Friday, May 21.

On hand for the family celebration and the weekend will be out-of-staters Mr. and Mrs. Orlando Friesen of Hillsboro, Kan., Mrs. Warner's parents, and her sister, Miss Gaila Friesen of Hiawatha, Kan.

With the lively days of spring and early summer comes the desire to jump in the family auto and motor down the highway to visit with friends and relatives.

The doors of the Park Manor home of Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Hornady were opened wide last Monday to welcome Mr. Hornady's brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Hornady of College Park, Md., formerly of Lincoln, who will be visiting in Lincoln until next Tuesday.

The Robert Hornadys have also been visiting with her mother, Mrs. Mary Ellen Ferries, during their stay in Lincoln — and both Hornady families plan to go to Grand Island to spend Memorial Day with parents and in-laws Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Hornady.

As nice as it is to get away on vacation, it also is always nice to return home. Joyous memories of holiday travels linger on for some of our suburbia neighbors, however.

For Mrs. Marshall Borden of Lincoln Heights, her 10 days in Pacific, Calif., are still bright and vivid. Mrs. Borden travelled to California to visit with her sister, but she took advantage of her proximity to the famous city of San Francisco to visit the renowned Chinatown and Fisherman's Wharf, The giant redwood trees in Muir Forest made an enjoyable side trip.

While Mrs. Borden was visiting her sister, Mr. Borden was visiting both his parents and his wife's parents in Sheffield, Ala.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Borden returned to Lincoln last week, and are now preparing to be host and hostess themselves. In June, the Bordens will receive visits from their two sons, Charles and Ronnie, who are living in Washington D.C. Charles, who is with the U.S. Navy, has just received a promotion to Chief Petty Officer.

The ringing of those school bells — from grade school through college — is dying down to mark the passing of another school year. To the delight of the many students, it also signals the beginning of lazy summer months which will bring a great vacation for them — But all too often in the case of smaller students it brings a busy time for mom.

Today Miss Kathy Swanson, will be home from her first year at Ennaus Bible College in Chicago, Ill., to spend the much too short summer months with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph M. Swanson, and brother Tom, of the Hollywood Heights suburb.

Of special interest to town and campus circles this morning is the announcement made by Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Conway of the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Denise to Paul Douglas Witherby, son of Mr. and Mrs. Vincent Witherby.

The wedding will take place on Saturday, Aug. 21.

Miss Conway is a senior at the University of Nebraska where she is a member of Kappa Kappa Gamma sorority, and from where she will receive her degree in elementary education next December.

Mr. Witherby, who now is serving six months active duty with the Army Reserves at the Aberdeen Proving Grounds in Maryland, will re-enter the University of Nebraska in the fall. He is a member of Phi Gamma Delta fraternity and his major is social sciences.

Sally Folsom Is Friday Bride

Lighted candles in the crystal vigil cups of spiral candelabra, festooned with pink and red roses and gypsophelia, appointed the chancel of the Westminster Presbyterian Church for the wedding of Miss Sally Reese Folsom, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Burton W. Folsom, and John Pavalis, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Pavalis of Staten Island, N.Y., which took place on Friday afternoon, May 28. Dr. Robert Palmer solemnized the 4 o'clock ceremony and the wedding music was played by Bruce Bengston. Ron Dreiling was the vocal soloist.

The attendants, appeared in identically styled Empire frocks in a silk and cotton blend, pink for maid of honor Miss Mary Freeman, and Beauty red for bridesmaids Miss Tasia Pavalis of Staten Island, N.Y.; Miss Carol Howard of Grand Island, and Miss Chris Olson. Fashioned with crescent necklines and teacup sleeves, the bodices were snugly fitted above the A-line, floor-length skirts. Each carried a nosegay of four red roses, red centered with pink for the maid of honor, and pink centered with red for the bridesmaid.

Nick Kartalis of Staten Island served as best man, and the groomsmen and ushers included Burton W. Folsom, II, Tom Folsom, Douglas Johnson of Hastings; Monty Ogard of Bridgepost, and Monte Ulbert of California, Md.

The bride chose a gown of white silk organza over taffeta, and peau d'ange lace for her wedding. The lace formed an overlay for the Empire bodice, fashioned with a rounded neckline of lace which was contoured with a stand-up ruffle of organza. The lace was repeated to deeply cuff the Bishop sleeves of organza and to panel the front of the gown from the Empire waist to the hem of the dirndl skirt, and giving back interest to the gown was an aisle-wide cotillion-length train patterned with vertical panels of lace. Her watteau veil of silk illusion was held in place with a lace cloche and she carried a trailing cascade bouquet of white Jack Frost roses and pink sweetheart roses.

Both Mr. Pavalis and his bride were graduated from Hastings College last Saturday.

Abby

DEAR ABBY: I am the wife of a young M.D. who is currently taking his residency training. I am so tired of people asking me, "When is your husband going to be a real doctor?"

Abby, don't these ninnies know that when a person receives his M. D. degree, it means Medical Doctor? Most M. D.'s further their training by taking their internship for one year and residency training anywhere from one to four years, or even more. But nevertheless, he is a real doctor when he graduates from medical school.

REAL ANNOYED

DEAR REAL: What your friends probably meant was, "When is hour husband going into practice and make some real money?"

DEAR ABBY: My mother in law is 75 years old and my wife and I are 50. Every year my mother in law wants to go away with us on our vacation. She pestered us so much last year about it that we passed up our summer vacation rather than take her with us. Now she is asking us again where we are going. My father in law has no desire to travel. In fact, he would enjoy staying home with his wife gone.

My mother in law has never been neglected by us. We visit her often and invite her out. She's lived a good life and was always on the go when she was younger, so I don't see why she should expect to accompany us on our vacation, do you? My wife is soft-hearted, but she really would rather not go away if her mother goes with us. How can we get out of taking her? Or should we stay home again this year.

STUCK

DEAR STUCK: What's wrong with simply telling the lady that you have planned a "second honeymoon" trip?

Evening Ceremony

The wedding of Miss Janice Sonja Westerberg, daughter of Mrs. Adolph Westerberg and the late Mr. Westerberg, and David Theodore Schroeder, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ted G. Schroeder of Fairfield, took place on Friday evening, May 28, at the First Lutheran Church before a background of candles and flowers. The 7:30 o'clock ceremony was solemnized by the Rev. Richard Englund, and the vocalist and guitarist was Miss Cynthia Johnson, who was accompanied by Miss Janice Long and Miss Claire Long.

Alike frocks of white filigree vertically flocked with organza over aquamarine taffeta, were worn by the attendants, including Mrs. Richard Singerle of Cedar Grove, N.J., matron of honor; and bridesmaids Miss Judy Bettenhausen of Denver, Colo., and Miss Janice Fischer of Bellevue. They carried Williamsburg bouquets of spring flowers.

For her wedding the bride chose a gown of silk organza in the ivory shade. Appliques of Chantilly lace patterned the bodice, fashioned with a high ruffled neckline, and lace-cuffed Bishop sleeves. Beneath the sashed waistline the skirt was in the A-line mode and was bordered at the hem with lace appliqué. A Camelot cap held to the head her chapel-length, lace-bordered veil and she carried a bouquet of white roses.

The bride attended the University of Nebraska.

Mr. Schroeder was graduated from the University's College of Business Administration, and now is attending the College of Law where he is a member of Phi Delta Phi and Phi Eta Sigma honoraries.

Friday Wedding

The marriage of Miss Kay Ellen Rotherham, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Rotherham of Ewing, to Rodney William Johnson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Herman T. Johnson of Wausa, took place at a 5 o'clock ceremony at St. John's Church on Friday afternoon, May 28.

Mrs. John Kronschnabel of Omaha was the bride's only attendant, and Terry Johnson of Wausa served as best man.

Mr. Johnson and his bride will reside in Washington D.C., before going to Lagos, Nigeria, where Mr. Johnson will be with the U.S. Department of State, serving in the Agency for International Development.

The bride is a graduate of Nebraska Wesleyan University and of St. Elizabeth Hospital School of Nursing.

Mr. Johnson was graduated from the University of Nebraska College of Agriculture and the University of Nebraska College of Law. He currently is associated with the U.S. District Court in Lincoln, as the judicial law clerk.

conZOOsations

By PHYLLIS WOOLEN

Hmm. This is an awfully busy place today. I suppose it's because they're opening up the Children's Zoo today, and it is the beginning of a steady stream of visitors.

My name is Capy, short for Capybara. I am one of the world's largest rodents, and although I look something like a guinea pig, I am far larger, weighing in about 90 to 100 pounds.

I come from the northern section of South America, and I've been living at the Children's Zoo for almost three years now. I'm only four years old, so that means that I've spent most of my life here.

I'll admit I'm pretty lazy during the day. I get up in the morning and graze on the grass and shrubs. I'm really a fairly cheap houseguest for the Zoo, although I do nibble a bit of bird feed every now and then.

I'm actually pretty shy and secretive, but in my own quiet way I find out a lot about what is going on around here. The director of the zoo, Bob Spencer, thinks I don't know, for instance, that they intend to bring in two female Capybaras next month. I suppose he doesn't want me to get too excited, but that's high living for a young fellow like myself—two females to wait on me hand and foot.

Anyway, while I was grazing the other day, I noticed that there are quite a few new residents who have moved in. From where I sat nibbling in the center section of the Zoo, I could see those new Trumpeter Swans everyone is talking about, and that new little Coatimundus raccoon. By the way, they've named her Star. Seems I heard it was because she was the star of the first "conZOOsations" column in the Lincoln Star.

I like to spend a lot of my time in the water, and I take dips quite frequently in the Flamingo Pond. They sure have it looking mighty good.

I thought my eyes were playing tricks on me the other day. Honestly, it looked as if there was a group of three men dressed in formal wear—and I mean tuxedos. But, when I got a bit closer, I realized that what I had seen were the three new penguins who have arrived. They're awfully funny creatures—the way they move about and all. I was talking to penguin Crip, poor guy is a crippled, and he told me that most penguins live in hot weather, and there is only one of the 18 species that inhabit the frigid arctic area. I never knew that before.

The other penguins, Rosie and Kathy, along with Crip are the first penguins we've ever had live at the Zoo. I'd bet you will all enjoy them. Which reminds me, the Zoo does open at 10 o'clock this morning and Mayor Sam Schwartzkopf will be cutting the ribbon, and the Rev. Darrel E. Berg will also be here to bless the Children's Zoo animals. I hope you can all make it. If not today, we are open Tuesdays through Saturdays from 10 to 5, and Sundays from 10 to 6. We will also be open on Monday, May 31 for Memorial Day.

I've got to run for now, but I'll be looking for you.

Dope Bust Tactics Enrage Witness

By STEVEN LEVINE

As I put the last sack of groceries on the floor of the car I was saying something about how nice it was to have a supermarket open at this hour of 1 a.m. so close to where I lived. The only thing I recall when I listen back into my memory is that girl's scream.

The carbon arc lights of the parking lot lit the corner up on Ninth St. from which it seemed to have originated. A white object was moving toward the intersection. The white object was, yes, a girl about 19, long dark hair, white dress, running a poor race, caught in the lambent aspect of nightmare, her legs stiffened with despairing panic. Her pursuer was as yet invisible but her situation seemed obvious enough.

My first words were a sort of respectful "far out," spoken as I pushed off from the car and shot off through the parking lot toward her. I yelled back to Michelle to go into the store to call police. When I looked up from my dash upon reaching the opposite street corner the girl was already in the hands of her assailants . . . attackers?

STEVEN LEVINE

They Grabbed Her

Those were the words one would have had to use in describing the actions of these two men. They had grabbed her, one holding each arm, their grips visibly indenting her flesh, and they were leading her at a clip that was almost a drag, across the street and into the dark mouth of an alley.

The men were nondescript hard-edge dudes in their early 30s, short hair, neat zipper and ypc jackets, one of them smoking a pipe. Whoever heard of a pipe-smoking rapist? And the walk was that self-important, adrenalated cop carriage I had seen in busts before.

I had a suspicion that slowed me down.

I turned for a moment, confronted the vanguard of a half dozen young men who had also rushed to service from the parking lot.

To the closest, a tall blondish bearded man in his early 20s, I inexplicably offered, "I think they could be cops."

"Well let's make sure," he said firmly and the now five of us confronted the two men holding the woman as they neared the back door of the house.

'Do you need any help?" the blond fellow asked. His voice was loud but polite.

The girl swivelled her head back to us. I was sickened. Her face was completely blank, featureless, idiotic with terror, enamel-white skin, eyes bereft of sentience. She said nothing. The captor on her right told us warningly, just glancing back at us, "It's taken care of. We're police officers." But I was still looking at her face and I didn't believe a word of it. I just dismissed it. This was a dope rip-off, white slavery, protection. I had forgotten my experiences with the law and I mistook it for crime.

"Excuse me officers, but may I see some identification," I yelled after them as they moved on.

"Bug off unless you want to get involved," one of them said as the other took the girl into the house.

"I want to get involved," one of us fired back.

We Waited

We waited while some dark event transpired in the house. In a moment the two men, the girl and another bearded, younger male re-emerged. The youth and couple were taken off down the alley to the right by one of the jacketed, still very much anonymous men. The other alleged cop went through us to the left. He came by me and said "Make it, unless you want to go downtown with them." As he passed I glimpsed the only real evidence of legitimacy either of the perpetrators of this affair ever presented me. A wind, a motion brought up a section of jacket beneath which appeared a regulation garrison belt and service revolver. Confused, shaken, I veered off from him, from the others, wandered back to my car.

Michelle was waiting, anxious after me.

"What happened?"

"It was a bust. A dope bust of some kind I guess."

"A bust. That happens here Like that?"

There was no way to gentl that reality. She was hurt and a I thought about it, I was mad. was mad, enraged. I live here I'm a taxpayer and I'm not go ing to be terrorized and bullie with no explanation by dim mes sengers of agencies they won' prove they represent. My knuck les were white around the whee as we drove home. The telephon receiver was slick with sweat a I called the narcotics bureau.

Sergeant Was Polite

The duty sergeant was polite First he tried to cop a plea Maybe they were feds. I wa sure it was a local dope bus period. The feds don't worl alone, don't wear such gear. Th sergeant fessed up. Yes we di make arrests there. He tried t mollify me at first. He con gratulated me on my sense o civic responsibility. He would have surmised as I did under the circumstances. The officers were wrong. He admitted that as it were, point blank. They should have shown me a badge But they were under stress yo know, the "we're all-grown-ups here" lecture.

"If that's how your people react under stress I suggest you examine your hiring policies."

"Now, I've been on the force for 10 years with these men . . ."

He got just a little heated Tried to keep me on the line, ge me on the defensive.

"I thank you for your candor sergeant, but it's not enough I'm coming down to file."

"Well, that's your right."

I hung up. I searched Michelle's curious, oddly gentle eyes.

"What happened?"

"I made him sweat a little but I don't feel any better. I'm going to go ahead with a formal complaint proceeding."

There were some heavy losses here to be recouped.

Big moment

After graduation today, Martha dressed her little sister, Amy, in cap and gown and let her walk across the stage. Amy chortled all the way home, "I graduated, just like Martha."

Martha is a sweet big sister. She lets Amy watch while she gets ready for dates, makes clothes for her dolls and invents endless games designed to please a four-year-old. On the other hand, Amy adores the ground her "Marthy" walks on and listens to her advice before all others. It was Martha who straightened her out when she rebelled against church-going. "We go," said Martha, "not because we have to, but because we love God and want to be good."

How glad Bob and I are that we have always gone to church and taken Martha with us! Love of God is an essential part of her life. Now she is helping us teach Amy a similar understanding and reverence.

Go to church, and take your child. Share with him the greatest wealth on earth.

STAR PHOTO

As he had promised, Gov. J. James Exon Friday vetoed the personal property tax exemption bill passed by the 1971 Legislature only hours before its adjournment Wednesday.

Exon delivered the veto message, his 12th of the session, to the secretary of state's office about 30 minutes before it closed for the Memorial Day weekend.

"For reasons that I have clearly spelled out in a series of messages to the Legislature and through public statements," Exon said "I cannot, in good conscience, allow LB256 to become law."

The measures would have provided a 20% exemption on business and farm inventories and equipment, beginning in 1972, sliding up to 40% in 1973 and 50% in 1974 and thereafter.

After enactment of the measure on a 32-16 vote on the final legislative day, the governor was challenged by its sponsor, Sen. Jules Burbach of Crofton, to instantly veto the bill and give the lawmakers a chance to override his veto before adjournment.

However, Exon advised legislative leaders that he had no intention of doing so.

In his veto message, Exon again tagged LB256 as "unfair tax legislation."

"This measure" he said, "along with all its predecessors promoted in the immediate past session of the Legislature, would have caused a raise in the sales and income tax."

"My sentiments on this were unalterably clear," Exon said in reiterating he will give study to introduction of legislation to "provide relief where it is needed most."

Exon had charged that LB256 would provide no appreciable relief for the average farmer and small businessman, but was a "tax relief hoax" that would benefit only the large taxpayers.

4 Roman Catholic Priests To Be Ordained

Four Roman Catholic priests — two of them from Lincoln — will be ordained here Saturday, the largest ordination group in this diocese since 1963.

The four are the Rev. James Liewer, son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Liewer of 2347 So. 15th; the Rev. Paul Witt, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ken Witt of 3500 Frost Court; the Rev. John Ludvik, son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Ludvik of Wahoo; and the Rev. Rudolph Oborny, son of Mr. and Mrs. Rudolph Oborny of Bellwood.

The four will be ordained at 11 a.m. in the Cathedral of the Risen Christ by Bishop Glennon P. Flavin.

The Rev. Liewer, 26, is a graduate of Blessed Sacrament School and Pius X High School. He attended Loras College in Dubuque, Iowa, and the Catholic University of America in Washington, D.C., where he earned an M.A. degree in philosophy and an M.A. in religion and religious education.

A graduate of St. Teresa School in Lincoln and Prairie du Chien, Wis., the Rev. Witt received his B.A. in philosophy from St. Thomas Seminary in Denver. He has also studied at St. Francis Seminary in Milwaukee, Wis. He is 26 years old.

The Rev. Ludvik, 28, was born in David City and attended Catholic High School in Wahoo and the University of Nebraska and Northwestern Missouri College, Maryville, Mo. He received a B.A. in philosophy from Immaculate Conception Seminary, Conception, Mo. and also studied at St. Francis Seminary.

The Rev. Oborny, a graduate of Aquinas High School in David City, studied philosophy at Immaculate Conception Seminary and theology at St. Francis Seminary.

In 1963, four priests were ordained in the diocese of Lincoln. There have been a total of 26 ordained in the diocese since 1959, according to Msgr. Thomas M. Kealy, vicar general of the Diocese of Lincoln.

Tracing Family Tree Can Be Fascinating

By HENRY SCHMIDT

Are you sure you remember the name of your great-grandmother? If you were to look her up in the family Bible or the town records, the chances are you'd find it, and a lot more about her and the rest of your family. And if you kept on digging, you'd be making the most of a hobby of one of the most fascinating of sciences — genealogy.

Anybody can start tracing a family tree. It costs next to nothing (just some stationery and stamps for writing to long-lost members of the clan). It does not depend on the seasons; it's certainly not physically strenuous.

The older we get, the more intrigued we are by history — our own in particular. You know most of the pertinent facts of your own life, but how much do you know about your ancestry? In this age of family mobility, when children and grandchildren are scattered across the country, the old ties become important. Your children, too, will appreciate your interest in genealogy if you start keeping a notebook for them to hand down to the next younger generation.

You can begin your search for family documents by writing cousins you haven't seen in years, by scouting for family Bibles, newspaper clippings and old letters. Try your local public library for material on the family. If you've lived in the same region for years, there's bound to be some documentation. If the family has moved within the last 20 years, pay the old home town a visit and do some research there. Church records, courthouse files, county records of wills and deeds, yield valuable material. The first federal census was taken in 1790 and the last one open to the public is 1880. The Personal Service Division of the Bureau or the Census will handle information requests since that time, for a small fee.

You may want to make fields trips in pursuit of a missing marker, or an old homesite here or abroad. This kind of side journey would be part of your regular vacation trip. As you trudge through an abandoned pasture and think of the great-grandfather who once farmed there, he will come alive for you.

The point of tracing your ancestors is not to prove they all came over on the Mayflower. You will find that you get a new and broadened perspective on our hectic world of today, if you can truly envision the fruitful and simple lives our forefathers led. You can get a lot of information like that from history books, but nothing brings the past so close to home as the recreated lives of our own ancestors.

PROGRESS REPORT

Dear Customer,

You should see our lower level! We have moved the credit department tighter to the south; gift wrap is with credit; our new optical department is along the west end-lower level, and we moved our shoe repair upstairs with our shoe department. All of these moves opened up about 7500 sq. ft. Believe it or not, we will start setting up our new departments next Monday. Our drapery and linen departments will be first — moving from upper level to their new area in lower level. It's been quite a problem and we do appreciate your understanding — You have been great!

Thanks,

Tracing Family Tree Can Be Fascinating

By HENRY SCHMIDT

Are you sure you remember the name of your great-grandmother? If you were to look her up in the family Bible or the town records, the chances are you'd find it, and a lot more about her and the rest of your family. And if you kept on digging, you'd be making the most of a hobby of one of the most fascinating of sciences — genealogy.

Anybody can start tracing a family tree. It costs next to nothing (just some stationery and stamps for writing to long-lost members of the clan). It does not depend on the seasons; it's certainly not physically strenuous.

The older we get, the more intrigued we are by history — our own in particular. You know most of the pertinent facts of your own life, but how much do you know about your ancestry? In this age of family mobility, when children and grandchildren are scattered across the country, the old ties become important. Your children, too, will appreciate your interest in genealogy if you start keeping a notebook for them to hand down to the next younger generation.

You can begin your search for family documents by writing cousins you haven't seen in years, by scouting for family Bibles, newspaper clippings and old letters. Try your local public library for material on the family. If you've lived in the same region for years, there's bound to be some documentation. If the family has moved within the last 20 years, pay the old home town a visit and do some research there. Church records, courthouse files, county records of wills and deeds, yield valuable material. The first federal census was taken in 1790 and the last one open to the public is 1880. The Personal Service Division of the Bureau or the Census will handle information requests since that time, for a small fee.

You may want to make fields trips in pursuit of a missing marker, or an old homesite here or abroad. This kind of side journey would be part of your regular vacation trip. As you trudge through an abandoned pasture and think of the great-grandfather who once farmed there, he will come alive for you.

The point of tracing your ancestors is not to prove they all came over on the Mayflower. You will find that you get a new and broadened perspective on our hectic world of today, if you can truly envision the fruitful and simple lives our forefathers led. You can get a lot of information like that from history books, but nothing brings the past so close to home as the recreated lives of our own ancestors.

Wichitans To Defend Golf Title

By HAL BROWN
Star Sports Editor

The top three teams from a year ago return intact to this year's Great Plains Classic, opening today at Holmes Park, but the team to beat may be a new combination.

Foulston and Holland teamed for an eight-under-par 135 a year ago, winning by a single stroke on a 28-foot birdie putt by Holland on the final hole at Pioneers Park.

And the two teams that finished in the runner-up role when Holland snapped a three-way tie with the clutch birdie are also back, Wichitans Gary Navarro and Craig DeLongy and University of Nebraska teammates Craig Waugh and Jim Roudebush.

Foulston also was in the winner's circle two years ago when he teamed with former Wichita State golfer Jamie Thompson for a 133 winning total.

But the team to beat in this year's 50-team field could be two former Nebraska State Amateur champions with nine titles between them.

That's eight-time Nebraska champion Bob Astleford and 1969 king Frank Rose, formerly of Fairbury, now residing in Topeka, Kan.

Rose, the No. 1 golfer on the Nebraska team a year ago and the University of Missouri's No. 1 man, Scott Bess, finished fourth last year while Astleford, teaming with Glen Gruenemeier, finished in a tie for 17th at even-par 143.

Gruenemeier is combining this year with Norfolk's Jim Shade, a member of Big Eight champion Oklahoma State's team who tied for low spot with Grand Island professional Merle Backlund in Monday's Local Qualifying for the U.S. Open.

Another top contender figures to be the team of current Nebraska State Amateur champion Charlie Borner of North Platte and Lincoln's Matt Taber.

In addition to the 50 teams in the scratch division of the Classic, another 64 teams will vie for the championship in the handicap division.

Clete Boyer On Waivers With Braves

Atlanta (AP) — A subdued Clete Boyer, declaring that "sometimes I talk too much" was placed on waivers by the Atlanta Braves Friday, climaxing an exchange of public insults between the slick-fielding third baseman and Paul Richards, the club's vice-president.

Richards and Boyer huddled behind closed doors for almost two hours before the vice-president emerged with a terse two paragraph statement that said:

"Cletis Boyer will be given his unconditional release as soon as waivers are obtained.

"The agreement between Boyer and the Braves was consummated according to an understanding through mutual agreement."

Shanks Records Ace

Sonny's Delight Surprise In Queen's Handicap

By RANDY EICKHOFF
Star Sports Writer

Omaha — Betting favorite Kathryn's Doll failed to live up to the crowds expectations as the six-year-old mare ran a poor third to Sonny's Delight . . . winner of the Queen's Handicap at Ak-Sar-Ben Friday afternoon.

But Al Herrera, riding Sonny's Delight in place of Roldolfo Calderon, who rode the five-year-old product of Play With Fire out of Dever Miss during her last outing, said the favorite posed no threat to him at all.

"She (Kathryn's Doll) was the only horse in the race that I was really worried about," Herrera said following his upset victory, "but she didn't show me anything at all. We closed fast in the sixteenth. The rest just followed me in."

Second favorite among the crowd of 12,417, M. H. Van Berg stable entry of Thirty Dashes and Gold Rags, didn't worry Herrera at all.

"They didn't have a chance," he said waving his hand to dismiss the idea, "I didn't really have any problem at all."

Herrera said Sonny's Delight responded late to his demand, but answered well in the final turn towards the home stretch.

Bold Accent had broken on top from the gate and led the field of nine all the way until half way around the stretch turn when she gave ground slowly to the fast-coming Sonny's Delight who had been holding a length back.

Sonny's Delight then pulled steadily up and passed Bold Accent to win by a nose in a photo finish with a time of 1:12 over six furlongs. A claim of foul by Kathryn's Doll jockey Eddie Burns was disallowed by the stewards.

The Victor and Otto Preuss owned mare returned $11.60, $5.60 and $3.60 to backers while Bold Accent was good for $6.00 and $4.20. Kathryn's Doll showed for $3.20.

"We didn't do any special prepping for this race," trainer and co-owner Otto Pruess said following Sonny's Delight's victory, "but we didn't think she had a very good chance of winning against Kathryn's Doll. Afterall, she was being ridden by a strange jockey. But he gave a good ride."

Preuss cited the reason for Sonny's Delight's surprise showing as coming from good stock.

"That Dever Miss (the dam) was a right-good mare," Pruess said. "And the sire (Play With Fire) was a darn good breeder even if he didn't win very much."

The win desposited $9,601.25, the winner's share of a $15,000-added purse, to the Preuss coffers and boosted Sonny's Delight's earnings for 1971 to $11,111.25. Her record is now one win, one place and one show in three starts.

INDY 500 TALK OVER

. . . Records Expected To Fall In Race

Indianapolis, Ind. (AP) — Thirty-three seasoned drivers, facing odds of 2 to 1 they won't be running at the finish, will charge around the Indianapolis Motor Speedway today in a million-dollar speed battle almost certain to shred records for 500 miles.

A crowd upwards of 300,000 may see two records blown aside on the first lap — 162.514 m.p.h. for the first time around the 2½-mile track, set by Mario Andretti in 1969; and 168.666 for any set by Lloyd Ruby in 1968.

The three-car front row, the best in two weekends of 10-mile time trials, qualified at speeds from Peter Reuson's record 178.696 for the pole position to Bobby Unser's 175.816 for the outside spot, with Mark Donohue in the middle at 177.087.

Revson and Donohue have new Mark 16 McLarens, Bobby Unser an Eagle built by ex-Grand Prix racer Dan Gurney of Santa Ana, Calif. Another of the Mark 16s, built in England with help from sports car ace Roger Penske of Philadelphia, will menace the leaders from the second row with former world champion Denis Hulme of New Zealand at the wheel.

Also big in the front row's rearview mirrors will be Al Unser, last year's Indy winner, and A. J. Foyt Jr., who has won it three times and intends to be the first four-timer.

The winner could come from even deeper in the lineup, with 1969 winner Andretti in a German - built McNamara, perennial contender Lloyd Ruby and former motorcycle champion Joe Leonard lined up in the third row.

Not far back are two second generation racers who qualified strongly, Billy Vukovich and Gary Bettenhausen, and such noted chargers as Rober McCluskey, Jim Malloy, Gordon Oaufoik, former nascar driver Cale Yarborough, and Mike Mosley.

Mosley, 24, is the youngest driver in the field, five months younger than rookie Steve Kirsiloff, Andretti's partner on the STP team. He also is one of the most eager. He won his first U.S. Auto Club championship race at Trenton, N.J., April 24 after repeatedly finishing well on the circuit last year and earning the league's No. 4 ranking.

Mosley wrecked twice trying to get into the Indy field for the fourth time and finally made it with one of the rebuilt Eagle-Watsons tended by A. J. Watson, who has built six Indy winners.

Only rookie starters besides Krisiloff will be Englishman David Hobbs, teammate of Donohue; Bentley Warren III and Denny Zimmerman.

The last rookie winner was former world champion Graham Hill of England in 1966.

Handicappers established Donohue and Foyt as a co-favorites. Donohue consistently was faster than Revson in practice. Foyt, staring his 14th 500, always is a contender.

McCluskey and sixth-row starter Bud Tingelstad have run in nine previous 500s, Bobby Unser in eight.

The relatively flat track, its original bricks now covered with asphalt, has taken 58 lives including pre-500 races before 1911, but the cars have become safer in spite of higher speeds.

Thirteen cars banged into the concrete retaining wall in practice and qualification this month but nobody was hurt.

The last drivers killed in the race were Eddie Sachs and rookie David MacDonald in a fiery first-lap collision in 1964.

Mechanical problems put more cars out of contention than are eliminated by wrecks. Only 12 of the 33 starters were still on the track when Al Unser took the checkered flag last year.

The pole care has won only eight times in the past 54 races. The only drivers who started first and finished that way since World War II were Bill Vokovich, 1953; Pat Flasherty, 1956; Parnelli Jones, 1963, and Al Unser last year.

Three mandatory refueling stops, intended to keep cars from carrying dangerously large loads of the alcohol fuel, have made it almost impossible for a car to lead all 200 laps under modern rules. Nobody had, anyway, when all stops were optional.

Rematch On Tap In Breeder's Sprint

. . . TOP FOUR FROM GOOD NEIGHBOR STAKES VIE AGAIN TODAY

By HAL BROWN
Star Sports Editor

Omaha — The top four finishers in last Friday's $11,150 Good Neighbor Stakes will vie again today in the Breeders Sprint Stakes at Ak-Sar-Ben.

But today, the reward is slightly greater with a $12,500 price tag, the race a bit longer by 110 yards at 6 furlongs and racing secretary Harry Krovitz has adjusted the weights those four will be carrying in their saddle bags.

Mr. Ogle, the T. V. Smith-owned colt who won the Good Neighbor Stakes by one-half length over Four Way Split while carrying 116 pounds over the 5½ furlongs in 1:053-5 on an off track, will be asked to tote 122 for 6 furlongs today.

Meanwhile, Four Way Split, owned by a four-man combine and trained by Smith, will carry 122, the same as he did in finishing second to Mr. Ogle, a neck in front of the Van Berg Stables' Mr. Bum Bum, who was another eight lengths in front of Van Berg stablemate Benny's Boy.

Mr. Bum Bum, who carried 118 in that one, will go the post with only 115 today and Benny's Boy, toting 116 a week ago, gets in at 115 also today.

Others in today's feature are Kid Cascio at 115, Lincoln's Miss at 117, Levant at 119 and Noble Nova at 117 in a race limited to Nebraska-bred 3-year-olds.

The victory in the Good Neighbor Stakes was the second in a row for Mr. Ogle at Ak-Sar-Ben and his second in four starts this season, boosting his earnings for the year near the $10,000 mark after winning only one of five last season for earnings of $2,100.

Four Way Split, who campaigned with Mr. Ogle earlier this year at Gulfstream Park in Florida, has only one win in five outings this year after winning more than $28,000 as a 2-year-old.

Mr. Bum Bum, a Van Berg nominee to the Kentucky Derby by Sonny Fleet out of Estacion, has been a disappointment in recent outs after winning twice and finishing third in his first three starts at the Fair Grounds last winter.

His third place finish in the Good Neighbor Stakes was his first Ak-Sar-Ben appearance of the season.

Today's feature also offers a rematch of the Countess Stakes' duel between Travis Evans' Lincoln's Miss and Bart Ford's Noble Nova, a 5½ furlong test won by the Ford filly by 3½ lengths.

Lincoln's Miss has yet to win in seven 1971 starts after winning five of nine for earnings of $20,000 as a 2-year-old and Noble Nova's victory in the Countess Stakes was her second in five starts this season.

Another 'State Meet' Scheduled

By VIRGIL PARKER
Prep Sports Writer

Cozad — The field for the boys Junior division at the annual Midstates Federation track and field championships here today reads like the state high school meet all over again.

Grand Island's state Class A championship squad will be represented by Dave Bosley, the two-mile king, while runnerup Hastings will have three individual winners on hand. They are long jump Gold Medal winner Mark Munger, Brian Lierman, who tied for first in the high jump, and 100-yard dash winner Dave Buchholz.

Jon Cole of Columbus, the Class A 880-yard run champ will also be in the five-division, day-long meet.

Morning, afternoon and evening sessions will include competition for the intermediate girls and boys divisions (12-15), junior girls (16 and up), junior boys (16-18) and the collegiate section (19 and over).

The high school division will pit champions from various classes for the first time.

Buchholz will be running against Greg Schneider of Hayes Center in the dashes. Schneider won the Class D 100 and 220 and captured the Gold Medal in both events.

Whether Bosley enters the mile or two-mile runs he'll get a chance to challenge another state champion. Fred Carnahan of Class C Genoa claimed the Gold Medal in the two-mile with a 9:53.0 timing, one-tenth of a second faster than that posted by Bosley.

Among the other state high school meet winners on hand are Dan Harper of Beaver City, the Class C high jump champ Cal Coffin of Osceola, who won the same division's 440-yard race and Tom Kropp of Class B Aurora, the Gold Medalist in the shot put and winner of his division's discus title.

"We had 450 entries last year," meet chairman Dean Dorsey said of the annual Memorial Day event, "and we're going to top that figure this time. But even more important than numbers is the quality of our field."

The addition of girls track this spring as a statewide sport in Nebraska high schools has greatly increased entries in that division, according to Dorsey.

"And don't overlook the collegiate section," Dorsey warned. "The mile run in that division could be the highlight race of the day."

Entries include Dan Speck of Nebraska. His best time this spring of 4:10 is matched by that of Glenn Appell of Kansas Wesleyan, who will be joined in the field by teammate Richard Akusa (4:12.5). Rich Molczyk of Kearney (4:11.6) is among others expected in the race.

The meet, sponsored by the Cozad Jaycees and sanctioned by the United States Track and Field Federation, opens at 8:30 a.m. and is scheduled for completion at about 9:30 Saturday night.

Sprints Set For Omaha

Omaha—The Nebraska Super-Modified Racing Association will conduct the first sprint car races held in Omaha in seven years when its top drivers take to the Sunset Speedways track Wednesday night at 8 p.m.

Auto Racing Action Plentiful

Area auto racing fans may have to flip a coin every day for about the next week because there are so many scheduled racing programs it would be impossible to see them all.

Sprint car fans, for instance, can choose among six different programs in the next five days.

Many of the same sprint car drivers are expected to race at five of the following six locations: Saturday — Knoxville and Beatrice; Sunday — Belleville, Kan., and Eagle; Monday — Eagle; Wednesday — Omaha.

Defending IMCA sprint car national point champion Jerry Blundy of Galesburg, Ill., will be among the drivers competing Saturday night at Knoxville for a $5,500 purse. His biggest challenge may come from Lincoln's Roger Rager, the 22-year-old driver who last week won a heat race, trophy dash and A-Feature at the Marion County Fairgrounds.

Most of the Nebraska Modified Racing Association drivers, however, will vie at Beatrice Speedway where three weeks ago Lincoln driver Lloyd Beckman won the A-Feature despite flipping his car three times.

Most Lincoln area drivers will compete twice Sunday. The 20th annual Memorial Day Classic at Belleville has drawn Lincoln drivers Keith Hightshoe, Russ Brahmer, Lonnie Jensen, Roger Abbott, Frank Brennfoerder, Danny Holliman, Vince Kelley, Beatrice drivers Kenny Parde and Jim Heble and Palmyra driver Jim Golden.

Also in the more than 30-man field will be Denver's Harry Ivers, Oklahoma City's Danny Swick, Kansas City's Dick Sutcliffe and Al Murie and two-time Big Car Racing Association champion Roy Bryant of Wichita.

Time trials at Belleville start at 1:30 p.m. and the races follow at 2:30. Most of the drivers then will shift to Eagle Sunday night at 8 and will return to the same track Monday night at 8 for a Memorial Day card, which offers a special 50-lap feature race.

Many of the same sprint car drivers also will compete Wednesday at Omaha's Sunset Speedway, which will host super modifieds for the first time.

Stock car racing fans also will be treated to special programs at various locations. Many of the late model stocks will race Saturday night at Nebraska City and Sunday night at Lincoln's Midwest Speedway.

Included on the special Memorial Day card at Midwest are David City's Tom Richards and Don Styskal and Lincoln's Ed Bowes, who has won the A-Feature twice this season.

Omaha's Playland Speedway offers its regular super stock, bronco, mini-stock car program Saturday and also offers a special Memorial Day program Monday.

For drag racing buffs, the winningest super stock and pro stock driver in drag racing history, Ronnie Sox will be featured Sunday at Cornhusker Raceway Park, located five miles south of Omaha on I-80.

Don Nicholson, another nationally known drag racer, also will compete Sunday at Cornhusker Raceway. Time trials start at 9 a.m. and eliminations begin at 1:30 p.m.

—FIRES SECOND STRAIGHT 66—

Trevino Into Lead At Memphis Classic

Memphis, Tenn. (AP)— Lee Trevino fired his second straight 66 Friday and vaulted into the second-round lead in the $175,000 Danny Thomas - Memphis Golf Classic.

The self-styled merry Mexican from El Paso, Texas, had a 36-hole score of 132, eight under par on the friendly, little Colonial Country Club course, a 6,466-yard layout that annually yields some of the lowest scores on the pro golf tour.

Trevino, winner of one tournament and more than

Leaders, Page 12

$80,000 this season, held a one-stroke lead over first-round pacesetter Larry Ziegler, who had to rally for a 71 and 133.

Puerto Rican Chi Chi Rodriguez was alone in third place after shooting a 68 for 134.

Billy Casper struggled in with a 73 for 142 and just made the cut for the final two rounds today and Sunday. Among those who missed were former PGA champ Ray Floyd and Ken Venturi, the former U.S. Open king who is attempting another comeback from a series of hand operations. Venturi had a 72 for 149.

The talkative Trevino, who has been fourth or better six times this season and has challenged several other times, matched a birdie deuce with his only bogey on the front side, then made his move coming home.

He drove over the green on the 298 yard, par four 10th, chipped back and made a 3½ foot birdie putt. Trevino ran in a 30 foot putt on the 12th, then got a break on the next hole. He drove it out of bounds, but the ball hit a tree and bounced back in bounds. He was able to save par.

He missed the green on the 14th but saved par again, holding a 15 foot putt. Trevino reached the par five 16th in two and two putted, and took sole control of the lead when he made an 18 foot putt on the 17th for his third deuce of the day.

Ziegler, who had an opening 62, went four over par on the front side, but rallied with a pair of two-putt birdies on par fives and ripped a five iron to within 3½-feet for another bird coming home.

The top three teams from a year ago return intact to this year's Great Plains Classic, opening today at Holmes Park, but the team to beat may be a new combination.

Foulston and Holland teamed for an eight-under-par 135 a year ago, winning by a single stroke on a 28-foot birdie putt by Holland on the final hole at Pioneers Park.

And the two teams that finished in the runner-up role when Holland snapped a three-way tie with the clutch birdie are also back, Wichitans Gary Navarro and Craig DeLongy and University of Nebraska teammates Craig Waugh and Jim Roudebush.

Foulston also was in the winner's circle two years ago when he teamed with former Wichita State golfer Jamie Thompson for a 133 winning total.

But the team to beat in this year's 50-team field could be two former Nebraska State Amateur champions with nine titles between them.

That's eight-time Nebraska champion Bob Astleford and 1969 king Frank Rose, formerly of Fairbury, now residing in Topeka, Kan.

Rose, the No. 1 golfer on the Nebraska team a year ago and the University of Missouri's No. 1 man, Scott Bess, finished fourth last year while Astleford, teaming with Glen Gruenemeier, finished in a tie for 17th at even-par 143.

Gruenemeier is combining this year with Norfolk's Jim Shade, a member of Big Eight champion Oklahoma State's team who tied for low spot with Grand Island professional Merle Backlund in Monday's Local Qualifying for the U.S. Open.

Another top contender figures to be the team of current Nebraska State Amateur champion Charlie Borner of North Platte and Lincoln's Matt Taber.

In addition to the 50 teams in the scratch division of the Classic, another 64 teams will vie for the championship in the handicap division.

Clete Boyer On Waivers With Braves

Atlanta (AP) — A subdued Clete Boyer, declaring that "sometimes I talk too much" was placed on waivers by the Atlanta Braves Friday, climaxing an exchange of public insults between the slick-fielding third baseman and Paul Richards, the club's vice-president.

Richards and Boyer huddled behind closed doors for almost two hours before the vice-president emerged with a terse two paragraph statement that said:

"Cletis Boyer will be given his unconditional release as soon as waivers are obtained.

"The agreement between Boyer and the Braves was consummated according to an understanding through mutual agreement."

Sonny's Delight Surprise In Queen's Handicap

By RANDY EICKHOFF
Star Sports Writer

Omaha — Betting favorite Kathryn's Doll failed to live up to the crowds expectations as the six-year-old mare ran a poor third to Sonny's Delight . . . winner of the Queen's Handicap at Ak-Sar-Ben Friday afternoon.

But Al Herrera, riding Sonny's Delight in place of Roldolfo Calderon, who rode the five-year-old product of Play With Fire out of Dever Miss during her last outing, said the favorite posed no threat to him at all.

"She (Kathryn's Doll) was the only horse in the race that I was really worried about," Herrera said following his upset victory, "but she didn't show me anything at all. We closed fast in the sixteenth. The rest just followed me in."

Second favorite among the crowd of 12,417, M. H. Van Berg stable entry of Thirty Dashes and Gold Rags, didn't worry Herrera at all.

"They didn't have a chance," he said waving his hand to dismiss the idea, "I didn't really have any problem at all."

Herrera said Sonny's Delight responded late to his demand, but answered well in the final turn towards the home stretch.

Bold Accent had broken on top from the gate and led the field of nine all the way until half way around the stretch turn when she gave ground slowly to the fast-coming Sonny's Delight who had been holding a length back.

Sonny's Delight then pulled steadily up and passed Bold Accent to win by a nose in a photo finish with a time of 1:12 over six furlongs. A claim of foul by Kathryn's Doll jockey Eddie Burns was disallowed by the stewards.

The Victor and Otto Preuss owned mare returned $11.60, $5.60 and $3.60 to backers while Bold Accent was good for $6.00 and $4.20. Kathryn's Doll showed for $3.20.

"We didn't do any special prepping for this race," trainer and co-owner Otto Pruess said following Sonny's Delight's victory, "but we didn't think she had a very good chance of winning against Kathryn's Doll. Afterall, she was being ridden by a strange jockey. But he gave a good ride."

Preuss cited the reason for Sonny's Delight's surprise showing as coming from good stock.

"That Dever Miss (the dam) was a right-good mare," Pruess said. "And the sire (Play With Fire) was a darn good breeder even if he didn't win very much."

The win desposited $9,601.25, the winner's share of a $15,000-added purse, to the Preuss coffers and boosted Sonny's Delight's earnings for 1971 to $11,111.25. Her record is now one win, one place and one show in three starts.

INDY 500 TALK OVER

. . . Records Expected To Fall In Race

Indianapolis, Ind. (AP) — Thirty-three seasoned drivers, facing odds of 2 to 1 they won't be running at the finish, will charge around the Indianapolis Motor Speedway today in a million-dollar speed battle almost certain to shred records for 500 miles.

A crowd upwards of 300,000 may see two records blown aside on the first lap — 162.514 m.p.h. for the first time around the 2½-mile track, set by Mario Andretti in 1969; and 168.666 for any set by Lloyd Ruby in 1968.

The three-car front row, the best in two weekends of 10-mile time trials, qualified at speeds from Peter Reuson's record 178.696 for the pole position to Bobby Unser's 175.816 for the outside spot, with Mark Donohue in the middle at 177.087.

Revson and Donohue have new Mark 16 McLarens, Bobby Unser an Eagle built by ex-Grand Prix racer Dan Gurney of Santa Ana, Calif. Another of the Mark 16s, built in England with help from sports car ace Roger Penske of Philadelphia, will menace the leaders from the second row with former world champion Denis Hulme of New Zealand at the wheel.

Also big in the front row's rearview mirrors will be Al Unser, last year's Indy winner, and A. J. Foyt Jr., who has won it three times and intends to be the first four-timer.

The winner could come from even deeper in the lineup, with 1969 winner Andretti in a German - built McNamara, perennial contender Lloyd Ruby and former motorcycle champion Joe Leonard lined up in the third row.

Not far back are two second generation racers who qualified strongly, Billy Vukovich and Gary Bettenhausen, and such noted chargers as Rober McCluskey, Jim Malloy, Gordon Oaufoik, former nascar driver Cale Yarborough, and Mike Mosley.

Mosley, 24, is the youngest driver in the field, five months younger than rookie Steve Kirsiloff, Andretti's partner on the STP team. He also is one of the most eager. He won his first U.S. Auto Club championship race at Trenton, N.J., April 24 after repeatedly finishing well on the circuit last year and earning the league's No. 4 ranking.

Mosley wrecked twice trying to get into the Indy field for the fourth time and finally made it with one of the rebuilt Eagle-Watsons tended by A. J. Watson, who has built six Indy winners.

Only rookie starters besides Krisiloff will be Englishman David Hobbs, teammate of Donohue; Bentley Warren III and Denny Zimmerman.

The last rookie winner was former world champion Graham Hill of England in 1966.

Handicappers established Donohue and Foyt as a co-favorites. Donohue consistently was faster than Revson in practice. Foyt, staring his 14th 500, always is a contender.

McCluskey and sixth-row starter Bud Tingelstad have run in nine previous 500s, Bobby Unser in eight.

The relatively flat track, its original bricks now covered with asphalt, has taken 58 lives including pre-500 races before 1911, but the cars have become safer in spite of higher speeds.

Thirteen cars banged into the concrete retaining wall in practice and qualification this month but nobody was hurt.

The last drivers killed in the race were Eddie Sachs and rookie David MacDonald in a fiery first-lap collision in 1964.

Mechanical problems put more cars out of contention than are eliminated by wrecks. Only 12 of the 33 starters were still on the track when Al Unser took the checkered flag last year.

The pole care has won only eight times in the past 54 races. The only drivers who started first and finished that way since World War II were Bill Vokovich, 1953; Pat Flasherty, 1956; Parnelli Jones, 1963, and Al Unser last year.

Three mandatory refueling stops, intended to keep cars from carrying dangerously large loads of the alcohol fuel, have made it almost impossible for a car to lead all 200 laps under modern rules. Nobody had, anyway, when all stops were optional.

Another 'State Meet' Scheduled

By VIRGIL PARKER
Prep Sports Writer

Cozad — The field for the boys Junior division at the annual Midstates Federation track and field championships here today reads like the state high school meet all over again.

Grand Island's state Class A championship squad will be represented by Dave Bosley, the two-mile king, while runnerup Hastings will have three individual winners on hand. They are long jump Gold Medal winner Mark Munger, Brian Lierman, who tied for first in the high jump, and 100-yard dash winner Dave Buchholz.

Jon Cole of Columbus, the Class A 880-yard run champ will also be in the five-division, day-long meet.

Morning, afternoon and evening sessions will include competition for the intermediate girls and boys divisions (12-15), junior girls (16 and up), junior boys (16-18) and the collegiate section (19 and over).

The high school division will pit champions from various classes for the first time.

Buchholz will be running against Greg Schneider of Hayes Center in the dashes. Schneider won the Class D 100 and 220 and captured the Gold Medal in both events.

Whether Bosley enters the mile or two-mile runs he'll get a chance to challenge another state champion. Fred Carnahan of Class C Genoa claimed the Gold Medal in the two-mile with a 9:53.0 timing, one-tenth of a second faster than that posted by Bosley.

Among the other state high school meet winners on hand are Dan Harper of Beaver City, the Class C high jump champ Cal Coffin of Osceola, who won the same division's 440-yard race and Tom Kropp of Class B Aurora, the Gold Medalist in the shot put and winner of his division's discus title.

"We had 450 entries last year," meet chairman Dean Dorsey said of the annual Memorial Day event, "and we're going to top that figure this time. But even more important than numbers is the quality of our field."

The addition of girls track this spring as a statewide sport in Nebraska high schools has greatly increased entries in that division, according to Dorsey.

"And don't overlook the collegiate section," Dorsey warned. "The mile run in that division could be the highlight race of the day."

Entries include Dan Speck of Nebraska. His best time this spring of 4:10 is matched by that of Glenn Appell of Kansas Wesleyan, who will be joined in the field by teammate Richard Akusa (4:12.5). Rich Molczyk of Kearney (4:11.6) is among others expected in the race.

The meet, sponsored by the Cozad Jaycees and sanctioned by the United States Track and Field Federation, opens at 8:30 a.m. and is scheduled for completion at about 9:30 Saturday night.

Rematch On Tap In Breeder's Sprint

. . . TOP FOUR FROM GOOD NEIGHBOR STAKES VIE AGAIN TODAY

By HAL BROWN
Star Sports Editor

Omaha — The top four finishers in last Friday's $11,150 Good Neighbor Stakes will vie again today in the Breeders Sprint Stakes at Ak-Sar-Ben.

But today, the reward is slightly greater with a $12,500 price tag, the race a bit longer by 110 yards at 6 furlongs and racing secretary Harry Krovitz has adjusted the weights those four will be carrying in their saddle bags.

Mr. Ogle, the T. V. Smith-owned colt who won the Good Neighbor Stakes by one-half length over Four Way Split while carrying 116 pounds over the 5½ furlongs in 1:053-5 on an off track, will be asked to tote 122 for 6 furlongs today.

Meanwhile, Four Way Split, owned by a four-man combine and trained by Smith, will carry 122, the same as he did in finishing second to Mr. Ogle, a neck in front of the Van Berg Stables' Mr. Bum Bum, who was another eight lengths in front of Van Berg stablemate Benny's Boy.

Mr. Bum Bum, who carried 118 in that one, will go the post with only 115 today and Benny's Boy, toting 116 a week ago, gets in at 115 also today.

Others in today's feature are Kid Cascio at 115, Lincoln's Miss at 117, Levant at 119 and Noble Nova at 117 in a race limited to Nebraska-bred 3-year-olds.

The victory in the Good Neighbor Stakes was the second in a row for Mr. Ogle at Ak-Sar-Ben and his second in four starts this season, boosting his earnings for the year near the $10,000 mark after winning only one of five last season for earnings of $2,100.

Four Way Split, who campaigned with Mr. Ogle earlier this year at Gulfstream Park in Florida, has only one win in five outings this year after winning more than $28,000 as a 2-year-old.

Mr. Bum Bum, a Van Berg nominee to the Kentucky Derby by Sonny Fleet out of Estacion, has been a disappointment in recent outs after winning twice and finishing third in his first three starts at the Fair Grounds last winter.

His third place finish in the Good Neighbor Stakes was his first Ak-Sar-Ben appearance of the season.

Today's feature also offers a rematch of the Countess Stakes' duel between Travis Evans' Lincoln's Miss and Bart Ford's Noble Nova, a 5½ furlong test won by the Ford filly by 3½ lengths.

Lincoln's Miss has yet to win in seven 1971 starts after winning five of nine for earnings of $20,000 as a 2-year-old and Noble Nova's victory in the Countess Stakes was her second in five starts this season.

Auto Racing Action Plentiful

Area auto racing fans may have to flip a coin every day for about the next week because there are so many scheduled racing programs it would be impossible to see them all.

Sprint car fans, for instance, can choose among six different programs in the next five days.

Many of the same sprint car drivers are expected to race at five of the following six locations: Saturday — Knoxville and Beatrice; Sunday — Belleville, Kan., and Eagle; Monday — Eagle; Wednesday — Omaha.

Defending IMCA sprint car national point champion Jerry Blundy of Galesburg, Ill., will be among the drivers competing Saturday night at Knoxville for a $5,500 purse. His biggest challenge may come from Lincoln's Roger Rager, the 22-year-old driver who last week won a heat race, trophy dash and A-Feature at the Marion County Fairgrounds.

Most of the Nebraska Modified Racing Association drivers, however, will vie at Beatrice Speedway where three weeks ago Lincoln driver Lloyd Beckman won the A-Feature despite flipping his car three times.

Most Lincoln area drivers will compete twice Sunday. The 20th annual Memorial Day Classic at Belleville has drawn Lincoln drivers Keith Hightshoe, Russ Brahmer, Lonnie Jensen, Roger Abbott, Frank Brennfoerder, Danny Holliman, Vince Kelley, Beatrice drivers Kenny Parde and Jim Heble and Palmyra driver Jim Golden.

Also in the more than 30-man field will be Denver's Harry Ivers, Oklahoma City's Danny Swick, Kansas City's Dick Sutcliffe and Al Murie and two-time Big Car Racing Association champion Roy Bryant of Wichita.

Time trials at Belleville start at 1:30 p.m. and the races follow at 2:30. Most of the drivers then will shift to Eagle Sunday night at 8 and will return to the same track Monday night at 8 for a Memorial Day card, which offers a special 50-lap feature race.

Many of the same sprint car drivers also will compete Wednesday at Omaha's Sunset Speedway, which will host super modifieds for the first time.

Stock car racing fans also will be treated to special programs at various locations. Many of the late model stocks will race Saturday night at Nebraska City and Sunday night at Lincoln's Midwest Speedway.

Included on the special Memorial Day card at Midwest are David City's Tom Richards and Don Styskal and Lincoln's Ed Bowes, who has won the A-Feature twice this season.

Omaha's Playland Speedway offers its regular super stock, bronco, mini-stock car program Saturday and also offers a special Memorial Day program Monday.

For drag racing buffs, the winningest super stock and pro stock driver in drag racing history, Ronnie Sox will be featured Sunday at Cornhusker Raceway Park, located five miles south of Omaha on I-80.

Don Nicholson, another nationally known drag racer, also will compete Sunday at Cornhusker Raceway. Time trials start at 9 a.m. and eliminations begin at 1:30 p.m.

Trevino Into Lead At Memphis Classic

Memphis, Tenn. (AP)— Lee Trevino fired his second straight 66 Friday and vaulted into the second-round lead in the $175,000 Danny Thomas - Memphis Golf Classic.

The self-styled merry Mexican from El Paso, Texas, had a 36-hole score of 132, eight under par on the friendly, little Colonial Country Club course, a 6,466-yard layout that annually yields some of the lowest scores on the pro golf tour.

Trevino, winner of one tournament and more than $80,000 this season, held a one-stroke lead over first-round pacesetter Larry Ziegler, who had to rally for a 71 and 133.

Puerto Rican Chi Chi Rodriguez was alone in third place after shooting a 68 for 134.

Billy Casper struggled in with a 73 for 142 and just made the cut for the final two rounds today and Sunday. Among those who missed were former PGA champ Ray Floyd and Ken Venturi, the former U.S. Open king who is attempting another comeback from a series of hand operations. Venturi had a 72 for 149.

The talkative Trevino, who has been fourth or better six times this season and has challenged several other times, matched a birdie deuce with his only bogey on the front side, then made his move coming home.

He drove over the green on the 298 yard, par four 10th, chipped back and made a 3½ foot birdie putt. Trevino ran in a 30 foot putt on the 12th, then got a break on the next hole. He drove it out of bounds, but the ball hit a tree and bounced back in bounds. He was able to save par.

He missed the green on the 14th but saved par again, holding a 15 foot putt. Trevino reached the par five 16th in two and two putted, and took sole control of the lead when he made an 18 foot putt on the 17th for his third deuce of the day.

Ziegler, who had an opening 62, went four over par on the front side, but rallied with a pair of two-putt birdies on par fives and ripped a five iron to within 3½-feet for another bird coming home.

Siebert, Red Sox Defeat Blue, A's In Showdown

By Associated Press

The Boston Red Sox snapped the 10-game winning streak of Vida Blue, Oakland's top pitcher, by defeating the A's, 4-3, in major league baseball Friday night.

Sonny Siebert, helped by Rico Petrocelli's three RBI on two home runs, stretched his unbeaten string to nine as the Red Sox won this first meeting between the American League's divisional leaders.

Neither Blue, now 10-2, nor Siebert were around at the finish. Blu went out in the eighth when the Sox scored what proved to be the winning run on George Scott's single with the bases loaded.

Siebert was replaced by Bob Bolin in the ninth with two out and the count 3-1 on Dave Duncan. Duncan hit two long fouls then struck out to end the game.

Ted Simmons' three-run homer in the seventh helped St. Louis trip Atlanta, 4-0, behind Reggie Cleveland's four-hitter. And Lee May's RBI single in the 13th gave Cincinnati a 1-0 squeaker over Houston.

Minnesota shaded Baltimore, 7-6; the Chicago Cubs defeated Pittsburgh, 4-2; Kansas City blanked Washington, 5-0; California whipped the New York Yankees, 9-6; Cleveland shut out the Chicago White Sox, 4-0 and Detroit tripped Milwaukee, 6-3.

Sam McDowell tossed a two-hitter for the Indians against the White Sox. Harmon Killebrew walloped his 493rd and tied Lou Gehrig on the all-time homer list in leading the Twins over the Orioles.

Ken Wright scattered six hits and won his first game as a starter as he blanked the Senators for the Royals. Milt Pappas also tossed a six-hitter against the Pirates to end a four-game losing streak for the Cubs.

Jim Spencer drove in four runs to lead the Angels over the Yankees. The Tiger capitalized on Milwaukee's miscues in downing the Brewers.

The New York Mets at San Diego night game was postponed because of wet grounds. The two teams will make up the game as part of a twi-night doubleheader today starting at 7:30 p.m., CDT.

Al Downing drove in three runs with a single and a double and scattered seven hits in pitching Los Angeles to a 6-2 victory over Philadelphia.

The San Francisco Giants made the most of three hits and as many Montreal miscues for the three unearned runs and a 3-1 victory over the Expos.

King & His Court In Lincoln Tonight

Eddie Feigner, who will lead his famous four-man softball team, The King and His Court, against KOLN-KGIN-TV's local Triple A club at Sherman Field tonight, has a friendly word of advice for the fans.

"Don't leave until the final inning is over," warns Feigner who can pitch accurately from anywhere. "We'll be drawing plays from our bag of tricks until the final out is made."

Also on the program is a twinbill between Lincoln City champion King's and Nebraska State titleholder Kearney which begins at 6 p.m.

Tickets for the game are now on sale at Russell Sporting Goods in Lincoln and will also be available at the gate.

Hill Files Suit Against PGA's Players Group

The suit charges that Hill's civil rights were violated in that he was forced to pay the fine before he coud pursue his profession as a golfer.

The suit also charges the Tournament Players Division with being a monopoly engaged in interstate commerce in violation of the Sherman act.

Hill, reached on the golf course where he was competing in the $175,000 Danny Thomas-Memphis Golf Classic, declined comment and referred all questions to his attorney.

Elgert Leads Huskers

Of the two seniors on the squad, first baseman Pat Elgert led the team in four areas and shared the lead in two others. Pat's four RBI's in the final game of the season sent him past fellow senior Randy Spiehs, the Husker catcher, in that column 14-12.

Elgert led the team in hits (32), doubles (6) and fielding (.980, only four errors in 204 chances). He and junior third baseman Steve Achepohl were the only Huskers to play in all 30 games and his two triples tied him with Achepohl and another junior, Gene Stohs.

Achepohl had the lead in three categories — official at bats (103), runs scored (18) and home runs (3). Stohs, originally a pitcher, came back after being injured in the first Big Eight series at Colorado as an outfielder for the final 12 games and led the team in hitting with a .339 average. It was his second straight .300 plus season. His speed on the basepaths enabled him to lead the Huskers in stolen bases with six. Before his injury, he had held a team-leading 1.69 ERA.

The ERA leader among the regulars, however, was Honolulu freshman Ryan Kurosaki, 2.70. The ace righthander was also the leader in innings pitched (59⅔), games started (9), complete games (5), and strike outs (39), while posting a 4-3 record. That mark was bested only by junior Bruce Cramer's 3-2. Cramer also made the most game appearances (15) on the Nebraska staff.

Siebert, Red Sox Defeat Blue, A's In Showdown

By Associated Press

The Boston Red Sox snapped the 10-game winning streak of Vida Blue, Oakland's top pitcher, by defeating the A's, 4-3, in major league baseball Friday night.

Sonny Siebert, helped by Rico Petrocelli's three RBI on two home runs, stretched his unbeaten string to nine as the Red Sox won this first meeting between the American League's divisional leaders.

Neither Blue, now 10-2, nor Siebert were around at the finish. Blu went out in the eighth when the Sox scored what proved to be the winning run on George Scott's single with the bases loaded.

Siebert was replaced by Bob Bolin in the ninth with two out and the count 3-1 on Dave Duncan. Duncan hit two long fouls then struck out to end the game.

Ted Simmons' three-run homer in the seventh helped St. Louis trip Atlanta, 4-0, behind Reggie Cleveland's four-hitter. And Lee May's RBI single in the 13th gave Cincinnati a 1-0 squeaker over Houston.

Minnesota shaded Baltimore, 7-6; the Chicago Cubs defeated Pittsburgh, 4-2; Kansas City blanked Washington, 5-0; California whipped the New York Yankees, 9-6; Cleveland shut out the Chicago White Sox, 4-0 and Detroit tripped Milwaukee, 6-3.

Sam McDowell tossed a two-hitter for the Indians against the White Sox. Harmon Killebrew walloped his 493rd and tied Lou Gehrig on the all-time homer list in leading the Twins over the Orioles.

Ken Wright scattered six hits and won his first game as a starter as he blanked the Senators for the Royals. Milt Pappas also tossed a six-hitter against the Pirates to end a four-game losing streak for the Cubs.

Jim Spencer drove in four runs to lead the Angels over the Yankees. The Tiger capitalized on Milwaukee's miscues in downing the Brewers.

The New York Mets at San Diego night game was postponed because of wet grounds. The two teams will make up the game as part of a twi-night doubleheader today starting at 7:30 p.m., CDT.

Al Downing drove in three runs with a single and a double and scattered seven hits in pitching Los Angeles to a 6-2 victory over Philadelphia.

The San Francisco Giants made the most of three hits and as many Montreal miscues for the three unearned runs and a 3-1 victory over the Expos.

Hill Files Suit Against PGA's Players Group

The suit charges that Hill's civil rights were violated in that he was forced to pay the fine before he coud pursue his profession as a golfer.

The suit also charges the Tournament Players Division with being a monopoly engaged in interstate commerce in violation of the Sherman act.

Hill, reached on the golf course where he was competing in the $175,000 Danny Thomas-Memphis Golf Classic, declined comment and referred all questions to his attorney.

Elgert Leads Huskers

Of the two seniors on the squad, first baseman Pat Elgert led the team in four areas and shared the lead in two others. Pat's four RBI's in the final game of the season sent him past fellow senior Randy Spiehs, the Husker catcher, in that column 14-12.

Elgert led the team in hits (32), doubles (6) and fielding (.980, only four errors in 204 chances). He and junior third baseman Steve Achepohl were the only Huskers to play in all 30 games and his two triples tied him with Achepohl and another junior, Gene Stohs.

Achepohl had the lead in three categories — official at bats (103), runs scored (18) and home runs (3). Stohs, originally a pitcher, came back after being injured in the first Big Eight series at Colorado as an outfielder for the final 12 games and led the team in hitting with a .339 average. It was his second straight .300 plus season. His speed on the basepaths enabled him to lead the Huskers in stolen bases with six. Before his injury, he had held a team-leading 1.69 ERA.

The ERA leader among the regulars, however, was Honolulu freshman Ryan Kurosaki, 2.70. The ace righthander was also the leader in innings pitched (59⅔), games started (9), complete games (5), and strike outs (39), while posting a 4-3 record. That mark was bested only by junior Bruce Cramer's 3-2. Cramer also made the most game appearances (15) on the Nebraska staff.

Mountain Of Tin Cans Swamps Havelock Bank

Offering youngsters a penny a can as an incentive, the bank ended up with more than 250,000 cans.

"We didn't anticipate this much," admitted R. H. Harner, assistant cashier.

The collection drive ended Friday because, as Harner put it, "we ran out of places to put the cans."

He added that the crowd of youngsters bringing in the cans at times was so great that drive-in customers became inconvenienced. The cans were piled up at the parking lot area.

One youngster said he and his family turned in 8,500 cans.

The cans were hauled from the bank to the dump Friday evening.

John Carter, president of the local garbage haulers association, reported that he saw different groups of kids collecting cans along his county road five miles away from the bank and out in the country near the airport.

Washington (AP)— Hurricanes can be helpful as well as harmful, the Geological Survey said Friday.

Although such storms pose a potential threat to life and property, they also produce "copious amounts of rainfall" that recharges surface and ground water sources, a survey spokesman said.

Highway Unit Names Reiling As Secretary

The State Highway Commission Friday named Merle F. Reiling of Lincoln as its executive secretary, succeeding C. Cecil Eloe.

Eloe, who has held the secretary's post for the past two years, announced his resignation during the commission meeting to accept another position with the Department of Roads.

The 43-year-old Reiling will assume the duties of the $12,000-a-year post next Tuesday. Eloe's resignation was accepted with regret by the commission.

State Engineer - Director Thomas Doyle said that Eloe will be assigned to the newly-formed State Aid Unit, which will assist cities and counties with their one-year and six-year road and street plans.

Doyle said the functioning and staffing of the new unit is still being developed.

In a report to the commission, Eloe said all 538 cities and towns and 93 counties have now submitted their one and six-year programs as required by state law. Eighteen villages had been reported delinquent last month in submitting plans, subjecting them to the possible withholding of state aid.

Reiling, a former assistant manager of the Nebraska Center for Continuing Education, is presently self-employed. He has operated the Lincoln Municipal Airport's Compass Room restaurant and is a former manager of the Hillcrest Country Club.

Reiling, who attended the University of Nebraska and Concordia Teachers College, is married and has six children.

Man Wanted In $91 Holdup Turns Self In

The third man allegedly involved in a service station holdup in which University of Nebraska grid star Johnny Rodgers and another student were charged last week turned himself in to police and was charged Friday with a felony offense of larceny from person.

James F. Glass of Omaha, for whom a warrant had been issued, requested a preliminary hearing in Lancaster County Court. Judge Ralph Slocum set hearing for June 16 and bond was set at $5,000.

Glass, Rodgers and Randy McCall of Lincoln are each charged in connection with the alledged holdup of Glenn Griggs at the Derby Station at 9th and South on May 20, 1970. Approximately $91 was allegedly taken.

According to an affidavit filed in support of the warrant issued for the arrest of Glass, Glass was specifically accused of having stood outside the station with what appeared to be a rifle while two other men allegedly took money from the person of Griggs inside hte station.

Butler's First Home Village's Showpiece

By DEAN TERRILL
Southeast Nebraska Bureau

Pawnee City — The village which is to be dedicated here this Sunday certainly didn't sprout up like a patch of volunteer corn.

Rather, it was gathered from seeds which had been carefully sown as long as 109 years ago. The "yield" is six buildings which have been moved to an historical site at the east edge of Pawnee City.

The relocations have been a three-year undertaking of the Pawnee City Historical Society — an undertaking indeed. Three of the buildings were rural schools which were hauled in laboriously from the surrounding countryside.

Even more painstaking, though the move was only a few blocks, was that of transplanting the 1862 home of Nebraska's first governor, David Butler. Restored and partially furnished, the two-story structure will be the Highway 8 site's principal showpiece.

"It took five of us a week just to cut the bushes and trees along the house's moving route," said Fred Howard, who has invested hundreds of hours himself in the historic seven acres.

"Every time we brought in another building we had to trim more trees, plan the routes, plastering and painting and lower wires and go through additional red tape. Then came the plastering and painting and paper-hanging."

A retired post office custodian, Howard has headed the effort along with Society vice president Henry Caswell. A crew of Green Thumb workers had such a part that its 11 members will receive special recognition at the 1:30 p.m. ceremony.

Dr. Blue A. Carstenson, national director of Green Thumb, is coming from Washington D.C., to make the dedicatory address. The program is planned for the ginger-breaded porch of the Butler house.

Green Thumbers to be honored include Robert Brewer, Earl Clark, Ferd Hubka, Clarence Fisher, Carl Miller, Nello Parker, Francis Richardson and Joe Wilcox, all of Pawnee City; and Alfred Goodenkauf, August Boeck and Ancil Rue, all of Table Rock.

Perhaps most distinctive of the three moved schools is the tiny restored "Crackerbox School," whose 16-by-20 dimensions place it among the state's smallest schools. The larger Lower West Branch School holds a number of displays, as will the Kennedy School when plans for restoring it as a country store become reality.

Another onetime school, in fact Pawnee City's very first, later became the Benz Brothers Blacksmith Shop and was moved to the site in this latter role. The sixth building, used as site headquarters, is an A-frame house which a local teacher had patterned after some in Africa he had seen while teaching there.

Two windmills, one of them completely of wood, also stand on the site. A dismantled log cabin was hauled in but has yet to be rebuilt.

Among others appearing on Sunday's program will be Marvin Kivett, director of the State Historical Society; Delbert Niemeier, state director of Green Thumb; Elton Berck, state president of Farmers Union; and Mayor Clyde McKee. Postmaster A. L. Porr will be master of ceremonies.

According to Society president Mrs. Elsie Bartram, seven Butler grandchildren are expected for the dedication. These include Belva Butler, Mrs. Gladys Gaither, Mrs. Mary Ellen Segler and Mrs. Blanche Hahne, all of Unadilla; Ben Butler of Shawnee Mission, Kan.; Mrs. Pauline Haeffner of Springfield, Mo.; and Mrs. Burl Munsell of Parsons, Kan.

Slim Pickens 1971 Winner Of Buffalo Bill Cody Award

Veteran motion picture actor Slim Pickens has been named winner of the 1971 Buffalo Bill Cody award "for outstanding contributions to quality family entertainment in the Cody tradition."

He will be in North Platte on Thursday, June 17, to accept the award during the opening performance of the Buffalo Bill rodeo during Nebraskaland Days.

Pickens also will be grand marshal for the traditional parade and be guest of honor at a special "Buffalo Bill" luncheon in North Platte.

The announcement of Pickens' selection was made jointly by Willard R. Barbee, director of the Game Commission, originator of Nebraskaland Days, and Ken Hornbacher of North Platte, president of Nebraskaland Days, Inc.

Pickens currently is on location in New Mexico, filming "The Honkers," in which he stars. The picture deals with the life of a rodeo clown. Pickens comes by the role naturally as he began his career on the rodeo circuit at age 12 as a clown.

Pickens was born Louis Bert Lindley Jr. in Kingsburg, Calif., and received his schooling at Hanfrod, Calif. Films in which he has appeared include "The Outcasts," "Santa Fe Passage," "Stranger at My Door," "The Great Locomotive Chase," and "Dr. Strangelove."

Exon Signs Motorcycle Helmet Bill

Gov. J. James Exon Friday signed into law a bill requiring motorcyclists to wear helmets or face a fine of up to $100.

Exon informed the legislative clerk's office through a letter that he has signed LB1041, a measure similar to a bill he had earlier vetoed.

The only difference is that LB1041, unlike the vetoed LB369, does not have the emergency clause, meaning it takes effect 90 days from adjournment of the Legislature last Wednesday.

Should they be convicted of not wearing a helmet, motorcyclists would face a fine of between $10 and $100.

Exon's objections to LB369 included the fact that the emergency clause was attached to the measure and he said it would not be fair to make such a law effective overnight.

Mountain Of Tin Cans Swamps Havelock Bank

Offering youngsters a penny a can as an incentive, the bank ended up with more than 250,000 cans.

"We didn't anticipate this much," admitted R. H. Harner, assistant cashier.

The collection drive ended Friday because, as Harner put it, "we ran out of places to put the cans."

He added that the crowd of youngsters bringing in the cans at times was so great that drive-in customers became inconvenienced. The cans were piled up at the parking lot area.

One youngster said he and his family turned in 8,500 cans.

The cans were hauled from the bank to the dump Friday evening.

John Carter, president of the local garbage haulers association, reported that he saw different groups of kids collecting cans along his county road five miles away from the bank and out in the country near the airport.

Mayor Joins In Memorial Day Safety Warnings

Mayor Sam Schwartzkopf Friday joined Gov. J. James Exon and other government officials in urging Lincoln citizens and all Nebraskans to be extremely careful over the long Memorial Day weekend.

"I urge all citizens to drive carefully this weekend and to drive with lights on at all times as a preventative measure," Schwartzkopf said.

The mayor said he has directed the police department to utilize full law enforcement in this life-saving effort.

Hurricanes Said Rain Producers

Washington (AP)— Hurricanes can be helpful as well as harmful, the Geological Survey said Friday.

Although such storms pose a potential threat to life and property, they also produce "copious amounts of rainfall" that recharges surface and ground water sources, a survey spokesman said.

Highway Unit Names Reiling As Secretary

The State Highway Commission Friday named Merle F. Reiling of Lincoln as its executive secretary, succeeding C. Cecil Eloe.

Eloe, who has held the secretary's post for the past two years, announced his resignation during the commission meeting to accept another position with the Department of Roads.

The 43-year-old Reiling will assume the duties of the $12,000-a-year post next Tuesday. Eloe's resignation was accepted with regret by the commission.

State Engineer - Director Thomas Doyle said that Eloe will be assigned to the newly-formed State Aid Unit, which will assist cities and counties with their one-year and six-year road and street plans.

Doyle said the functioning and staffing of the new unit is still being developed.

In a report to the commission, Eloe said all 538 cities and towns and 93 counties have now submitted their one and six-year programs as required by state law. Eighteen villages had been reported delinquent last month in submitting plans, subjecting them to the possible withholding of state aid.

Reiling, a former assistant manager of the Nebraska Center for Continuing Education, is presently self-employed. He has operated the Lincoln Municipal Airport's Compass Room restaurant and is a former manager of the Hillcrest Country Club.

Reiling, who attended the University of Nebraska and Concordia Teachers College, is married and has six children.

Man Wanted In $91 Holdup Turns Self In

The third man allegedly involved in a service station holdup in which University of Nebraska grid star Johnny Rodgers and another student were charged last week turned himself in to police and was charged Friday with a felony offense of larceny from person.

James F. Glass of Omaha, for whom a warrant had been issued, requested a preliminary hearing in Lancaster County Court. Judge Ralph Slocum set hearing for June 16 and bond was set at $5,000.

Glass, Rodgers and Randy McCall of Lincoln are each charged in connection with the alledged holdup of Glenn Griggs at the Derby Station at 9th and South on May 20, 1970. Approximately $91 was allegedly taken.

According to an affidavit filed in support of the warrant issued for the arrest of Glass, Glass was specifically accused of having stood outside the station with what appeared to be a rifle while two other men allegedly took money from the person of Griggs inside hte station.

Butler's First Home Village's Showpiece

By DEAN TERRILL
Southeast Nebraska Bureau

Pawnee City — The village which is to be dedicated here this Sunday certainly didn't sprout up like a patch of volunteer corn.

Rather, it was gathered from seeds which had been carefully sown as long as 109 years ago. The "yield" is six buildings which have been moved to an historical site at the east edge of Pawnee City.

The relocations have been a three-year undertaking of the Pawnee City Historical Society — an undertaking indeed. Three of the buildings were rural schools which were hauled in laboriously from the surrounding countryside.

Even more painstaking, though the move was only a few blocks, was that of transplanting the 1862 home of Nebraska's first governor, David Butler. Restored and partially furnished, the two-story structure will be the Highway 8 site's principal showpiece.

"It took five of us a week just to cut the bushes and trees along the house's moving route," said Fred Howard, who has invested hundreds of hours himself in the historic seven acres.

"Every time we brought in another building we had to trim more trees, plan the routes, plastering and painting and lower wires and go through additional red tape. Then came the plastering and painting and paper-hanging."

A retired post office custodian, Howard has headed the effort along with Society vice president Henry Caswell. A crew of Green Thumb workers had such a part that its 11 members will receive special recognition at the 1:30 p.m. ceremony.

Green Thumbers to be honored include Robert Brewer, Earl Clark, Ferd Hubka, Clarence Fisher, Carl Miller, Nello Parker, Francis Richardson and Joe Wilcox, all of Pawnee City; and Alfred Goodenkauf, August Boeck and Ancil Rue, all of Table Rock.

Perhaps most distinctive of the three moved schools is the tiny restored "Crackerbox School," whose 16-by-20 dimensions place it among the state's smallest schools. The larger Lower West Branch School holds a number of displays, as will the Kennedy School when plans for restoring it as a country store become reality.

Another onetime school, in fact Pawnee City's very first, later became the Benz Brothers Blacksmith Shop and was moved to the site in this latter role. The sixth building, used as site headquarters, is an A-frame house which a local teacher had patterned after some in Africa he had seen while teaching there.

Two windmills, one of them completely of wood, also stand on the site. A dismantled log cabin was hauled in but has yet to be rebuilt.

Among others appearing on Sunday's program will be Marvin Kivett, director of the State Historical Society; Delbert Niemeier, state director of Green Thumb; Elton Berck, state president of Farmers Union; and Mayor Clyde McKee. Postmaster A. L. Porr will be master of ceremonies.

According to Society president Mrs. Elsie Bartram, seven Butler grandchildren are expected for the dedication. These include Belva Butler, Mrs. Gladys Gaither, Mrs. Mary Ellen Segler and Mrs. Blanche Hahne, all of Unadilla; Ben Butler of Shawnee Mission, Kan.; Mrs. Pauline Haeffner of Springfield, Mo.; and Mrs. Burl Munsell of Parsons, Kan.

Slim Pickens 1971 Winner Of Buffalo Bill Cody Award

Veteran motion picture actor Slim Pickens has been named winner of the 1971 Buffalo Bill Cody award "for outstanding contributions to quality family entertainment in the Cody tradition."

He will be in North Platte on Thursday, June 17, to accept the award during the opening performance of the Buffalo Bill rodeo during Nebraskaland Days.

Pickens also will be grand marshal for the traditional parade and be guest of honor at a special "Buffalo Bill" luncheon in North Platte.

The announcement of Pickens' selection was made jointly by Willard R. Barbee, director of the Game Commission, originator of Nebraskaland Days, and Ken Hornbacher of North Platte, president of Nebraskaland Days, Inc.

Pickens currently is on location in New Mexico, filming "The Honkers," in which he stars. The picture deals with the life of a rodeo clown. Pickens comes by the role naturally as he began his career on the rodeo circuit at age 12 as a clown.

Pickens was born Louis Bert Lindley Jr. in Kingsburg, Calif., and received his schooling at Hanfrod, Calif. Films in which he has appeared include "The Outcasts," "Santa Fe Passage," "Stranger at My Door," "The Great Locomotive Chase," and "Dr. Strangelove."

Exon Signs Motorcycle Helmet Bill

Gov. J. James Exon Friday signed into law a bill requiring motorcyclists to wear helmets or face a fine of up to $100.

Exon informed the legislative clerk's office through a letter that he has signed LB1041, a measure similar to a bill he had earlier vetoed.

The only difference is that LB1041, unlike the vetoed LB369, does not have the emergency clause, meaning it takes effect 90 days from adjournment of the Legislature last Wednesday.

Should they be convicted of not wearing a helmet, motorcyclists would face a fine of between $10 and $100.

Exon's objections to LB369 included the fact that the emergency clause was attached to the measure and he said it would not be fair to make such a law effective overnight.

Stock Prices Rise After Early Slump

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks gained 2.03 to 907.81.

Big Board volume was 11.76 million shares compared with 12.61 Thursday.

"The stock market displayed its usual perversity today by rising the last day before a three-day weekend," said Robert Stovall, an analyst at Reynolds & Co.

Stoval attributed the market's rise to firmness in the bond market. When interest rates in the bond market are firm or falling, investors are more likely to put their money in equities," he explained.

The Associated Press 60-stock average gained 0.3 to 317.8, with industrials up 1.5, rails off .5, and utilities unchanged.

There were 712 advances and 568 declines out of 1,631 issues traded on the Big Board. The market had 24 new highs and 65 new lows.

There were 88 big blocks of 10,000 shares or more traded versus 102 Thursday. The biggest was 201,600 shares of Mattel at 42¾, off 1⅜.

Oils, metals rubber issues and farm implements were up. All other stock categories were mixed.

Volume leader on the Big Board was Telex, off ⅞ at 15¾.

American Stock Exchange prices also rose. The Amex price change index gained .08 to 25.71. Volume was 3.2 million shares compared with 3.5 million Thursday. There were 474 advances and 354 declines out of 1,084 issues traded.

Stock Prices Rise After Early Slump

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks gained 2.03 to 907.81.

Big Board volume was 11.76 million shares compared with 12.61 Thursday.

"The stock market displayed its usual perversity today by rising the last day before a three-day weekend," said Robert Stovall, an analyst at Reynolds & Co.

Stoval attributed the market's rise to firmness in the bond market. When interest rates in the bond market are firm or falling, investors are more likely to put their money in equities," he explained.

The Associated Press 60-stock average gained 0.3 to 317.8, with industrials up 1.5, rails off .5, and utilities unchanged.

There were 712 advances and 568 declines out of 1,631 issues traded on the Big Board. The market had 24 new highs and 65 new lows.

There were 88 big blocks of 10,000 shares or more traded versus 102 Thursday. The biggest was 201,600 shares of Mattel at 42⅛, off 1⅜.

Oils, metals rubber issues and farm implements were up. All other stock categories were mixed.

Volume leader on the Big Board was Telex, off ⅞ at 15¾.

American Stock Exchange prices also rose. The Amex price change index gained .08 to 25.71. Volume was 3.2 million shares compared with 3.5 million Thursday. There were 474 advances and 354 declines out of 1,084 issues traded.

10 Bill Rule Set For Next Year

By ODELL HANSON
Associated Press Writer

A bill introduction limit so stringent that every state senator except Eugene T. Mahoney would have violated it this year has been ordered for the new legislative session which begins next January.

Under the recently adopted rules change, no senator may introduce or co-sponsor more than 10 bills in 1972.

The new policy was adopted on a 34-3 vote. Even the Unicameral's all-time champion bill introducer, Sen. Terry Carpenter of Scottsbluff, favored it.

Only 122 This time

Carpenter, who introduced 224 bills two years ago, cut that total to 122 at the session recently ended. He co-sponsored another 21.

The 1971 session produced 15 senators who could have abided by the 10-bill limit had it applied only to bills on which the senator was principal sponsor. But it applies also to co-sponsored bills, and many a senator has been willing to add his name to bills as long as he need not carry the ball.

The willingness of the senators to apply to themselves the 10-bill limit rule may surprise constituents who have the notion that their elected representatives, once they get to Lincoln, are infected by some kind of a malevolent spirit which sweeps away restraints and leads them to conceive bills and toss them into the hopper with reckless abandon.

Truth is that relatively few of the introduced bills are the brainchildren of the senators who introduce them. Most of the bills are asked by constituents, some in the special interest category.

Stiffer Backbone

And the 10-bill limit is seen as a device to stiffen the backbone of senators ordinarily reluctant to turn down a constituent request, but who would like some excuse to do so.

But the West Point lawmaker says the rule also faces up to the realities of the 1972 session which will be limited by the constitution to 60 legislative days.

"If you're going to improve the quality of the output and give bills the consideration they deserve, you just have to cut down on the input," he sai

Not Even One Bill

The only senator who can claim not to have introduced even one bill in 1971 is Omaha's Sen. Mahoney. And he co-sponsored only seven.

Sen. Walter Epke of York introduced only one bill.

Others in the restrained category include Sens. John Savage of Omaha, 3; and Ellen E. Craft of North Platte, Rudolf Kokes of Ord and Herb Nore of Genoa, 4 each.

Joining Sen. Carpenter in the category of prolific bill introducers are Sens. J. James Waldron of Callaway, 56; Roland Luedtke of Lincoln, 53; Wayne W. Ziebarth of Wilcox and Richard F. Proud of Omaha, 46 each.

Sen. C. W. Holmquist of Oakland introduced 66 bills but most of these were statute revising bills which carried his name because he was chairman of the Legislative Council.

Notwithstanding the noble intentions, the 10-bill rule does not guarantee as severe a cutback as it suggests. For one thing, the 1972 session will be fueled by more than 100 bills held over from the 1971 session. And the limit does not apply to bills growing out of interim studies, or bills requested by state agencies, departments and institutions.

Furthermore the Legislature on 30 votes can suspend its own rules at any time—and often does.

800 United Methodists Will Confer

Nearly 800 United Methodists of Nebraska will converge on Lincoln Tuesday for the 1971 session of the Nebraska annual conference.

Confronting the ministers and laymen, who will be representing the more than 145,000 United Methodists served by nearly 500 pastoral charges over the state, will be such matters as establishment of goals and priorities for 1972, election of delegates to national and regional denominational legislative bodies, and adoption of a 1972 program.

Resident Bishop Noah W. Moore Jr. of Lincoln will preside.

One of the considerations will be the designation of a legislative communications coordinator whose function it would be to inform United Methodists on key legislative issues related to the church's priorities, and to encourage participation in the legislative process. Proponents say the coordinator's mission would be to inform the public, not to lobby the Legislature.

Also to be considered is a budget for 1972. The commission on world service and finance and recommended a budget of $2,509,031, up 2.6% from 1971.

City To Open Rest Of Pools On Saturday

The Lincoln Park and Recreation Department will open the rest of the city swimming pools Saturday. Woods Pool is already in operation.

Swimming hours will be the same at all pools, 12:30 to 9 p.m. daily.

Season passes will be on sale at all pools Saturday morning. Family passes cost $35, individual passes for 16 and older are $20 and passes for those under 16 are $10.

Discount tickets are available for $10. The tickets are good for 40 swims for those under 16 and for 20 swims for those 16 and older.

Probation Urged For Fremonter In Child's Death

Fremont (AP)— The state has recommended probation for 27-year-old Robert Eugene Jakob, who pleaded no contest to a charge of manslaughter in the death last Oct. 18 of his three-year-old stepdaughter.

No One Injured In Derailment Of Eleven Cars

Omaha (AP)—Eleven cars of a 75-car Chicago and North Western freight train derailed in north Omaha Thursday night but there were no injuries, Trainmaster Floyd Cockerham of Fremont reported.

Cockerham called in to supervise the cleanup, said the cause of the derailment was not immediately learned.

Ecology Comes First

Insight League Plants Flags For Minorities

The NU group also made public a letter from Gov. J. J. Exon, who denied the league's request for a hearing on possible removal of two State Liquor Control Commission members from those posts.

The league earlier this spring challenged the right of Lincoln Elks Lodge 80 to hold a liquor license, citing the Elks prohibition against black members. The challenge was rejected.

Disqualification Urged

Insight League members charged in a letter to Exon that Commissioners Ray Osborn and Ivan Armstrong had violated the Nebraska Liquor Control Act when they refused to disqualify themselves from ruling on the license renewal. Both are Elks members.

A press release said the league hoped to call attention to what they consider a university failure "in the area of low-income and minority education."

University 'Failure'

"Specifically we, as members of primarily white student organizations, would like to address the failure of our university to recruit minority students," the statement said.

The statement said the "major source of this problem" is "financial aids."

"Our state and university are continuing their failure to commit the necessary funds to make recruitment of minority and low-income students a real effort."

Mike Willey, one of the league members who had asked Exon to call the hearing on the commission members, said he was "disappointed by Gov. Exon's response to our call."

"I hope his membership in Elks Lodge 80 didn't influence his decision," Willey said.

Exon wrote the law appears to forbid a commissioner's profitable interest in the manufacture, sale or distribution of liquor.

But he said his staff believes the statute "does not require commissioners to disqualify themselves from acting on the licenses of organizations of which they are members such as the Elks."

Federal Court Will Get Jurisdiction Question

By United Press International

The matter of jurisdiction over Indians in Thurston County, Neb., probably will be settled ultimately in federal courts, William Schaphorst, chief assistant for the U.S. district attorney's office, said Friday.

Schaphorst commented in connection with a ruling of the Nebraska Supreme Court Friday which held that the state of Nebraska, not the federal government, has jurisdiction.

The Supreme Court's ruling was put forth in a decision upholding conviction of two Indian men on rape-kidnap charges. It held invalid a 1969 retrocession agreement to transfer jurisdiction from state to federal authorities, claiming the Legislature had recognized it as invalid and nullified it in the 1971 legislative session.

Upheld were the convictions of Wayne Gohan and Dennis Tyndall, who were charged in connection with a 1969 incident in which a companion was beaten and the coed raped near Big Elk Park.

The Thurston County District Court found them guilty and sentenced each to life on the kidnaping charges and 3-20 years for rape.

The State Supreme Court upheld the convictions, but modified the life sentences for kidnaping to a term of 35 years in the state prison.

Third Charge Vacated

And a third charge filed against Tyndall, being an habitual criminal, was vacated by the high court. He had been given a 10-year sentence.

The matter was appealed from the district court by the pair on the grounds the state did not have the authority to try the cases.

The pair contended the state had entered into a retrocession agreement with the federal government, which turned over jurisdiction of criminal matters of reservation Indians to the federal courts.

Retrocession Isue

The high court's decision, authored by Justice Harry Spencer, noted in 1968 Congress passed a law which authorized voluntary retrocession by several states having reservations including Nebraska.

In 1969, the Nebraska Legislature adopted a resolution which turned over jurisdiction of Indian territory in Thurston County, which included both the Omaha and Winnebago lands.

Spencer also noted that in October of 1970 the then Secretary of the Interior, Walter J. Hickel, issued notice he accepted retrocession of the Omaha lands, but not the remainder of Thurston County.

The incident occurred within the Omaha Reservation boundaries.

Acceptance Limited

The acceptance issued by Hickel was "specifically limited" to the Omaha Reservation, Spencer said, and the agreement therefore was not valid.

"This definitely was not an acceptance of the retrocession offered, which was all of the Indian territory in Thurston County, and in our judgment is completely unauthorized by the terms of the resolution of the Nebraska Legislature, and so does not constitute acceptance," Spencer said.

He added the Legislature recognized the agreement was invalid and subsequently during the 1971 session adopted a resoluton nullifying the earlier one.

Schaphorst said a suit on behalf of the Omaha Tribe was filed by his office in U.S. District Court to restrain the state and local government entities from taking jurisdiction. A ruling in this suit has not yet been handed down.

Schaphorst said he felt confi- would "follow the dictates of the State Supreme Court" pending actions in the federal courts.

The matter could ultimately go to the Eighth Circuit Court of Appeals or to the U.S. Supreme Court.

In other action, the court:

—Upheld the ruling of the Lancaster County Juvenile Court in a child custody dispute involving George Farrow and Wayne Randall.

—Upheld the Colfax County District Court's ruling in a mechanics lien dispute filed by Paxton and Vierling Steel Co. against C. R. Barmore.

—Upheld the Otoe County Disrtict Court conviction of Edward Christiansen for willful reckless driving and operating a motor vehicle while his drivers license was revoked.

—Reversed and returned for a new trial to the Dakota County District Court an injury suit filed by Armon Loy Todd Jr. against Ralph Boals.

—Upheld the Dixon County District Court's ruling in a Workmen's Compensation matter involving Delbert Gifford and Ag Lime, Sand and Gravel Co.

10 Bill Rule Set For Next Year

By ODELL HANSON
Associated Press Writer

A bill introduction limit so stringent that every state senator except Eugene T. Mahoney would have violated it this year has been ordered for the new legislative session which begins next January.

Under the recently adopted rules change, no senator may introduce or co-sponsor more than 10 bills in 1972.

The new policy was adopted on a 34-3 vote. Even the Unicameral's all-time champion bill introducer, Sen. Terry Carpenter of Scottsbluff, favored it.

Only 122 This time

Carpenter, who introduced 224 bills two years ago, cut that total to 122 at the session recently ended. He co-sponsored another 21.

The 1971 session produced 15 senators who could have abided by the 10-bill limit had it applied only to bills on which the senator was principal sponsor. But it applies also to co-sponsored bills, and many a senator has been willing to add his name to bills as long as he need not carry the ball.

The willingness of the senators to apply to themselves the 10-bill limit rule may surprise constituents who have the notion that their elected representatives, once they get to Lincoln, are is-fected by some kind of a malevolent spirit which sweeps away restraints and leads them to conceive bills and toss them into the hopper with reckless abandon.

Truth is that relatively few of the introduced bills are the brainchildren of the senators who introduce them. Most of the bills are asked by constituents, some in the special interest category.

Stiffer Backbone

And the 10-bill limit is seen as a device to stiffen the backbone of senators ordinarily reluctant to turn down a constituent request, but who would like some excuse to do so.

But the West Point lawmaker says the rule also faces up to the realities of the 1972 session which will be limited by the constitution to 60 legislative days.

"If you're going to improve the quality of the output and give bills the consideration they deserve, you just have to cut down on the input," he sai

Not Even One Bill

The only senator who can claim not to have introduced even one bill in 1971 is Omaha's Sen. Mahoney. And he co-sponsored only seven.

Sen. Walter Epke of York introduced only one bill.

Others in the restrained category include Sens. John Savage of Omaha, 3; and Ellen E. Craft of North Platte, Rudolf Kokes of Ord and Herb Nore of Genoa, 4 each.

Joining Sen. Carpenter in the category of prolific bill introducers are Sens. J. James Waldron of Callaway, 56; Roland Luedtke of Lincoln, 53; Wayne W. Ziebarth of Wilcox and Richard F. Proud of Omaha, 46 each.

Sen. C. W. Holmquist of Oakland introduced 66 bills but most of these were statute revising bills which carried his name because he was chairman of the Legislative Council.

Notwithstanding the noble intentions, the 10-bill rule does not guarantee as severe a cutback as it suggests. For one thing, the 1972 session will be fueled by more than 100 bills held over from the 1971 session. And the limit does not apply to bills growing out of interim studies, or bills requested by state agencies, departments and institutions.

Furthermore the Legislature on 30 votes can suspend its own rules at any time—and often does.

800 United Methodists Will Confer

Nearly 800 United Methodists of Nebraska will converge on Lincoln Tuesday for the 1971 session of the Nebraska annual conference.

Confronting the ministers and laymen, who will be representing the more than 145,000 United Methodists served by nearly 500 pastoral charges over the state, will be such matters as establishment of goals and priorities for 1972, election of delegates to national and regional denominational legislative bodies, and adoption of a 1972 program.

Resident Bishop Noah W. Moore Jr. of Lincoln will preside.

One of the considerations will be the designation of a legislative communications coordinator whose function it would be to inform United Methodists on key legislative issues related to the church's priorities, and to encourage participation in the legislative process. Proponents say the coordinator's mission would be to inform the public, not to lobby the Legislature.

Also to be considered is a budget for 1972. The commission on world service and finance and recommended a budget of $2,509,031, up 2.6% from 1971.

City To Open Rest Of Pools On Saturday

The Lincoln Park and Recreation Department will open the rest of the city swimming pools Saturday. Woods Pool is already in operation.

Swimming hours will be the same at all pools, 12:30 to 9 p.m. daily.

Season passes will be on sale at all pools Saturday morning. Family passes cost $35, individual passes for 16 and older are $20 and passes for those under 16 are $10.

Discount tickets are available for $10. The tickets are good for 40 swims for those under 16 and for 20 swims for those 16 and older.

Probation Urged For Fremonter In Child's Death

Fremont (AP)— The state has recommended probation for 27-year-old Robert Eugene Jakob, who pleaded no contest to a charge of manslaughter in the death last Oct. 18 of his three-year-old stepdaughter.

Hospital officials said the girl, Robin Newcomb, died of peritonitis, inflammation of the membrane lining of the abdominal wall causing an emission of poison.

No One Injured In Derailment Of Eleven Cars

Omaha (AP)—Eleven cars of a 75-car Chicago and North Western freight train derailed in north Omaha Thursday night but there were no injuries, Trainmaster Floyd Cockerham of Fremont reported.

Cockerham called in to supervise the cleanup, said the cause of the derailment was not immediately learned.

The derailed cars included an empty tanker, and 10 boxcars, two filled with grain. They were part of a train heading into Omaha from Minneapolis.

Ecology Comes First

DEMONSTRATION . . . at NU for minority students.

Insight League Plants Flags For Minorities

The NU group also made public a letter from Gov. J. J. Exon, who denied the league's request for a hearing on possible removal of two State Liquor Control Commission members from those posts.

The league earlier this spring challenged the right of Lincoln Elks Lodge 80 to hold a liquor license, citing the Elks prohibition against black members. The challenge was rejected.

Disqualification Urged

Insight League members charged in a letter to Exon that Commissioners Ray Osborn and Ivan Armstrong had violated the Nebraska Liquor Control Act when they refused to disqualify themselves from ruling on the license renewal. Both are Elks members.

Friday's protest took the form of the planting of 160 white flags and one colored flag on the lawn near the NU building.

Spokesman said the flags reflected the ratio of white to minority students on the NU Lincoln campuses.

A press release said the league hoped to call attention to what they consider a university failure "in the area of low-income and minority education."

University 'Failure'

"Specifically we, as members of primarily white student organizations, would like to address the failure of our university to recruit minority students," the statement said.

The statement said the "major scurce of this problem" is "financial aids."

"Our state and university are continuing their failure to commit the necessary funds to make recruitment of minority and low-income students a real effort."

Mike Willey, one of the league members who had asked Exon to call the hearing on the commission members, said he was "disappointed by Gov. Exon's response to our call."

"I hope his membership in Elks Lodge 80 didn't influence his decision," Willey said.

Exon wrote the law appears to forbid a commissioner's profitable interest in the manufacture, sale or distribution of liquor.

But he said his staff believes the statute "does not require commissioners to disqualify themselves from acting on the licenses of organizations of which they are members such as the Elks."

Federal Court Will Get Jurisdiction Question

By United Press International

The matter of jurisdiction over Indians in Thurston County, Neb., probably will be settled ultimately in federal courts, William Schaphorst, chief assistant for the U.S. district attorney's office, said Friday.

Schaphorst commented in connection with a ruling of the Nebraska Supreme Court Friday which held that the state of Nebraska, not the federal government, has jurisdiction.

The Supreme Court's ruling was put forth in a decision upholding conviction of two Indian men on rape-kidnap charges. It held invalid a 1969 retrocession agreement to transfer jurisdiction from state to federal authorities, claiming the Legislature had recognized it as invalid and nullified it in the 1971 legislative session.

Upheld were the convictions of Wayne Gohan and Dennis Tyndall, who were charged in connection with a 1969 incident in which a companion was beaten and the coed raped near Big Elk Park.

The Thurston County District Court found them guilty and sentenced each to life on the kidnaping charges and 3-20 years for rape.

The State Supreme Court upheld the convictions, but modified the life sentences for kidnaping to a term of 35 years in the state prison.

Third Charge Vacated

And a third charge filed against Tyndall, being an habitual criminal, was vacated by the high court. He had been given a 10-year sentence.

The matter was appealed from the district court by the pair on the grounds the state did not have the authority to try the cases.

The pair contended the state had entered into a retrocession agreement with the federal government, which turned over jurisdiction of criminal matters of reservation Indians to the federal courts.

Retrocession Isue

The high court's decision, authored by Justice Harry Spencer, noted in 1968 Congress passed a law which authorized voluntary retrocession by several states having reservations including Nebraska.

In 1969, the Nebraska Legislature adopted a resolution which turned over jurisdiction of Indian territory in Thurston County, which included both the Omaha and Winnebago lands.

Spencer also noted that in October of 1970 the then Secretary of the Interior, Walter J. Hickel, issued notice he accepted retrocession of the Omaha lands, but not the remainder of Thurston County.

The incident occurred within the Omaha Reservation boundaries.

Acceptance Limited

The acceptance issued by Hickel was "specifically limited" to the Omaha Reservation, Spencer said, and the agreement therefore was not valid.

"This definitely was not an acceptance of the retrocession offered, which was all of the Indian territory in Thurston County, and in our judgment is completely unauthorized by the terms of the resolution of the Nebraska Legislature, and so does not constitute acceptance," Spencer said.

He added the Legislature recognized the agreement was invalid and subsequently during the 1971 session adopted a resoluton nullifying the earlier one.

Schaphorst said a suit on behalf of the Omaha Tribe was filed by his office in U.S. District Court to restrain the state and local government entities from taking jurisdiction. A ruling in this suit has not yet been handed down.

Schaphorst said he felt confi- would "follow the dictates of the State Supreme Court" pending actions in the federal courts.

The matter could ultimately go to the Eighth Circuit Court of Appeals or to the U.S. Supreme Court.

In other action, the court:

—Upheld the ruling of the Lancaster County Juvenile Court in a child custody dispute involving George Farrow and Wayne Randall.

—Upheld the Colfax County District Court's ruling in a mechanics lien dispute filed by Paxton and Vierling Steel Co. against C. R. Barmore.

—Upheld the Otoe County Disrtict Court conviction of Edward Christiansen for willful reckless driving and operating a motor vehicle while his drivers license was revoked.

—Reversed and returned for a new trial to the Dakota County District Court an injury suit filed by Armon Loy Todd Jr. against Ralph Boals.

—Upheld the Dixon County District Court's ruling in a Workmen's Compensation matter involving Delbert Gifford and Ag Lime, Sand and Gravel Co.

Two Lincolnites Hurt In Collision

Two Lincolnites were treated and released at Lincoln hospitals as the result of a two-car accident at 56th and Huntington just before noon Friday, according to police reports.

Police said a vehicle driven by Bobbie J. Schmid, 60, of 1321 No. 78th was northbound on 56th when it was in collision with a eastbound vehicle driven by John F. Minster, 26, of 1538 C.

Schmid was taken to Bryan Memorial for back pains and Minster was taken to Lincoln General for cuts, police reported.

EISENHOWER AND MOTHER

NIXON AND MOTHER

Q. Is it not a fact that the mothers of Dwight Eisenhower and Richard Nixon were dedicated pacifists who did not want their sons to go to war?—Less Bower, Whittier, Calif.

A. Yes. Ike's mother, Ida Eisenhower, a member of the River Brethren sect, did not want her son to enter the U.S. Military Academy. It was the only way, however, he could see to obtain a free college education. Ike thereupon entered the Military Academy in the summer of 1911. After his mother saw him off, she went to her room and cried.

Nixon's mother, Mrs. Hannah Nixon, a devout Quaker, wanted her son to declare himself a conscientious objector when World War II broke out. Nixon refused and joined the Navy.

Q. I hear that Diana Ross is with child by her white husband and will call it quits with him as soon as she gives birth. That true?—Lane Alexander, New York, N.Y.

A. At this writing Miss Ross is with child. Her husband, press agent Bob Silberstein, denies that they have separated or will after their child is born. Miss Ross' friends say otherwise, that the marriage is already foundering.

Q. Who is Leo Szilard? I know he has something to do with atomic energy.—George Devine, Cambridge, Mass.

A. Leo Szilard (1898-1964) was a nuclear physicist and one of the great scientific geniuses of the century. He has been named along with Einstein, Freud, Gandhi, and Churchill as one of the most important men of modern times. Born in Hungary, educated in Germany, Szilard was the co-inventor with the late Enrico Fermi of a chain-reaction system for the release of atomic energy. He pioneered not only in the field of nuclear physics but in mathematics, molecular biology, thermodynamics, literature, and politics. It was Szilard who wrote a letter signed by Albert Einstein in 1939 which induced President Franklin D. Roosevelt to develop the atom bomb. Szilard not only wrote original papers on the cyclotron, the electronic microscope, information theory, automation, and the nuclear chain reaction, but a political and philosophical tract entitled "The Voice of the Dolphins." He is survived by his wife, Dr. Gertrud Szilard, a physician, who resides in La Jolla, Calif., and who is now working on his papers to be published by the MIT Press.

MICHAEL CRAWFORD AND GENEVIEVE GILLES IN "HELLO—GOODBYE," $3 MILLION LOSER.

Q. How come 20th Century-Fox can produce such money-makers as MASH, Patton, Butch Cassidy, and still lose more than $100 million in 1969-70? Is this the fault of the Zanucks, Darryl and Richard?—Malcolm Gorman, Pasadena, Calif.

A. In that same two-year period, Darryl Zanuck, Richard Zanuck, and their story-picker, David Brown, were responsible for producing such losers as Hello, Dolly!—$13,702,000 in the red; The Only Game in Town, with a loss of $7,702,000; Justine—$6,836,000; The Great White Hope — $4,341,000; Staircase — $5,482,000; The Games—$3,185,000; Hello—Goodbye—$3,049,000; Che!—$3,486,000; The Chairman —$2,157,000; Myra Breckinridge—$1,171,000, and a dozen other losers.

The profits from a handful of winners—Butch Cassidy, MASH, Patton, Beneath the Planet of the Apes, and The Prime of Miss Jean Brodie—could not compensate for the far larger number of box-office failures.

Q. Is there any committee of Congress which oversees or reviews the work of the FBI?—Ann Byron, Los Angeles, Calif.

A. No. The FBI under J. Edgar Hoover has policed and reviewed itself. Several members of Congress, however, have recently suggested review of the agency from time to time by a commission of outstanding citizens.

A. Mary Pickford was born in 1893, she says; Buddy Rogers in 1904. At her age Miss Pickford is allowed to do whatever she chooses.

DINAH SHORE WITH ARCHBISHOP SHEEN

Q. Recently I caught Dinah Shore and Archbishop Fulton J. Sheen on TV. Who is older?—Liza Conklin, Delray, Fla.
A. Dinah Shore was born in March, 1916. Archbishop Sheen in May, 1895.

Q. Will you please explain something to me. Of approximately 55,000 deaths suffered by U.S. troops in Southeast Asia, 9500 are listed as deaths by accident. That is almost 20 percent. Is that a true accident rate, or are the figures being falsified to show a lower number of killed in action? If it is a true accident rate then surely our troops in Vietnam must be and have been the most careless army of modern times. —P.T., Washington, D.C.
A. The Defense Department divides deaths into two categories: those resulting from hostile action and those resulting from non-hostile action. In the non-hostile category are deaths caused by illness, homicide, suicide, vehicular and aircraft accidents. The single largest category of non-hostile deaths is "aircraft losses or crashes at sea and not at sea." There were 2617 such deaths from 1961 to 1970.

The Defense Department does not attribute to non-hostile causes any death brought about through hostile action. Where the lives of American soldiers are concerned the Defense Department in this Vietnamese war has endeavored to be statistically honest, forthright, and beyond reproach. Other figures such as the number of enemy dead, ARVN dead, etc., have for the most part been guesstimates.

Q. Has Johnny Carson bought off his wife so that he can marry actress Dyan Cannon?—Marge Miller, Hempstead, N.Y.
A. Carson has had two unsuccessful marriages, but Dyan, the ex-Mrs. Cary Grant, is at the moment Carson's favorite and may eventually become the third Mrs. Johnny Carson. She is an extremely clever and determined young woman.

HERE'S JOHNNY!

HERE'S DYAN!

Q. I read in the papers that Governor Wallace of Alabama dyes his hair and that he has promised to make his new wife, Cornelia, "the Jackie Kennedy of the Red Necks." Is this so?—N.T., Mobile, Ala.
A. Governor Wallace dyes his hair, but he has never promised to make his new wife, Cornelia, 32, "the Jackie Kennedy of the Red Necks." That promise was made by Tom Turnipseed, executive director of Wallace's campaign and Cornelia Wallace's fifth cousin. Says Turnipseed: "I told Cornelia not long ago that I'm going to make her the Jackie Kennedy of the Red Necks."

WALLACE AND WIFE CORNELIA

Q. I understand that President Nixon's staff wants him to grow a beard on the premise that it would make him more lovable especially to young and old people. What's the story?—Al Katz, Baltimore, Md.
A. President Nixon has no intention of growing a beard despite the fact that all five bearded U.S. Presidents were Republicans.

A propaganda pamphlet published in Hanoi in 1967 sets as goals: "To pay the utmost attention to raising the political, cultural, and vocational standard of the woman . . . to develop the Vietnamese women's traditions of heroism, dauntlessness, fidelity and ability to shoulder responsibilities."

North Vietnamese women serve as nurses, entertainers for troops coming down the Ho Chi Minh Trail and frequently as home guard militia. The National Liberation Front, the Communists' arm in the South, includes several detachments of women soldiers, and women of all ages are fighting as guerrillas with the Viet Cong.

Angola-Mozambique: The little publicized struggle by native guerrillas to free these two black African colonies from the Portuguese began in the early 1960's. At first, women stayed out of the fighting, but in 1968 it was found that the highest casualties in rebel sectors were among women. Portuguese troops were ambushing them at water holes and in the fields, and the women asked permission to join in active combat.

Today roughly 10 percent of the 30,000-plus anti-colonialist forces in Angola and Mozambique are women. They assume war names such as "Suffering of Angola" or "Struggle" and live the life of foot soldiers, carrying their children with them.

There are no such words as "Mr." or "Mrs."—only the title Camarada, equally applicable to man or woman.

If a mother is killed, her child becomes a son or daughter of the movement and is assigned to another woman.

"These are brave people," says a man who has visited both countries and lived with the rebel forces. "One woman was taken prisoner by the Portuguese and she escaped with four other prisoners. Six months later she was captured again and this time she fled with 12 other prisoners. There are standing orders not to take her alive again."

e rest of the Israeli services, the women's corps (2000 regulars and 10,000 or more reservists) is tough, well-trained and proud. But Colonel Levy has tried to feminize the army by giving lessons in makeup, handcraft and knitting.

"Even though you put on a uniform you are still a woman," she says. "Any girl in the service can apply for three months' paid leave or one year unpaid to get married and have a child. Many girls find their husbands in the army, navy, or air force."

Traditionally, women have served as seamstresses, nurses and cooks, freeing the able-bodied men to fight. Today, in the technically complex armies of the major powers, women like America's WACs, WAVES and WAFs and Britain's WRENs carry on the noncombatant tradition.

Hints of the Women's Liberation movement are beginning to show in the U.S. Armed Forces, however.

"To date, top-level management and executive positions are, for all practical purposes, closed to military women except those directly involved with women's programs," wrote Col. Jeanne Holm, director of Air Force Women, in the Defense Management Journal "Most of the military services still designate jobs as 'his' and 'hers.'"

Dismuke, for instance, on duty at Tan Son Hut, now heads the Base Communications and Data Systems Division, which is responsible for installing and maintaining telephone and teletype facilities throughout Vietnam.

Training with a rifle is optional for women but the U.S. forbids photographs of women soldiers and sailors under arms. The emphasis is on the feminine. Recently the Air Force unveiled a new formal gown for wear at dress functions, with an ankle-length skirt slit to the knee, a luxury probably unknown to the women guerrillas of Angola.

Equality in China

Probably the most women in uniform are in Communist China, where service in the People's Liberation Army is prestigious, and total equality between men and women is a national goal. The Chinese women soldiers' duties range from nursing to truck driving. They are also trained for battle, and in the event of a war would fight shoulder to shoulder with their "comrades."

Cambodia has a battalion of 120 trained women "fighters," commanded by the influential monk Mam Pram Moni. There is a plan to put 2500 Cambodian women under arms, but so far the experiment is largely symbolic.

Elsewhere, the Soviet Union trains women for noncombatant jobs, as do many other nations including Nationalist China, South Vietnam, India, Japan and England.

"Whatever needs to be done women can do," says Dr. Horner, "and it's wrong to hold them back. Still, to my mind it's as silly for a woman to put on a uniform and fight as it is for a man."

Israel is the only country to draft women in peacetime. At the age of 18, every unmarried girl goes into 20 months of regular army service as Hiba (soldier-police), Nahal (front-line border guards, watchwomen, radio operators, cooks, nurses), or soldier-teachers in the border settlements.

Charlotte, N.C., is one of several areas around the country that is taking part in "the most massive attack ever made anywhere" to curb drunk drivers. Here a guest at a party uses a breath-test kit to determine blood-alcohol content and his fitness to drive.

In Charlotte, N.C., the liquor stores are giving each customer a breath-testing kit that will tell him when he's too drunk to drive.

Nassau County, N.Y., has a new 24-hour telephone hot line which a drunk may call to ask for transportation when he feels he shouldn't drive his own car.

In Albuquerque, N. Mex., nine extra law officers are assigned the sole duty of patrolling high-accident areas looking for intoxicated people behind the wheel.

Ann Arbor, Mich., gives a person caught for drunken driving the option of escaping jail or fine by agreeing to swallow every day one anti-alcohol pill —then even one drink makes him unpleasantly ill.

These and many other local projects are part of an $18 million experimental drive the Federal Government has begun against the mounting toll of traffic deaths caused by problem drinkers who insist on driving.

"This is the most massive attack ever made in this field anywhere," says Willard Y. Howell, a director in the Department of Transportation. "There's been too much sloganeering in the past. Now we want action. The problem drinker who drives is a sick killer who needs help. Let's find him and help him, get him out from behind the wheel of that car that's bearing down on your kids and mine."

Of the 55,000 highway deaths in the U.S. last year, it's estimated that 20,000 involved problem drinkers.

"That," says Howell, in anger, "comes to 385 deaths a week. But do you hear any public outcry about that shocking figure? No, none at all. We just let it keep on happening. It's recorded in little items here and there in newspapers. What do you think would happen if a 747 crashed once a week killing that many people every time? Congress and the public would be screaming for investigations and action."

put them into effect in all 50 states.

The federally-funded experimental phase of the program is set for three years and the goal is to reduce traffic deaths by 15,000 by 1975. Other projects already at work are centered in Madison, Wis.; Portland, Ore.; Olympia, Wash.; Waterbury, Vt., and Denver.

Test that breath

In a few cases results already can be measured:

Says John Kelly Wall, assistant project director in Charlotte: "We've started handing out 100,000 breath-testing kits in 15 liquor stores. Eventually we hope to have them available in just about every place where people drink. I already know of a few cases of people using one after a private party—they breathe into a tube and chemical crystals turn green according to how many drinks they've had—and after seeing the result call on someone else to drive the car."

And James W. Henderson Jr., project director in Ann Arbor, reports: "We're putting 30 people a month into our anti-alcohol program. They're all people convicted of or pleading guilty to driving while intoxicated or being drunk and disorderly. The usual sentence is 30 days but the judge gives them the choice of joining our program.

"If a man can't afford the cost of a pill a day, we give it to him. So far none of them has slipped off—we know this because they come in once a week for a blood test. They would get good and sick if they took a drink. This pill is so sensitive that some men can't even use a shaving lotion with alcohol in it—the body would react even to that external exposure."

Henderson says his pill-takers are a broad slice of life—kids cocky over piling up a car, men of poor background, men with very good jobs. And many of them are problem drinkers who frequently take to the wheel while drunk. The pill is not regarded as the final solution but it holds the line while the offenders are prepared for counseling.

Nearly all the project directors report that very few of their subjects are women. Says John F. Blenn, director in New York's Nassau County: "It's well known that lots of problem drinkers are women but they don't drive cars while drunk nearly as much as men."

Some more extreme measures are being considered. Blenn says that one of them is impounding the car of a drunken driver, or making him put a special license plate on his car, perhaps bearing the letter A—for alcohol. Albuquerque is pondering inspection of drivers at road blocks, and project director Curtis T. Thatcher reports that the special anti-drunk patrol cars are equipped with video-tape cameras to record erratic car operation and poor coordination by drivers.

Talk it out

Dr. James Ray Adams, psychologist who operates several phases of the New York project, holds regular rehabilitation meetings for people who have mixed alcohol and gasoline. In groups of 12 or so, they sit around and talk out their misconduct. This frequently brings out that the offender was under some kind of stress that made him drink, then drive. There was the case of a steady, professional truck driver arrested for speeding at 100 mph on the New York Thruway. Probing questions brought out that he was grief-stricken over the death of a grandchild. That driver was probably not in danger of repeating, but another case was chronic—a wife and husband who simply couldn't stand each other. They would argue and fight

Charlotte, N.C., is one of several areas around the country that is taking part in "the most massive attack ever made anywhere" to curb drunk drivers. Here a guest at a party uses a breath-test kit to determine blood-alcohol content and his fitness to drive.

U.S. Begins All-Out Fight Against Drunk Drivers

by John G. Rogers

The state liquor stores in Charlotte have also been enlisted in big U.S. campaign. Each customer receives a breath-test kit and is urged to use it.

In Charlotte, N.C., the liquor stores are giving each customer a breath-testing kit that will tell him when he's too drunk to drive.

Nassau County, N.Y., has a new 24-hour telephone hot line which a drunk may call to ask for transportation when he feels he shouldn't drive his own car.

In Albuquerque, N. Mex., nine extra law officers are assigned the sole duty of patrolling high-accident areas looking for intoxicated people behind the wheel.

Ann Arbor, Mich., gives a person caught for drunken driving the option of escaping jail or fine by agreeing to swallow every day one anti-alcohol pill —then even one drink makes him unpleasantly ill.

These and many other local projects are part of an $18 million experimental drive the Federal Government has begun against the mounting toll of traffic deaths caused by problem drinkers who insist on driving.

"This is the most massive attack ever made in this field anywhere," says Willard Y. Howell, a director in the Department of Transportation. "There's been too much sloganeering in the past. Now we want action. The problem drinker who drives is a sick killer who needs help. Let's find him and help him, get him out from behind the wheel of that car that's bearing down on your kids and mine."

Of the 55,000 highway deaths in the U.S. last year, it's estimated that 20,000 involved problem drinkers.

"That," says Howell, in anger, "comes to 385 deaths a week. But do you hear any public outcry about that shocking figure? No, none at all. We just let it keep on happening. It's recorded in little items here and there in newspapers. What do you think would happen if a 747 crashed once a week killing that many people every time? Congress and the public would be screaming for investigations and action."

Many different

Howell, director of the Alcohol Countermeasures Traffic Safety Program, has nine local projects in action so far. Twenty more are to be added this year and 11 in 1972. Although there is some duplication in approach — nearly all, for example, lay stress on counseling and rehabilitation for the problem drinker—every project has its own variations. The aim is to find out what combinations of measures work best to combat drunken driving, then for all phases of the project, strong support of the community is needed, and that means it must be well publicized. To this end, Nassau County has made 30 copies of a seven-minute film which commercial theaters have agreed to run. Charlotte has set up a 14-man speakers bureau and it's a rare day when one or more of its members is not in action. Says J. Harry Weatherly, project director: "The idea is to make the whole community conscious of what we're trying to do and to make them keep it on their minds. This has got to be a continuing thing."

We must change

And Howell adds: "Another thing we need from the community is willingness to change a national, lifetime pattern of conduct. It's part of the American social pattern to drive after drinking. Most of us have done it for years. Now, we simply have got to change. If you want a reason, look at the figures. We may soon hit 60,000 traffic deaths a year. Half of those will involve alcohol. All we're asking people to do is keep themselves alive."

In Nassau County, traffic violators also take part in group therapy against driving while drunk. The alternative to attendance is paying a fine or serving time.

That driver was probably not in danger of repeating, but another case was chronic—a wife and husband who simply couldn't stand each other. They would argue and fight to the point where one or both of them would storm away and drink — then drive. That, says Adams, is the kind of case that must be helped through counseling. Some of the offenders are such problem drinkers that they actually come to the rehabilitation meetings half boiled.

Nassau County, N.Y., has alcohol hot line which drunks call for transportation.

Often too easy

The anti-drunk driving program faces many difficulties. Police, admittedly, often go easy on an offender, knowing that an arrest means revocation or loss of the man's license and perhaps that deprives him of his livelihood. Also, how far should the law go in making sure that an offender doesn't drive. A California study showed that in two-thirds of all revocations, the driver went right on driving. And a tough legal question—even though police and psychologists can single out the kind of individual who's likely to cause a drunken driving accident, what can be done to stop him before he's done his damage?

To keep that man from behind the wheel, Howell's program would need strong cooperation by his family. And for all phases of the project, strong support of the community is needed, and that means it must be well publicized. To this end, Nassau County has made 30 copies of a seven-minute film which commercial theaters have agreed to run. ON TRADE WITH CHINA

American businessmen, eager and willing to engage in trade with The People's Republic of China, might do well to seek some advice from our Canadian neighbors.

Canada exports about $250 million worth of wheat, metals, and wood pulp to Red China each year.

Alvin Hamilton, former Canadian Minister of Agriculture who negotiated the first Canada-China wheat deal in 1961, says: "You Americans must know offhand that the Chinese have a very different idea about the nature of trade than you people do.

"To them it is no hurry-up, slapdash, bang-bang-bang affair. It is most circumspect and courteous. There is a period of entertaining, of tea-drinking in which they take stock of you and you take stock of them.

"The Chinese have traditionally regarded Westerners as barbarians, have called them 'barbarians' ever since the British forced opium on China in the middle of the last century. They are most formal, and when they finally do get around to discussing business, they drop oblique hints. They never come right out and say, 'What is your price for half a million bushels of wheat?' That's the American way, direct, straight-from-the-shoulder. Blunt.

"Use that technique in China, and you'll meet with very little success. Move slowly, establish mutual trust with your Chinese buyer, and most probably you'll do well.

"When I was in Peking, Mao's diplomats used to say to me, 'Why are the Americans clobbering us? Why won't they trade with us? Don't they realize that we have far more problems with the Soviets than we have with them?'"

Hamilton, 59, now a political and industrial consultant in Ottawa, points out that in 1960 Red China's total import and export business amounted to $400 million. Last year it was $4.3 billion.

"China's economy is expanding tenfold," he declares. "And the United States can obtain a large share of it providing you people play your cards correctly.

"Your businessmen must realize that the Chinese have a culture which is 5000 years old. Therefore they regard Westerners as cultural upstarts, and your fellows must move slowly and carefully.

"I must say that I found the Chinese extremely pleasant and honorable to deal with, and I predict you will, too."

In 1937, the late Carl Crow, an American journalist, wrote a best seller on the Chinese trade called Four Hundred Million Customers. It might be timely to reprint his book now. Crow owned an advertising agency in Shanghai from 1919 to 1937, really understood how to do business with the Chinese.

ALVIN HAMILTON, EX-CANADIAN OFFICIAL, TELLS HOW TO DEAL WITH THE CHINESE.

ON TRADE WITH CHINA

American businessmen, eager and willing to engage in trade with The People's Republic of China, might do well to seek some advice from our Canadian neighbors.

Canada exports about $250 million worth of wheat, metals, and wood pulp to Red China each year.

Alvin Hamilton, former Canadian Minister of Agriculture who negotiated the first Canada-China wheat deal in 1961, says: "You Americans must know offhand that the Chinese have a very different idea about the nature of trade than you people do.

"To them it is no hurry-up, slapdash, bang-bang-bang affair. It is most circumspect and courteous. There is a period of entertaining, of tea-drinking in which they take stock of you and you take stock of them.

"The Chinese have traditionally regarded Westerners as barbarians, have called them 'barbarians' ever since the British forced opium on China in the middle of the last century. They are most formal, and when they finally do get around to discussing business, they drop oblique hints. They never come right out and say, 'What is your price for half a million bushels of wheat?' That's the American way, direct, straight-from-the-shoulder. Blunt.

"Use that technique in China, and you'll meet with very little success. Move slowly, establish mutual trust with your Chinese buyer, and most probably you'll do well.

"When I was in Peking, Mao's diplomats used to say to me, 'Why are the Americans clobbering us? Why won't they trade with us? Don't they realize that we have far more problems with the Soviets than we have with them?'"

Hamilton, 59, now a political and industrial consultant in Ottawa, points out that in 1960 Red China's total import and export business amounted to $400 million. Last year it was $4.3 billion.

"China's economy is expanding tenfold," he declares. "And the United States can obtain a large share of it providing you people play your cards correctly.

"Your businessmen must realize that the Chinese have a culture which is 5000 years old. Therefore they regard Westerners as cultural upstarts, and your fellows must move slowly and carefully.

"I must say that I found the Chinese extremely pleasant and honorable to deal with, and I predict you will, too."

In 1937, the late Carl Crow, an American journalist, wrote a best seller on the Chinese trade called Four Hundred Million Customers. It might be timely to reprint his book now. Crow owned an advertising agency in Shanghai from 1919 to 1937, really understood how to do business with the Chinese.

In March, 1970, there were 18.4 million working wives in the U.S., 780,000 more than the previous year according to statistics from the Labor Department. This number includes one-fourth of all wives with children under 3, one-third of those with children under 5, and one-half the mothers of school-age children.

Moreover, the Labor Department reports, the majority of working women express the desire to continue working even if there is no financial necessity for it.

FALSE COMMITMENTS The Soviet system of isolating political and social dissenters by committing them to insane asylums has spread to other Eastern Bloc countries.

In Hungary recently when a nurse, Mrs. Ferenc Holecz, turned down an invitation to a sex orgy, the doctors organizing it had her committed to an asylum.

The two physicians, Dr. Vimos Scheda and Dr. Susanna Marko, were in charge along with sculptor Sandor Csutors of running these orgies in Budapest. Thinking Mrs. Holecz, an attractive neighbor, might make a likely participant, the trio invited her to join. Mrs. Holecz said she was as broad-minded as the next woman, that she liked a private party but that orgies for her were out.

Afraid that the nurse would report them to the police, Drs. Scheda and Marko had Mrs. Holecz committed to the local hospital's psychiatric ward, then had her transferred to a maximum security asylum, charging that she suffered from a persecution complex.

Somehow Mrs. Holecz convinced the asylum physicians that she was sane. When they released her, she immediately informed the local prosecutor, who brought charges against the two physicians and the sculptor. ARE YOU HAPPY? If you were free to emigrate, where in the world would you want to live?

A recent Gallup Poll, conducted simultaneously in nine countries, found the highest percentage of dissatisfied citizens--41 percent--in Great Britain, and the lowest--12 percent --in the United States.

When asked, "If you were free to do so, would you like to go and settle in another country?"--two of every five Englishmen said yes.

Next most dissatisfied nation according to Gallup was Uruguay, where 32 percent would emigrate if possible. West Germany followed with 27 percent, while Greece, Finland, Sweden, Brazil, and the Netherlands recorded dissatisfaction rates of 22 percent, 19 percent, 18 percent, 17 percent, and 16 percent respectively.

The United States, Gallup discovered, has the most satisfied citizenry of the nine countries surveyed. Despite all the domestic turmoil, only 12 percent of Americans would leave this country if free to do so. To the vast majority of Americans, the U.S. still provides the best standard of living, the best way of life in the world.

SEXY MACHINES Men are substituting sleek, powerful automobiles for the female as a sex object. So contends Dr. George Basalla of the University of Delaware.

At a recent lecture at the Carnegie-Mellon University in Pittsburgh, Dr. Basalla declared that Western men, particularly American men, generated "a highly emotional and erotic relationship with the machine...with the car, the locomotive, and the computer the most endeared."

To support his contention, Dr. Basalla offered the following evidence: most machines in the American culture, he pointed out, are referred to in the feminine gender. A man's car generates the most frequent terms of endearment.

Such terms as "hot rod," "body by Fisher," and "bosoms of the bumper" all have sexual connotations.

Even the Sunday ritual of washing and waxing the car has a sexual significance. It represents the male caressing his mechanical mistress with balsam and oils.

As for computers, Dr. Basalla suggests that they will soon usurp the car's role as sexual object, since men are learning to treat them with fondness, tenderness, and loving care.

SMOG IS AN ENEMY OF THE SUNBATHER, MAKING IT MORE DIFFICULT TO GET A TAN.

SUMMER AND SMOG Summer smog is more dangerous than the same pollution during the colder months.

"Extreme heat seems to make the impact of air pollution worse," explains Dr. Stanley N. Rokaw, medical director of the Tuberculosis and Respiratory Disease Association of Los Angeles County.

Dr. Rokaw's advice to reduce the harmful effects of summer smog on your respiratory system: an air-conditioner with a filtering unit. And on smog-heavy days in general, you should get extra sleep, avoid all irritants or stimulants, and cut down on your energy expenditure.

If you are a sunbather, smog may also affect your tan.

Dr. Paul Hodge of the University of Washington reports a decrease of 9 percent in sunlight and 26 percent in ultraviolet light penetration in Los Angeles between 1911 and 1962.

Nothing is more tempting than a pie crowned with swirls of golden-tinged fluffy meringue. Lemon and chocolate are two longtime favorites, but did you ever try pineapple? The recipe that follows is a taste treat you'll long remember. In fact, we feel sure the pie is one you will serve again and again.

Hawaiian Pineapple Meringue Pie

6 tablespoons cornstarch
1 cup sugar, divided
½ teaspoon salt
2 cans (20 oz.) crushed pineapple
4 eggs, separated
2 tablespoons lemon juice
1 baked 10-inch pie shell

Combine cornstarch, ½ cup sugar, salt and pineapple (undrained) in saucepan. Cook over low heat, stirring constantly until clear and thickened. Beat egg yolks, add a little of the hot mixture to yolks; return to saucepan with lemon juice. Cook 1 minute. Cool thoroughly. Pour into pie shell. Beat egg whites until stiff but not dry; add remaining ½ cup sugar slowly while beating until meringue stands in stiff peaks. Swirl on pie, covering entire surface to edge of pastry rim. Bake at 425° for 4 minutes.

where the professional come in. For about $5 ampuses you can buy a semester of easy listening.

Professional note-taking used to be a sub-rosa activity, but is now well organized and widely accepted by students and faculty on many university campuses.

Richard Small, graduate student at the University of Arizona and manager of the local Lecture Notes Service, explains how the system works:

"We pay graduate students $5 a lecture hour to take notes, which are distributed the following week. The note-taker must have a degree or special knowledge in the particular subject.

"He must have permission from the professor, of course, to sit in on his class and take notes for sale."

Some professors are indifferent to the practice of professional note-taking, some approve, others object.

Theodore Knipe, professor of philosophy at the University of Arizona, welcomed the note-takers on an experimental basis. He hopes to prove that students learn more by listening than scribbling but need the security of a set of notes come exam time.

Two Arizona professors who oppose professional note-taking cite copyright conflicts as the reason. "If in the future I decide to publish a book including material from my lectures," explains Hermann Bleibtreu of the Anthropology Department, "I could possibly run into difficulty because the notes have already been published."

Sexism in Education

Women get better grades in high school than men, but fewer of them enter college.

Women do better in college than men, but fewer go on to graduate school.

And for those women who go on to achieve advanced degrees, they face the prospect of discrimination in employment. Nowhere is this more apparent than in the university itself, where women faculty members earn less than their male peers and must wait longer for promotion—up to ten years longer in the social sciences.

So reports Stanford University's Newman Task Force on Higher Education, which defines educational discrimination against women as "overt, accepted, and increasing."

The main rationale for educational sexism is that education for women is a "poor investment," that women will inevitably drop out to become wives and mothers.

This is just not so, says Frank Newman, associate director of university relations at Stanford and head of the task force. "About 15 percent more women than men complete their B.A. in four years, and those who complete their training do, in fact, tend to use it. And the more training they have, the higher are their rates of participation."

As examples of sexism, the Newman report points to discrimination against women in obtaining fellowships, travel grants, married-student housing, and day-care facilities for student mothers. As a recent survey by the American Association of University Women puts it, "Colleges that are willing to spend enormous sums on athletic facilities used principally by men, recoil at the thought of establishing such facilities as a nursery where women can leave their children in order to attend classes."

The greatest obstacle to equality in education, the Newman report notes, is attitudinal: "While some Americans regard discrimination against women as gross injustice and detrimental to the whole society, others see it as a perfectly natural division of social roles based upon inherent differences between men and women.

"Given past discrimination," the Newman report concludes, "there must be an affirmative effort—not merely neutrality—to recruit women for graduate schools, higher faculty and administrative positions, and boards of trustees."

Abortion Alternative

Three years ago, Louise Summerhill, a Canadian housewife with seven children of her own, originated a program offering a positive alternative to pregnant women who were considering abortion.

"I just didn't believe in killing life," explains Mrs. Summerhill, 45, wife of a Toronto filling station manager, "so I organized a program called Birthright.

"It's been adopted by Terence Cardinal Cooke, the Archbishop of New York, and several other individuals and organizations. It's nondenominational and it's absolutely free."

Birthright offers counseling to pregnant women, married and single, helps them through delivery, then offers them aid in keeping the child or relinquishing the infant for adoption.

"One of the things you won't get and don't need is a sermon," says a newspaper ad explaining the Birthright project. "We want to help you and your child, not to lecture you."

Birthright offices have been established in New York City; Woodbury, N.J.; Portland, Oreg.; Portland, Me.; Burlington, Vt.; Buffalo, N.Y.; Washington, D.C.; Minneapolis, Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, Chicago, and Atlanta.

Women, pregnant or not, who desire information on the Birthright program, may write Mrs. Nora Flanigan, 122 E. 22nd St., New York, N.Y. 10010, or contact any of the aforementioned offices.

Tough Sledding

Donald Clark, director of placements at California Institute of Technology in Pasadena, one of the nation's most prestigious educational institutions, says this is the worst job market he has encountered since the Depression of the 1930's.

A few years ago a majority of Caltech graduates received anywhere from one to eight job offers. Now, only the most brilliant of graduates are being considered for one job.

Schools like Caltech which specialize in engineering and science have been the hardest hit. Job offers for technical students have declined 66 percent this year, compared to 48 percent for liberal arts students.

Aerospace, missile and rocket device industries which used to gobble up Caltech graduates no longer need engineers or scientists of any stripe.

Several weeks ago when he was at San Clemente, President Nixon called in the nation's leading executives, asked them for suggestions on retraining engineers laid off by cutbacks in the space-defense industry. One suggestion was that engineers be retrained and relocated into the medical field by levying a 5 percent tax on all prime contracts for defense purposes.

The President feels most deeply about unemployed engineers, many of whom went to college, studied long and hard, anticipated 40 years of employment, and now, through no fault of their own, find themselves out on the street.

Professional Note-Takers

If you are lazy about taking notes in class, then you are usually caught short at exam time.

That's where the professional note-takers come in. For about $5 on most campuses you can buy a semester of easy listening.

I've been thinking that if I had to have a heart or a brain transplant and I was able to pick my donor, whose heart or brain would I want? And I decided I would want the heart or the brain of a bigot whether he be black or white—because I'd want a heart or brain that hasn't been used.

The little boy was out on the street talking to his friend, and he told his friend: "I ain't going." And I walked over to him and said: "Sonny, don't say that. Say I am not going, you are not going, he is not going, we are not going, they are not going." So the boy said: "Hey, ain't nobody going."

And the feller, he turns around to the bartender and says: "I like you because you're cool. EDITOR'S NOTE: *Irwin C. Watson likes understatement. When he tells a joke it's in a conversational tone that adds to the hilarity. He got his first big break with Johnny Carson on TV some years ago. Thinking craftily how he could elicit audience response, Watson came out and said: "Some of you are probably wondering why I'm here. I'm here because when the management was getting the show together they received 1248 letters saying 'give Irwin C. Watson a chance.' Since then Watson has done top nightclubs, and much TV. He says: "I consider what I do a conversation I have with the audience—I just don't give them a chance to answer."

After high school, the New York-born Watson joined the Army, spent 52 months in Germany, where he seemed slated for a musical career. "I played in an Army band: baritone-saxophone with a 17-piece dance band that we had. I played tenor with a seven-piece combo, and I played clarinet with our symphony orchestra. Plus I was a drum major—which really doesn't mean anything. I played bass drum 'cause I had a strong back and weak mind." It was not too long after he left the Army that Watson went into comedy. He is married, the father of two children, and lives with his family in Brooklyn, N.Y. Herewith some of his favorite jokes:

Talking about Women's Liberation brings to mind the people who always say that behind every successful man there's a woman. Well once I went to check up on this and I found some interesting stories. THE "CANALS" OF MARS, FIRST SEEN BY ITALIAN ASTRONOMER, SCHIAPARELLI, IN 1877, SUGGESTED ARTIFICIAL WATERWAYS AND STARTED THE STORIES OF INTELLIGENT "MARTIANS."

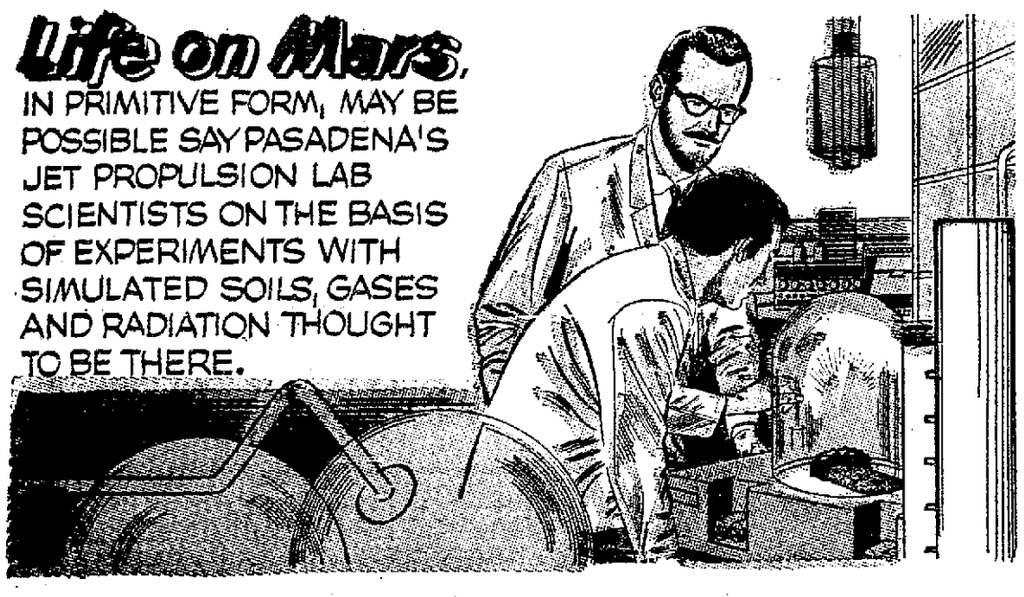
SEASONAL CHANGES OF DARKNESS AND COLOR OF AREAS SUGGESTED VEGETATION.

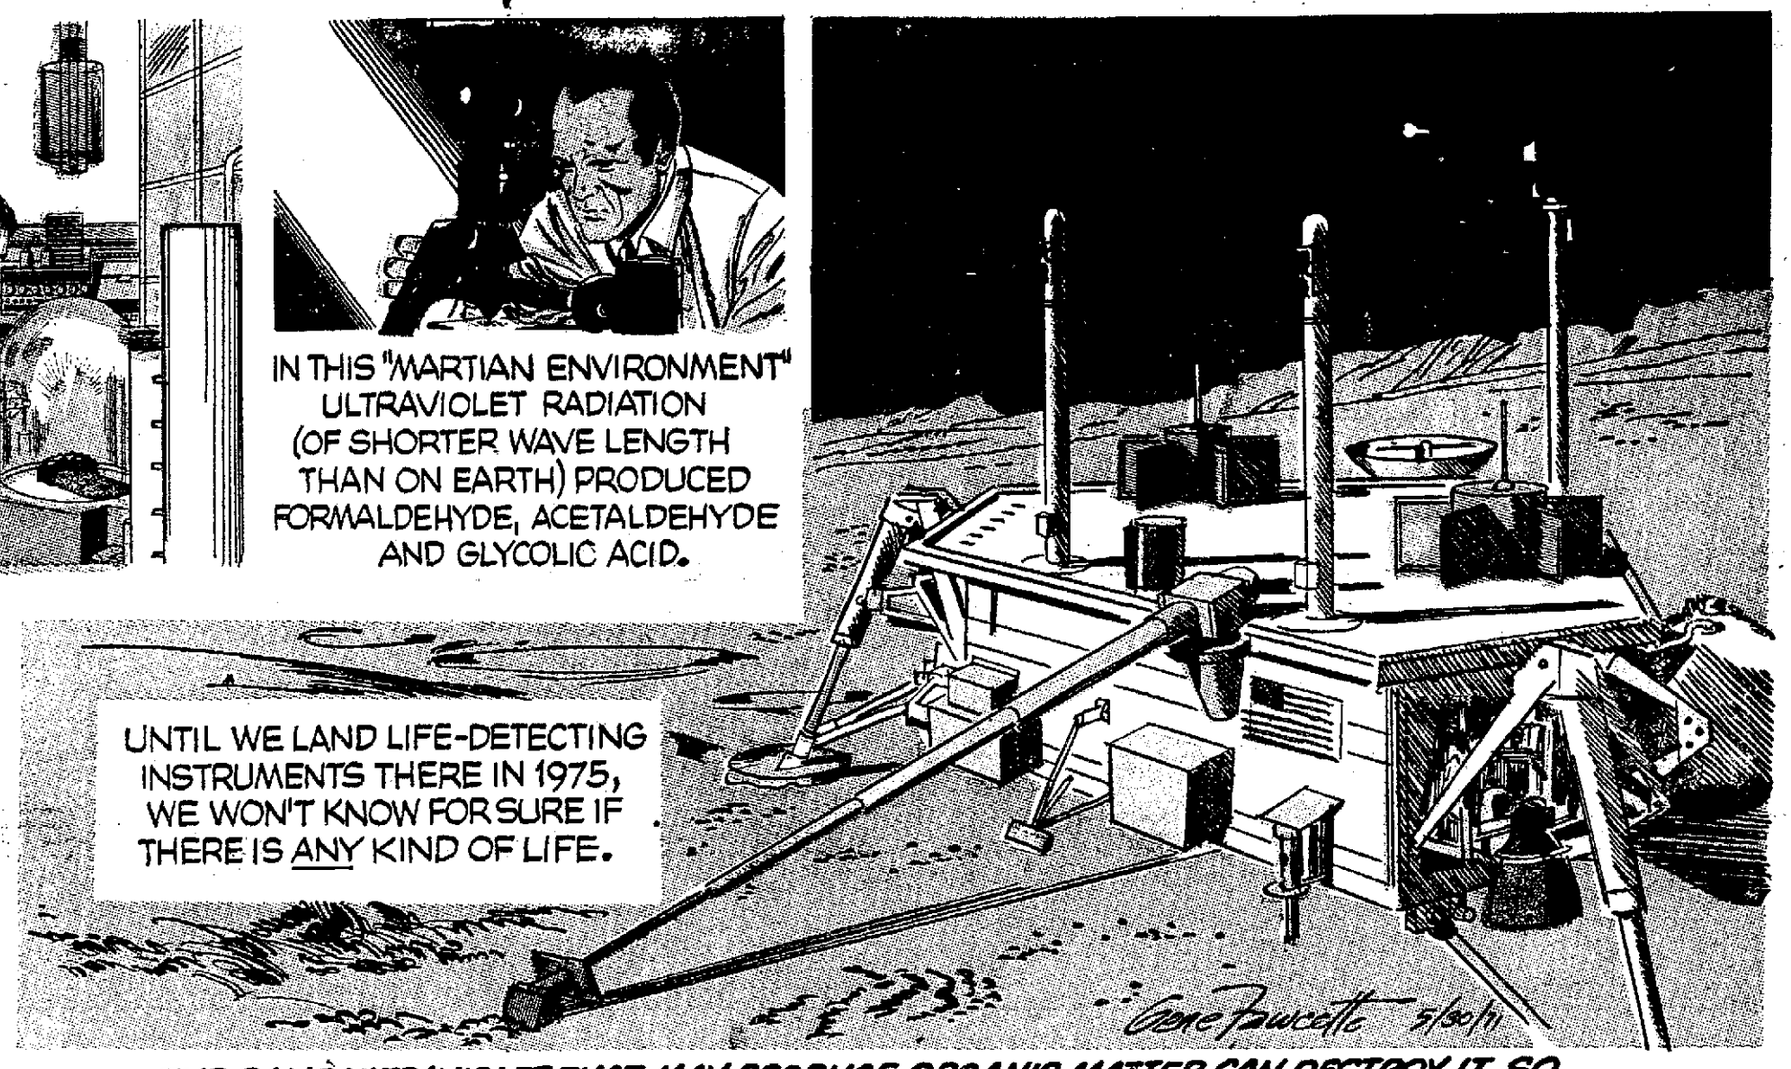
Life on Mars, IN PRIMITIVE FORM, MAY BE POSSIBLE SAY PASADENA'S JET PROPULSION LAB SCIENTISTS ON THE BASIS OF EXPERIMENTS WITH SIMULATED SOILS, GASES AND RADIATION THOUGHT TO BE THERE.



IN THIS "MARTIAN ENVIRONMENT" ULTRAVIOLET RADIATION (OF SHORTER WAVE LENGTH THAN ON EARTH) PRODUCED FORMALDEHYDE, ACETALDEHYDE AND GLYCOLIC ACID.

THESE CHEMICALS ARE BUILDING BLOCKS FOR ORGANIC COMPOUNDS (LIKE SUGAR)— BUT IT'S STILL UNKNOWN IF NITROGEN, A KEY GAS FOR DEVELOPMENT OF BIOLOGICAL MOLECULES, EXISTS ON MARS.

UNTIL WE LAND LIFE-DETECTING INSTRUMENTS THERE IN 1975, WE WON'T KNOW FOR SURE IF THERE IS ANY KIND OF LIFE.



THE SAME ULTRAVIOLET THAT MAY PRODUCE ORGANIC MATTER CAN DESTROY IT, SO PERHAPS TO PROTECT ITSELF BY LAYERS OF SOIL ABOVE, THE LIFE THERE GROWS DOWN — INSTEAD OF UP!

"GRIEF CAN TAKE CARE OF ITSELF; BUT TO GET THE FULL VALUE OF JOY YOU MUST HAVE SOMEBODY TO SHARE IT WITH."
– MARK TWAIN

HE HAS NO FEVER AND YET HE SEEMS SEIZED BY SPASMS THAT COME ONLY WITH HIGH TEMPERATURES!

I, TOO, HAVE NOTICED THE CURIOUS RESULTS FROM THE MEDICATION OF DR. NO-NO!

TO GET ANNIE'S MIND OFF "DADDY'S" MYSTERIOUS ILLNESS, TAMARA HAS SUGGESTED THAT SHE TRY TO WEAR ONE OF HER BALLET DRESSES ....

THAT IS THE TUTU I WEAR WHEN I DANCE IN "SWAN LAKE"... IT MAKES ME FEEL UNTROUBLED, AND IT WILL DO THE SAME FOR YOU, ANNIE ...

ARF!

YOU ARE NOT TAMARA!! YOU HAVE DECEIVED ME! YOU ARE THAT INFERNAL BRAT WHOSE DOG NEVER LEAVES HER SIDE!

THAT TIES IT, SANDY!! TAMARA'S IN CAHOOTS WITH THAT FREAKY DR. NO-NO ... AND "DADDY'S" SUPPOSED I' BE THE FALL GUY!!

© 1971 New York News Inc. World Rights Reserved

WHERE ARE YOU!!? SPEAK ... SO THAT MY ITCHING FINGERS CAN LOCATE YOUR THROAT!!

HE'S PRACT'LY ON TOP O' US, SANDY ... SO HOLD YOUR BREATH ...

TO BE FOILED BY A CHILD IS THE SUPREME IRONY!! BUT SHE CAN NOT HAVE GONE FAR ...

BALLET DRESSES WEREN'T MADE FOR CRAWLIN' THROUGH STICKY BUSHES ... BUT I'D RATHER HAVE A COUPLA SCRATCHES ON MY KNEES ...

... THAN THAT GORILLA'S FINGER MARKS ON MY GULLET ... SHHH ... HE'S HEADIN' THIS WAY ...

WITH DEAR, DEVOTED FRIENDS LIKE HIM ... WHO NEEDS A FATAL ACCIDENT!!?

HAS MY GREATHEARTED BENEFACTOR IMPROVED? I CAN NOT SLEEP WITHOUT YOUR ASSURANCE THAT HE WILL BE HIS OLD SELF IN THE MORNING!

HE IS, IF ANYTHING, WORSE! AS THOUGH HE WERE THE VICTIM OF AN EVIL-WISHER'S FOUL DESIGN!

BUT WHO COULD WISH OLIVER WARBUCKS BUT THE BEST OF GOOD FORTUNE, PUNJAB?
